JARECKI TO RAZE LAST BARRICADE OF TAX STRIKE

Affects $130,000,000 in County Revenue.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

County Judge Jarecki announced yesterday that next week he will enter a blanket order constituting, in effect, the final legal liquidation of the tax strike. His order will overrule at one stroke of the pen objections to the payment of about $130,000,000 in 1928, 1929 and 1930 taxes.

The objections, which cover some 250,000 pieces of real estate in Cook county, are all based upon the contention that failure to assess personal property at its full value invalidated the last three tax levies placed in collection. That claim has been held to be without merit in half a dozen cases carried to the state or federal Supreme court, the best known of which were the Bistor and Cisar cases, both refused reviews by the United States Supreme court.

Will Order Property Sales.

While these legal principles were being tested in the higher courts Judge Jarecki took no action upon the objections in which they were cited. In dismissing the objections he will also order that the properties involved be sold for delinquent taxes at the next tax sale, which under the law starts on May 1.

Judge Jarecki's order, it is said, will not of itself bring a single dollar of tax money into the county treasury. It will, however, be a powerful influence toward the payment of taxes, since it will wipe out the last legal excuse for withholding payments.

An objection to the payment of taxes, filed in the County court, prevents sale of the property involved for delinquent taxes until such time as the objection is disposed of. It does not, however, stop the piling up of penalties for nonpayment, which accrue at the rate of 1 per cent a month. If an objection is upheld and the tax bill reduced, the taxpayer must still pay the penalties on that portion of his bill which the court holds to be just. In the case of the present objections there will be no reductions, and therefore penalties must be paid on the full amount.

An Incentive to Pay.

Thus, taxpayers who have the funds to meet their tax bills, having had their final legal barrier against payment, in the form of the County court objections, torn away, will find it profitable to pay at once and avoid increased penalties. They will have a further incentive to pay before May 1 because the advertisement and sale of their property for taxes will place a cloud on the title which will make its sale practically impossible. In the case of mortgaged property, forfeiture of property for taxes is generally ground for foreclosure of the mortgage.

With these powerful incentives to payment in force, the taxpayers who allow their property to be forfeited in May may be logically divided into two classes, it is pointed out—those who can't pay and those who won't pay. The depression and the collapse of rents and real estate values are known to have placed thousands of property owners in the former class. The latter class may be said to be the real tax strikers.

"No Reason for Delay."

"These objections," Judge Jarecki said in announcing his impending action, "have accumulated over a period of three years, during which time the litigation was being carried to the state and federal courts. These decisions have been uniformly returned against the tax strikers and there is no longer any reason for delaying the judgment and order of sale against these properties.

"In cases where a taxpayer has a legitimate objection I will be more than glad to hear the litigant. Such cases must be brought to my attention with the evidence curt and to the point. I will no longer listen to generalities. I believe that most of the objections still pending in my court have been brought not by those taxpayers who really seek relief for a wrong done them but by those who follow dilatory tactics in an effort to avoid any payment of taxes whatsoever, thus refusing to support their governments."

$168,000,000 Taxes Unpaid.

At present there are unpaid real estate taxes totaling $168,000,000 in Cook county. County Attorney Hayden N. Bell said yesterday that abou

1,000 INJURED AS LARGE GAS TANK EXPLODES

Hunt for Victims Among Ruins.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEUNKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 11 (Saturday).—Earlier estimates that 250 persons had lost their lives in yesterday's gas tank explosion were expected to be reduced today as workers continued their hunt for dead and injured. The league of nations commissioner of th. Saar district announced that he believed this figure was exaggerated. Fire squads continue to insist there were more than 200 fatalities.

NEUNKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 10.—(AP)—A sudden, terrifying explosion of a big gas tank of the Neunkirchener Iron works tonight caused the deaths of at least 49 persons and injuries to hundreds of others.

The industrial section of this city of 40,000 inhabitants was reduced to ruins. Through the Rhine valley from Cologne to Basel, Switzerland, a distance of 250 miles, the thunderlike roar reverberated.

Shortly before midnight the bodies of forty dead had been recovered. Estimates of the fatalities ran all the way up to 200, and the injured were put at more than 1,000, many of whom were cut by glass splinters. Hardly a whole pane of glass remained within a radius of five miles of the city.

All Hospitals Overcrowded.

Every hospital in Neunkirchen and vicinity was overcrowded. Numerous women and children were among the injured.

The first great explosion was followed by three or four smaller ones. Police were rushed to the affected area to suppress panic. In the section of greatest danger 2,000 persons were cleared away from their homes. Assistance was rushed immediately from Saarbruecken and other neighboring towns.

Among the dead was a leading industrialist, Dr. Pupp.

Late tonight a big condenser connected with the gas tank still was blazing and the stricken population feared further disaster. All fire brigades in the neighborhood were at the scene.

Few at Work

The plant was modernized two years ago and, as a result of technical changes comparatively few men were actually working when the disaster occurred.

The ruined section of Neunkirchen looked as if it had been razed by shellfire. Streets were filled with débris and relief workers were hampered in their work.

The gas tank, which was 270 feet high and 150 feet in diameter, was two-thirds full when it exploded. The blast occurred at the time when shifts were being changed. Adjacent streets were crowded with workmen, many of whom were hit by flying pieces of metal and glass.

Fifty Houses Leveled.

Saarbrueckener street near the plant was the scene of the greatest destruction. There, in a small area, 50 houses were leveled. Varying degrees of destruction occurred in all parts of the city, however.

Trains could not approach the railway station because of huge piles of débris on the tracks. Within an hour after the first explosion four truck-

Ex-Alderman's Home Robbed; $28,000 Loot

Three armed men last night entered the home of former Ald. Stanley S. Walkowiak, 1310 Cornell street, and, after tying up Mr. Walkowiak, his wife, Esther, their son and a nephew, fled with $25,000 and two bracelets valued at $3,000. The money was in a safe in a room used by the ex-alderman, who is an attorney, as an office.

The robbers appeared at the front door of the home at 7:30 o'clock and were admitted by Raymond Karolewski, the nephew. When they said they had a case for the ex-alderman, Karolewski led them to the office.

Bandits Draw Pistols.

Pistols were speedily drawn by the bandits and Mr. Walkowiak was ordered to open the safe, which was concealed in a desk. While he obeyed, Karolewski, who is a teller at the Second Security bank of Chicago, 1965 Milwaukee avenue, of which his uncle is a director, and the son, Roman Walkowiak, were thrust into a bedroom. A little later the ex-alderman was forced in after them and all were tied up with underwear and neckties taken from a dresser.

While this was being done Mrs. Walkowiak, who had been shopping, entered. When she saw the robbers she fainted and was placed on a bed by the men.

Phone Wires Cut.

Cutting the telephone wires leading into the house, the robbers fled to an automobile outside. Mrs. Walkowiak recovered from her swoon and released the bound men. The police were immediately notified of the holdup.

The money was in $50 and $100 bills. Mr. Walkowiak explained how he happened to have such a large sum in his home.

"I had recently collected several mortgages," he said. "With several others, all Chicagoans, I had formed a syndicate to purchase some oil lands in Texas. We were to have gone about this time and I had the cash ready to take with me. The trip was delayed just a day or two ago and I had not troubled to deposit it in the bank, as we were to leave soon."

Walkowiak's Share $25,000.

The oil land deal, he indicated, was to involve several hundred thousand dollars and his share alone was $25,000. The bracelets were each set with a large number of diamonds.

Mr. Walkowiak represented the old 31st ward, now the 26th, in the city council from 1911 to 1923. He was a victim of a $15,000 robbery several years ago. Last night he expressed the opinion that one of the three bandits may have been implicated in the first stickup.

AUGUST SENATE HAS 'JITTERS,' MEMBER AVERS

Kentuckian Outlines What's Wrong.

BY M. M. LOGAN.

[Junior senator from Kentucky, who on Tuesday pleaded with the senate not to let its anger run away with its judgment in its action in the case of Sergeant at Arms Barry. The senate resented an article by Barry in which they considered reference to "crooks" as directed at the senate.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—The recent discussion of the case of Sergeant at Arms Barry called sharp attention to the senate in a light that is not exactly favorable, but which is easily understandable.

The senate should be the greatest legislative body in the world. Just as the government of the United States exercises more power than any other, so the senate should be the greatest power in this government.

But it is not. It would seem that the senate has a case of the jitters.

Hours are spent in arguing inconsequential subjects and, in the meantime, the most urgent business of the country waits.

Not Sure About Demagogues.

Tempers are frayed, and accordingly we see such outbreaks as those occasioned by Mr. Barry's article. I do not agree with him. I cannot believe that there are crooks in congress, but I do not know, as I said on the floor, I am not so sure about demagogues.

As I understand the meaning of the word, a demagogue is one who stands for something because he thinks that such a stand will benefit him.

Now, what does the senate do? Its members theoretically represent no state. In the scheme of government, the 96 senators are elected to represent the interests of the United States as a whole, without regard to section, and no senator is expected to take a stand that will benefit his own state if it operates to the disadvantage of a majority of the other states.

In practice that is not always the case, as is demonstrated by many of the speeches and votes in the senate.

Easy to Understand Action.

On the other hand, it is easy to understand that senators feel they must take certain stands in order to remain in office and serve the country.

The senators, just as other holders of public office, whether in the national government or state governments, are facing a wholly new condition that none of us can understand. Often the senate must choose between doing a thing that is obviously for the common good, but is not understandable to the average person or the demagogue who goes about preaching against the government, or doing the expedient thing that will meet with popular approval, but may do a great deal of harm.

It is no secret that there is no longer any sympathy left for senators or any other public officials. The public does not like them; it thinks they are living off of the public in hard times.

No wonder foolish things are said and done.

Public Officials to Blame.

But the public itself must take only a small share of the blame. The remainder of the blame for the public attitude toward public officials and particularly senators, is on the shoulders of the officials themselves.

In campaigns, extravagant promises are made that never can be carried out. They often are made in ignorance, because the office seekers do not know what they are talking about.

I am reminded that every political campaign in Kentucky which I ever have witnessed has hinged on two topics, the same as campaigns in all other states—better schools and roads and lower taxes.

That is a fair example of the political campaigns, and those promising these things often do not stop to realize that it is impossible to accomplish both.

Road, School Costs Cited.

With schools costing 32 cents of every tax dollar and roads 29 cents, it is impossible to keep spending more and more on schools and roads and to reduce taxes to any appreciable extent.

As a result primarily of those promises, we have reached a point in this country where, with assets estimated at 350 billion dollars, the country has an estimated aggregate public and private debt of 200 billion dollars, a debt so large that it could not be cleared without great reorganization.

A reflection of that attitude toward

The intense cold wave which carried the temperature in Chicago down to 19 below zero on Thursday—a record for thirty-four years—was routed yesterday by winds from the south and southwest. But a new cold wave is sweeping down from the Canadian northwest and is scheduled to arrive tonight.

"It appears that the temperature will go down to a point between zero and 5 above Saturday evening," said Forecaster J. R. Lloyd, substituting last night for C. A. Donnel, who predicted the earlier cold wave. "By Sunday morning we may have from 5 to 10 below zero. This, however, is uncertain. But we are sure to have a cold week-end."

Skies to Be Cloudy Today.

Skies, according to the forecast, will be cloudy today and winds will be from the northwest. The new blizzard was sweeping Canadian points last night and pushing thermometer readings down from twenty to thirty degrees, or near the lows established there earlier in the week. Heavy snow was falling and the storm was described as "the worst in years."

It was indicated that the lowest reading early today would be about 10 above.

East Coast Is Chilly.

The rise in temperature was general over most of the country yesterday. Cold spots were the Atlantic coast, where the full force of the cold wave exerted itself for the first time, and the southern Rocky mountains. New York had a minimum of 10 above zero, the lowest of the winter. An area in Nevada and Utah had the coldest weather on record there.

B. M. WINSTON SERIOUSLY ILL IN PASSAVANT

Bertram M. Winston, member of an old Chicago family, is in a serious condition at the Passavant Memorial hospital, it was learned last night. It is said that he is suffering from a clot near the heart. He is 64 years old and resides at 229 Lake Shore drive with his wife, Mrs. Anne Odell Winston, and their daughter, Muriel.

As a member of the real estate firm of Winston & Co., 38 South Dearborn street, Mr. Winston is identified with many large loop realty projects. Last May he was appointed one of the receivers for the Hotel Sherman properties. He is a trustee of the F. H. Winston estate. Mr. Winston has been active in prohibition repeal movements and is vice chairman of the Illinois division of the Association Against the 18th Amendment.

ROBBER SLAIN IN WEST SIDE PISTOL BATTLE

One of three bandits was shot and killed last night in a revolver battle in the Madison department store at 1035 West Madison street. Several patrons, employés, and the owners, Thomas Pavlakes, who killed the robber, and Harry Vasels, were imperiled by flying bullets.

Pavlakes and Vasels were in their office on a balcony in the rear of the store when the three gunmen entered, posing as customers. Miss Eva Wynot, 30 years old, 5057 Washington boulevard, a clerk, waited on them. Two of them followed her to the cashier's cage, drew guns, and forced her to hand over $12.

Then the third robber started for the office of the store on the balcony, and Miss Wynot, seeing this, screamed. Her cry attracted the attention of Pavlakes. He looked out of his door just as the one bandit was ascending the ladder-like stairs.

The robber fired one shot at Pavlakes, the bullet tearing a hole in Pavlakes' left lapel. Pavlakes seized a revolver lying handily nearby and returned five shots. The bandit crashed to the floor, struck in the heart and the face.

His companions sent a half dozen bullets at Pavlakes and Vasels and ran to their slain pal's aid. They carried him to the door, then abandoned him.

Mrs. Roosevelt to Wear Blue at Inaugural

New York, Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt selected the gown she will wear at her husband's inauguration in less than thirty minutes, it became known today.

Mrs. Roosevelt's gown will be styled from a stock model, but it will be unique in that its hue will be "Eleanor blue," a shade of hyacinth blue that has been named after the next first lady of the land. Hyacinth blue, stylists explained, is a color between grayish blue and bluish gray. Mrs. Roosevelt said today it was the favorite shade of her favorite color.

The "Eleanor blue" revived memories of the famous Alice blue of the days when Theodore Roosevelt was President and the then Miss Alice Roosevelt wore gowns of a shade halfway between powder blue and turquoise. That shade of blue became famous throughout the nation.

Made of Crystelle Velvet.

The gown selected by Mrs. Roosevelt will be of crystelle velvet, ankle length and with long puffed sleeves. From the collar, which is high in back, two ribbonlike pieces of the velvet will be brought forward and crossed in the front of the gown. With the gown Mrs. Roosevelt intends to wear a three-quarter length navy blue crystelle velvet coat, a navy blue straw hat and gloves and a purse of the same color. The coat also was chosen from stock models.

Mrs. Roosevelt purchased both the gown and coat from the house which made the gown she wore when Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated as governor and styled gowns worn by Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, Mrs. U. S. Grant, Mrs. Grover Cleveland, and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt.

For the inaugural ball Mrs. Roosevelt intends to wear a white brocade gown that she has worn to formal dinner parties in New York this winter.

Stand for First Meals.

Mr. Roosevelt, his family, and friends will take their first three meals in the White House standing up. And their first dinner will be of scrambled eggs and sausages.

The new occupants of the White House will entertain 1,575 guests on March 4, and the staff believes it would be difficult to prepare and serve a dinner for seventy-five after having had 1,000 guests for tea. Mrs Roosevelt has decided therefore that all shall be served buffet style.

For the first meal—luncheon—there will be 500 guests, members of the family, relatives, friends, governors of the various states, and Democratic leaders.

PILOTS FLAMING PLANE TO EARTH; 9 ABOARD SAVED

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Nine persons rode to safety in a flaming Transcontinental and Western Air liner near Bakersfield tonight. The tri-motored Ford was southbound from San Francisco to Los Angeles. Ten miles north of Bakersfield, with the ship high above the ground, sparks from the motor ignited fuel in the gasoline line.

With passengers panic stricken, Pilot Ed Bellandi, a veteran, realized that a forced landing near Bakersfield was fraught with peril, so he headed for the city airport and set the heavy plane down smoothly with flames threatening the wing tanks.

Only the ship's all-metal construction prevented its destruction in mid-air and the deaths of all nine occupants, air line officials said.

The fire swept the craft as it rolled slowly to a stop, and Mrs. Adelaide Helwig, last passenger to be assisted out, suffered burns on the face and hands and was removed to a hospital in Bakersfield. A moment after Mrs. Helwig had been carried to a safe distance the ship burst into flames and was destroyed.

roads and schools and reduced taxes, which are primarily state matters, is found in the senate, where, I am told, that some senators, who, in their public speeches cry loudest for lower taxes, back schemes that will require more and more borrowing by the government.

Faces Economy Problem.

The senate, as the court of last resort in legislation, faces the task of actually meeting the problem of economy. This cannot be done in the house where legislation is rushed through without great consideration.

Accordingly policies must be made and worked out in our own body. The senate must make its choice between actually cutting down government expenditures, possibly with the sacrifice of much routine, or of continuing the spending policy which, if perpetuated, will lead no one can say where.

The realization of this is one thing that has given the senate the jitters; another reason is that we here in Washington lose our sense of perspective and really do not know what step to take. Then when criticism rains on the heads of senators they burst out.

We have two courses to follow: one would be a gradual overhaul of the whole government machinery and the other would be to take immediate steps that would be popular but might be the worst possible course.

Sees Way to Be Popular.

There is no doubt that we would be very popular if we set out to abolish some departments, say the department of commerce, or if we cut down the expenditures of say the department of agriculture from 375 million a year to $25,000,000.

Anything that was done at this time to save money would be generally popular, I think. On the other hand, such precipitate action might work the most harm to the public welfare.

It would be easier to arrive at some understanding of our task, if sectionalism could be forgotten. The senate should be a body of calm consideration, not one where every member is ready to jump up on the least provocation and denounce this or that or the other thing because it may injure his state.

PUBLIC ENEMY OBJECTS AS HIS CASE IS DELAYED

A charge of reckless driving against Dominick Russo, public enemy and racketeer, was continued yesterday until Feb. 17 by Police Magistrate Henry Sandusky of Cicero over the protest of the defendant. The case grew out of an automobile collision in which Mrs. Anna S. Jirgl, 1443 West 18th street, was injured in Cicero on Jan. 8.

The continuance was granted because Mrs. Jirgl's son, who was driving his mother's car, was ill at home. Russo protested the delay and announced that he wanted to go to Florida.

"If you want to go to Florida," Assistant State's Attorney Edward Markham told the defendant, "maybe we'd better put you away to be sure you'll be here for trial."

"And maybe you'll get pushed around some," Russo said. He was silenced by the court. Russo is at liberty on $3,000 bond.

DR. GEO. F. DICK AND WIFE GIVEN MEDICAL AWARD

Dr. George F. Dick, professor and chairman of the department of medicine at the University of Chicago, and his wife, Dr. Gladys H. Dick of the McCormick Institute for Infectious Diseases, have been awarded the Cameron prize for 1933.

The award—amounting to about $1,000—is made annually by the University of Edinburgh to the person or persons making valuable additions to practical therapeutics. The prize was given to the Dicks for their work on the treatment of scarlet fever. They collaborated in identifying the causative organism of scarlet fever, and devised the Dick test and later developed a vaccine, both of which are now used in standard medical practice.

Only two of the Cameron awards have gone to Americans previously, so far as local records show. In 1924 Dr. Harvey Cushing received the prize, and in 1930 Dr. George Minot and Dr. William P. Murphy shared the award.

LEADERS DIFFER ON GARNER PLAN OF DICTATORSHIP

Some Democrats Skeptical of Results.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—The Democratic new dealers fell out today over the degree of fiscal dictatorship to be conferred upon Mr. Roosevelt as soon as he becomes President.

At the same time President Hoover indicated he would veto a grant of unlimited power to reconstruct the government. The prospect, therefore, is that the Democrats will be compelled to look to the new overwhelming Democratic congress for the creation of a thoroughgoing dictatorship.

Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], author of the senate amendment to the treasury and postoffice department's appropriation bill giving wide powers to the President to reorganize and reduce the cost of the federal government, and Senator Sam G. Bratton [Dem., N. M.], author of the 5 per cent economy amendment, labored with Speaker and Vice President Elect John N. Garner to abandon his program for a virtually unlimited dictatorship.

Endangers Filibuster.

The senators warned the speaker that the broadening of the senate amendment will arouse constitutional strict constructionists in the senate and endanger the defeat of the measure by filibuster in the closing days of the congress. They were of the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt desires no broader powers than is proposed in the senate amendment granting authority to consolidate and abolish bureaus and commission, but not entire departments.

Mr. Garner remained unmoved by the senators' arguments. He insisted that the President be empowered to consolidate and abolish departments and to reduce salaries, veterans' compensation, subsidies, and other expenditures.

"I want to go the limit," said Mr. Garner, "and that limit will be the constitution. The President elect is willing to take this responsibility and if we give it to him I think he will exercise it wisely. It has been demonstrated that the reorganization and the reduction in expenditures that is demanded by the emergency cannot be effected by congress. It must be accomplished by the executive."

Hoover Longs to Veto It.

While the new dealers were wrangling over how much of a dictator to put in the White House, President Hoover was denouncing the Garner proposals at the cabinet meeting. He had wholly approved the Byrnes amendment, but he could not swallow the Garner proposal. According to one version of the cabinet meeting Mr. Hoover banged his fist on the conference table and gave utterance to the hope that congress would pass the measure that he might have the pleasure of vetoing it.

When the house convened the appropriation bill was sent to a conference committee of the two houses in which it is Speaker Garner's purpose to have the Byrnes amendment broadened into his conception of the sort of dictatorship the emergency demands. If he succeeds there will be a forensic field day in both houses when the bill is returned from conference.

In the course of the discussion in the house Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, Republican leader, said it is clear that the Democrats are now seeking a power they were unwilling to confer on a Republican President, or are confessing their incapacity to legislate.

Democrat Jumps Fence.

Then another Democratic new dealer went off the reservation. Representative John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.] said he would not vote for the Garner program.

"If we do pass such a thing," he snapped, "we are nothing but a lot of cowards refusing to do our constitutional duty."

He was joined by Democratic New Dealer John E. Rankin of Mississippi, candidate for speaker, who said: "We are not willing to abdicate our functions as legislators, nor are we willing to pile all this responsibility in the lap of the incoming President."

Representatives Charles L. Gifford [Rep., Mass.] and Carl E. Mapes [Rep., Mich.] voiced suspicions that the Democrats in seeking autocratic power are interested not so much in economy as in getting rid of civil service employés and filling their places with Democrats in the reorganized departments.

Pleads Against Partisanship.

Representative Will R. Wood [Rep., Ind.] asserted that under the senate bill it would be possible "to raise salaries all the way from $200 to $2,000 a year while, at the same time, discriminating against every soldier and sailor in the army and navy."

The venerable Representative Edward W. Pou [Dem., N. C.], dean of the house, pleaded for surcease of partisanship, "as we did during the war, and put country first."

"I say to you," he went on, "this is the most serious moment that has ever existed in the history of this country, and unless congress and the President can bring about radical reduction in expenses it may be that there will be a cleanup of the house and the senate and somebody will be put here who can accomplish this. The situation is much more dangerous than I think it is good to talk about here today; but I do say the time has come when some autocratic power should be put in the hands of somebody who can be trusted."

A JUDGE GIVES MIKE THE RIGHT TO SAVE HIS FACE

Mrs. Beatrice Vidovich, 5324 South Washtenaw avenue, had her husband, Mike, brought before Judge Joseph Sabath recently in the Superior court because he had fallen in arrears on temporary alimony payments. She complained that since their separation Mike had grown a beard, and that it took her and a bailiff several days to ferret him out behind his new facial foliage. Judge Sabath ordered him to shave the beard and keep it shaved until the divorce proceedings were settled.

Yesterday Mrs. Vidovich was granted a divorce on grounds of cruelty and $10 a week for the support of herself and one child. The beardless Mike, who is a ditch digger for the gas company, stepped forward.

"Your honor," he told Judge Sabath, "I'd like to have you take off that injunction against my beard. I work outdoors all day long, and I need the beard to protect me from the cold."

Judge Sabath told him that he could raise a beard again.

HELD TO GRAND JURY AFTER HE ADMITS ARSON

George O'Day, 48 years old, 3041 North Clark street, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Justice of the Peace Max Borchardt of Evanston on a charge of arson.

At the hearing State Fire Marshal George T. Scrivener read a confession by O'Day, who stated that he set fire to George O'Shea's roadhouse in Tessville after O'Shea promised him $100 for the job. In the confession it was stated that O'Shea, although he collected $1,000 damages from an insurance company, failed to pay the arsonist.

O'Shea also was accused of arson by the fire marshal, but the magistrate dismissed him on the ground that O'Day's assertions were unsupported

Taxi Driver Takes Bandit's Gun and Lands Him in Cell

Leslie Bieser, 4647 Lake Park avenue, a Yellow Cab driver, rendered perfect service to Grand Crossing police last night in the matter of handling a holdup man. The man, James Dunn, 31 years old, 5600 Drexel avenue, attempted to rob Bieser at 71st street and Drexel avenue. The latter wrenched the gun away from Dunn and when Dunn tried to get away he fired several warning shots. Dunn surrendered. With his prisoner sitting meekly beside him, Bieser drove to the Grand Crossing station and turned him over to the police. Dunn admitted to detectives he is an ex-convict.

loads of injured persons were being rushed to hospitals.

The force of the explosion shot bodies across streets, against walls, and into the air. People at some distance from Neunkirchen thought there was an earthquake.

Neunkirchen is 70 miles west of Heidelberg. It is 85 miles southeast of Treves, which is possibly the oldest town in Germany. It is in Rhenish Prussia.

Hospital Ceiling Falls.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEUNKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 10.—Vivid descriptions of tragic scenes following the gas tank explosion were unfolded here late tonight by survivors.

It was revealed that several patients in the Catholic hospital were injured when the force of the explosion caused the ceiling of one of the wards to collapse.

One eyewitness said he was present when the bodies of twenty-five persons were carried from the ruins of 15 houses near the tank. He said that rescue workers declared there were another 100 bodies in the débris in this area.

Five hundred men were employed at a nearby gas plant when the explosion occurred. Two hundred and fifty of them were injured. School buildings have been turned into hospitals in order to take care of the injured.

AWAITS WORD OF KIN.

William Lerch, 34 years old, 1005 Oakdale avenue, last night anxiously awaited word as to the fate of his mother and four brothers and sisters in Neunkirchen. His mother, Mrs. Antonia Lerch, lives about 1,600 feet from the scene of the explosions, as do her children, Antonia, Matilda, August, and Hans.

August is a writer for the Saar and Blels newspaper. Lerch said that the tanks are located at the valleylike bottom of Neunkirchen, and that residences are built around and above the tanks on the hills. One of the tanks is located on Gas street, not far from Bahnhof street, the main thoroughfare.

MANY DIE IN BLAST

Arrow on map points to Neunkirchen in Germany, where a double gas tank explosion last night cost the lives of between 40 and 250 persons. The injured may total 1,000. The city was partially ruined by the first explosion, which was heard as far north as Cologne, Germany, and as far south as Basel, Switzerland.

ERROR IN RADIO; POLICE SHOOT INNOCENT MAN

New Rochelle, N. Y., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—A Brooklyn clothing salesman, found in an automobile whose license number, by mistake, had been sent out in an alarm for pay roll robbers, was shot and killed by a police sergeant tonight during a struggle with a plain clothes patrolman.

The man, found later to be innocent of any suspicion, had attempted to flee when told by the plain clothes man, who did not exhibit his police shield, that he was wanted by the police, according to the results of an investigation.

CANADIAN M. P.'S DEMAND TOLLS ON WELLAND CANAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 10.—Three members of the Canadian parliament today asked the Bennett government to institute a tolls system on the Welland canal so American shipping might contribute toward the costs of this $128,000,000 Canadian project.

The three were Ian Mackensis of Vancouver, who finds the Welland canal a serious competitor with Vancouver port; Thomas Cantley, Nova Scotia coal baron, who held that Canada is "subsidizing every ton of American coal entering Canada," and William Euler, Ontario liberal, who opposes a St. Lawrence seaway.

American charges on the Panama canal were cited as argument for tolls against the approximate $2,000,000 of American tonnage through the Welland canal. Robert Manion, canals minister, explained, however, that the Welland canal was free in accordance with a Canadian-American treaty.

Physician Seized After Woman Dies in Hospital

Dr. Emil Gleitsmann, 66 years old, 3940 North Monticello avenue, was arrested last night by Sergts. Charles Reynolds and Frank Donohue of the coroner's office several hours after the death of Mrs. Rosalie Lewis, 23 years old, of Arlington Heights, in the Presbyterian hospital. The coroner's office said they would investigate to determine whether she died of an abortion. Archer Lewis, husband of the woman, asserted his wife had told him that Dr. Gleitsmann had performed such an operation in January. The doctor denied this.

CAMPING SITE OF WASHINGTON WILL BE PARK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Historic ground where Gen. George Washington camped with 10,000 men 158 years ago would be converted into the Morristown [N. J.] National Historic park under a bill passed by the senate today and forwarded to the house for action.

The bill, by Senator Barbour of New Jersey, was brought up in his absence by Senator Kean, his colleague, and passed after Senator King succeeded in eliminating a proviso that the federal government appropriate no more than $7,500 annually for maintenance of the park. When the bill came up Senator King temporarily objected, saying there were entirely too many national parks.

ARCHITECT'S PLEA FOR $187,000 FEE DENIED BY JUDGE

Claim Presented for Plano Civic Auditorium.

Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor yesterday denied a petition for a writ of mandamus sought by County Architect Eric Hall to compel the county board to pay him $187,500 for plans he drew for the proposed civic auditorium which has not been built. The judge held that Hall was not a public officer and was not entitled to the sum asked because no provision was made for his fee in the county budget.

In his 12,000 word decision Judge Taylor defined, for the first time in Illinois jurisprudence, the term public official as one having and exercising certain independent public duties incident to an office created by law at a fixed salary, carrying with it a part of the sovereignty of the state. The office of architect, he held, carries no fixed salary and no public duties fixed by law.

Cites Law to Curb Expense.

The judge also cited the "boodle law" in denying Hall's petition. The law was adopted by the legislature more than 20 years ago to curb excessive expenditures by governmental bodies by limiting their expenditures during a fiscal year to budgetary provisions. As no appropriation was made for Hall's fee in the budget prepared at the time of his service, the judge held that the provisions of the "boodle law" made it necessary to deny his petition.

Hall brought his suit last Sept. 26. He claimed the fee for himself and his associates for drawing preliminary sketches for a civic auditorium. The voters had authorized a $15,000,000 bond issue to build the auditorium.

Hall stated he was to receive 1¼ per cent of the cost of construction for the preliminary sketches. After completion of final plans and the building of the structure he was to receive 6 per cent of its cost, or $900,000.

Ruled Out by High Court.

The bond issue for the auditorium project was attacked before the State Supreme court and held to be illegal. Hall said he and his associates worked from March 1, 1927, to May 1, 1928, when the Supreme court delivered its ruling. At that time Hall had completed his work on the new criminal court building and county jail plans for which he was awarded fees of $750,000.

In support of his case, Hall produced the eight preliminary sketches made for a citizens' committee. The first five were rejected by the committee because the plans contemplated structures which would cost far in excess of the bond issue. Of the two final sketches one designed a building to cost $15,000,000 without provision for the cost of the land, and the other called for a $11,000,000 building with an allowance of $4,000,000 for a site.

The Judge's Findings.

"The court finds," Judge Taylor said, "that the relator (Hall) was not an officer with a salary or fixed compensation; that the statute provides that 'No contract shall hereafter be made or expense or liability incurred by the said board of commissioners . . . notwithstanding the expenditure may have been ordered by the board, unless an appropriation shall have been previously made;' that no valid appropriation was made prior to incurring the alleged liability of the relator; and that the attempted appropriation of a bond issue was a nullity the court is of an opinion the mandamus will not lie.

"Whenever, as here, considerable service of a highly skillful nature over a protracted period of time has been rendered at the request of a public corporation without a previous anticipatory and supporting appropriation it may seem to be a great hardship to hold that a mandamus will not lie; but the legislature has made the law apparently based on a wise public policy and the court is bound thereby."

Attorneys for Hall announced that they would appeal to the Appellate court. Hall has been appointed county architect by the county board each year since 1914.

First Divorce Is Granted in History of Trinidad

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Feb. 10.—After many years of public controversy over the divorce question, the chief justice of Trinidad yesterday granted the first divorce in the island's history. The hearing took only forty-five minutes.

Indict Confessed Kidnapers of Mrs. Skeele

DID KIDNAPERS OF DEAN'S WIFE HAVE HELPERS?

Indict Ex-Convict and Woman for Crime.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Louella Pearl Hammer, 28 year old music student, was indicted today as the "brains" of a kidnap gang, and Frank Howard, paroled ex-convict, was indicted with her, when the county grand jury took up the recent abduction scare in Los Angeles and Pasadena.

There were two other names in the indictment list—Ernie R. Lindstrom and Billy Stillwell—also a couple of John Does, but police do not expect to apprehend Lindstrom, Stillwell, or the John Does, doubting that such persons took part in the operations of Miss Hammer and Howard "if they exist at all."

The indictment specifically charges the pair with kidnaping Mrs. Mary B. Skeele, 65 year old wife of Dean Walter Skeele of University of Southern California music school, who was held captive for one day and liberated when police trail of the $10,000 ransom plot became too hot.

Teacher Too Suspicious.

Brought before District Attorney Buron Fitts after the indictment, Miss Hammer, who gave a brief confession to Detective Chief Joe Taylor last night, refused to talk. Howard, who also has been known as W. P. Howard, as Parsons, as E. H. Van Dorn, and by other names, and who was paroled from San Quentin in 1931, after a sentence of one to fourteen years as an auto thief, said he was "sorry, because Mrs. Skeele proved to be such a nice old lady."

In the statements taken from the couple last night they said they had first planned to kidnap Miss Isobel Smith, Pasadena school teacher and daughter of the Rev. Merle N. Smith, Pasadena Methodist church pastor.

"We knew he was a trustee of University of Southern California," said Miss Hammer, who had attended Dean Skeele's classes, "and we thought we could collect ransom money to pay off a mortgage on my house."

This house, in Pasadena, was the one in which Miss Hammer and Howard held Mrs. Skeele captive. "Miss Smith proved very suspicious and we could not do anything with her," Howard was quoted by officers as saying, "so we dropped the plan against Miss Smith."

Had Third Victim in Mind.

Information to the police tonight was that Miss Hammer and Howard had been known as "Mr. and Mrs. Parsons" at the Pasadena house, where they lived some months last year. The officers said they also learned that a Miss Agnes Norcross, college student living in the Highland Park section of Los Angeles, had been a third intended abduction victim.

Howard, held like Miss Hammer under $100,000 bonds, was ordered to jail. He endeavored to shield Miss Hammer and this prompted them to advance the names of Lindstrom and Stillwell into the investigation, police said. "These names merely complicate preparations for a hurried trial," it was said at the district attorney's office.

Miss Hammer was under arrest in Pasadena in 1927, 1928, and 1930 on suspicion of being the "poison pen" author of telephone calls and letters to men and women in Pasadena.

TOM M'NALLY MAY REST IN ARLINGTON, IF COURT CONSENTS

A petition to exhume the body of Thomas J. McNally, civil war drummer boy and holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor, from Roseland cemetery, to give him a military burial at Arlington Memorial cemetery, Washington, D. C., was filed before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the Probate judge yesterday and set for hearing March 14.

Two friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jack C. Simpson, 417 North Clark street, with whom McNally lived before his death on Feb. 3, informed the court that McNally expressed a wish for such a funeral at the Edward Hines Jr. hospital on Jan. 24.

In the petition they said McNally informed them he knew death was approaching and asked that he be given a funeral with full honors and "with my medal of honor pinned on my uniform." At that time, they said, he gave them the key to his safe deposit box in which he had $6,000, telling them to use the money for expenses of the funeral.

McNally was pointed out by Gen. U. S. Grant after the Battle of the Wilderness as a hero who helped to save the Union army by his handling of cannon during a confederate charge. Years later, when Grant became President, he procured the Congressional medal for McNally, who at that time was in Joliet penitentiary for a murder which it later appeared he did not commit.

FATE OF SLAYER, DARROW CLIENT, IS UP TO COURT

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The fate of 18 year old Russell McWilliams—described by his attorney, Clarence Darrow, as a youth who "never had a chance"—tonight was in the hands of Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff.

Closing arguments were completed about 8:30 p. m. in the youth's third trial for the slaying of William Sayles, street car motorman, during a robbery, and Judge Shurtleff, announced he would give his verdict Feb. 18.

The defense cut its closing argument short with the announcement that Darrow, aged Chicago lawyer, was too exhausted to appear at the night session. Robert E. Nash, state's attorney, quickly summed up the prosecution's testimony and Judge Shurtleff took the case under advisement.

Darrow in his plea today to save the youth from the electric chair blamed society for the boy's crime.

FILE EXCEPTIONS IN SUIT AGAINST NORMAN HARRIS

Attorneys for James G. Clark of Mount Kisco, N. Y., whose $300,000 breach of contract suit against Norman Harris, son of the chairman of the board of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, was thrown out of court, filed a bill of exceptions yesterday in connection with an appeal to the Appellate court. The bill was sent to the home of Circuit Judge Caverly for signature. The judge is ill.

Judge Caverly refused to hear the original case on the ground that it was "against public morals." He declared Clark and his wife operated a badger game on Haris and were not entitled to protection of the courts.

HORNER SLASHES $1,200 YEAR OFF HIS OWN SALARY

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—As a part of the state retrenchment program Gov. Henry Horner today gave himself a reduction in salary of 10 per cent. It amounted to $100 a month on his annual statutory allowance of $12,000 a year. Others who accepted cuts with him were Adjt. Gen. Carlos E. Black and the holdover Emmerson cabinet members, Michael F. Walsh, director of registration and education; Henry Kohn, director of purchases and construction; Rodney H. Brandon, director of public welfare, and Barney Cohen, director of labor.

MIKE CARROZZO BLOCKS REMOVAL OF SNOW BY IDLE

Objects to Men on Relief Rolls Doing Work.

Snow still lies thick on many Chicago streets. Hundreds of men on the relief rolls are willing to work at removing it. But Michael Carrozzo, head of the street sweepers' union, objects to their employment and the snow remains unshoveled.

Carrozzo freely admitted yesterday that he had objected to the use of relief commission men. Some time ago, he said, he had agreed to issue permits for three relief snow cleaners for every union man put to work. In other words, a union man would have to be employed at union rates every time three on the relief rolls appeared to earn some of the money being given them.

Mr. Carrozzo Explains.

"My men," said Carrozzo, "are not being paid now by the city. They are four and a half months back in their wages. If I agree to an arrangement whereby relief men work and are paid every night it would make dissension. There have been times when relief men worked beside union men. The relief men got sandwiches and coffee while our men were starving. If the city needs streets cleaned I can furnish 1,000 men to do it."

There is no money available to pay them, however, even if they were hired, the city having no appropriation as in former years for snow disposal.

Can Use 1,200 Men.

Commissioner Hewitt said that he could use 1,200 relief men for a week. Dr. Bickham has the men. He said that he has furnished workers only where their labor does not conflict with what union men are doing. His "earned relief" section reimburses the city or other public body for any sums paid to workers taken from the relief rolls.

"The men we put to work do not receive rations from the emergency relief," Dr. Bickham added, "provided they get enough work to support themselves. We would be able to use only those who are warmly clad for snow removal and we furnish coffee to keep up their efficiency."

Also, he said, a sudden thaw before the snow is removed would cause floods and conditions dangerous to public health.

SUBZERO WEATHER DOUBLES SALES OF COAL IN CHICAGO

The subzero weather of the last week more than doubled the daily sale of domestic coal in Chicago, according to an estimate made yesterday by Norman R. Elmstrom, president of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association. Mr. Elmstrom estimated that the normal daily sale of 80,000 tons had risen to 120,000 tons during the cold weather.

More than $840,000 was spent daily by Chicagoans for domestic coal in the last week, Mr. Elmstrom said, and approximately 2,800 jobless men were given work by the added demand for fuel. Estimating the average daily wage of the extra help at $3, he said that $30,000 had been paid to them for work on Wednesday and Thursday.

Railroad officials said that a slight increase in the amount of domestic coal brought to Chicago was noticeable during the cold weather. They pointed out that the increased demand for coal among retail dealers would become apparent when the dealers began to replace the coal used in current deliveries. Railroads reported that industrial plants were clamoring for immediate delivery on coal orders.

Hawaii Spreads Rat Poison to Halt Bubonic Plague

HILO, Hawaii, Feb. 10—(AP)—Health authorities and plantation operators took intensive measures today to prevent the spread of bubonic plague following the death of two Filipinos of the disease. J. S. Caceres, health officer of the island of Hawaii, said he believed the infection existed among rats in a cane field and that 100,000 packages of rat poison had been placed in the vicinity.

ADAMS MAKES PUBLIC ATTACK ON NAVY SLASH

Wants Fleet in Pacific 15 Months More.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy, today fired a new broadside at the Bratton amendment providing for a 5 per cent appropriations cut for all government departments.

In letters to a half dozen congressmen Mr. Adams asserted another 5 per cent cut added to reductions already made would "cripple our national defense for years and seriously injure the morale of the service." He asserted the new cut would force a reduction of 10,150 enlisted men and marines, slow up all warship building and make necessary the removal from active commission of thirty-three combatant vessels.

Secretary Adams said that these reductions would leave "about 66 per cent of the number of British and 56 per cent of the number of Japanese ships fully commissioned and fully manned."

Cites Blow to Navy.

Included among the vessels which would be taken out of active commission would be two aircraft carriers, one of them either the huge Saratoga or the giant Lexington. Three battleships also would be added to the nonactive list. The total new vessels to be taken out would include three battleships, two carriers, four heavy cruisers [8 inch new], two light cruisers, thirteen destroyers, six submarines, two mine layers, and one of the new big navy dirigibles.

Total vessels to be kept out of commission due to all economies would aggregate eighty-two. Not more than ten battleships would be in operation.

Secretary Adams said the department already had decided to maintain the entire fleet on the west coast for another fifteen months.

The keeping of the fleet in Pacific waters was confirmed at the recent conference between President Hoover and President Elect Roosevelt.

Ranking admirals of the fleet have favored maintenance of the whole fleet on the west coast for some years past, but pressure from east coast navy yard congressmen had prevented that step. It would not be surprising if the current economy move, plus the gradual reduction of the size of the navy, would ultimately result in a decision to keep the fleet on the west coast permanently. Normally the scouting fleet of 8 inch gun cruisers operates on the Atlantic.

Features of Adams Letter.

Pertinent paragraphs of the Adams letter read:

"To make a 5 per cent cut with the least possible disaster, the navy would be obliged—

"1. To keep the fleet on the west coast; close certain east coast navy yards; slow down the work on ships now building, and modernizing at great loss of time and increase of cost. This would necessitate the discharge of about 4,500 civilians, and would save approximately $7,500,000.

"2. Restrict reserve activities, at a cut of about $1,500,000; stop now further regular navy enlistments, reducing navy enlisted personnel by 9,000 men by the end of the fiscal year 1934, resulting in a cut of approximately $5,000,000. This would result in putting out of active commission additional combatant ships."

Loot Los Angeles Sheriff's Contraband Liquor Room

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Breaking through the heavy brick wall of the sheriff's contraband liquor storeroom in the sub-basement of the county hall of justice, hijackers have looted the inclosure of more than sixty gallons of high proof alcohol and hundreds of gallons of assorted liquors, it was discovered today.

Oldest Native Born Woman Is Ninety

JUDGE OBJECTS TO PLANS FOR COURT CHANGES

In a letter to Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court Associate Judge Donald S. McKinlay objected yesterday to certain new rules for the court which are proposed by the chief justice and are being drawn up by the latter's assistant, Attorney Hiram T. Gilbert.

Judge McKinlay declared that he respected Attorney Gilbert's "conscientious effort in drafting the new rules," but suggested that a group of younger men, active in practice of the Municipal court, would be better fitted to make the few simple revisions of the rules that might be necessary.

Many of the proposals are repetitious and partake too much of "first reader" detail, Judge McKinlay asserted. The judge pointed out that the impelling idea behind the revisions appeared to be to place the Municipal court on the same plane with the state courts. That motive, concluded Judge McKinlay, is all right provided the Municipal court can retain its status as the "poor man's" court.

600 RESIDENTS OF SEA SWEPT TOWN REPORTED SAFE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Feb. 10.—Communication with Sandy Point, an island village off the Newfoundland coast, which was submerged by high seas yesterday, was restored late this afternoon. The operator reported that at 11 a. m. yesterday high tide swept over the breakwater. Water rose in many homes to a depth of two and three feet. Several fishing stores were swept away and some boats were damaged. People were rowing around parts of thesettlement in dories, he said. No lives were lost. The population of Sandy Point is about 600.

Plan Celebration

A birthday cake and a few old friends will help to celebrate the 90th anniversary today of the oldest native born Chicagoan still a resident of the city. She is Mrs. Susanna Hand, who first saw the light in a log cabin at Cass and Pearson streets in 1843, and she has lived since 1886 in her present home at 1526 North Clark street, a house built by her late husband, Mrs. Margaret Jung of 2054 Arthur avenue, her "younger" sister, 79, will be among those offering congratulations.

Her earliest memories include the Indians from the settlement on the north side, who frightened her when they came begging to the door. A singularly clear mind brought back crowding pictures of the old days, when she and Barbara Diversey, girls of 14, used to coax for brown sugar to eat, at the old Diversey brewery near Chicago avenue and Michigan, where the water tower stands now; of her father, Joe Seeger, selling water from the lake at 25 cents a bucket; of the boys who marched away to the civil war to music of the band led by the famous Johnny Hand, who was her husband's cousin.

She recalls Long John Wentworth as mayor, and his burning of the ramshackle district on the lake shore where dives fostered crime; vivid scenes during the fire of 1871 when she fled with her family to Bowmanville (the Lawrence and Western avenue district), and to Gross Point, west of Evanston.

Three sons now maintain the cigar business built up by their father, Peter Hand. A wooden Indian 70 years old, standing before their cigar store on North Clark street, is a familiar sight to north siders.

COUNTY BOARD TAKES PAINLESS BUDGET METHOD

Admits There Are Lots of Pay Rollers.

The county commissioners decided yesterday to have their 1933 budget made in a painless manner. They ordered County Auditor Lee Howard, Assistant Controller Michael J. O'Connor, and Thor E. Madsen, county efficiency expert, to prepare a budget for approval on Monday morning.

During the hearings yesterday O'Connor found himself in the position of refusing to accept a raise in his salary which the commissioners wished to give him. The discussion which followed was in the nature of a confessional—the commissioners assuring each other that they knew there were many "political pay rollers" employed in the various county offices.

"Would Save Pay Rollers."

To cut the pay roll drastically, several of the commissioners pointed out, would mean that those clerks who actually perform the work necessary to keep the county in operation would have to be discharged. "Even if there were cuts it would be the working employés who would have to be fired, since the pay rollers wouldn't lose their jobs," some of the commissioners remarked.

The hearing was opened when the commissioners began their efforts to go through a tentative budget. The first office was that of the controller, and the first motion was that of Commissioner Peter M. Kelly, who moved to make O'Connor's title "deputy controller," rather than "assistant controller and clerk of the board." The move was carried and the board then voted to increase O'Connor's salary from $4,249 to $6,000, since the position of deputy controller had been vacant for more than a year.

The attention of the commissioners then was directed to four jobs in the controller's office whose combined salaries amounted to $7,491 annually. Madsen said none of the holders contributed toward the work done in the office and suggested that all four be eliminated.

Opposes Pay Boost for Self.

"I'm old in the service," interrupted O'Connor, "and I am looking backward rather than forward. I would rather forego the increase in my own salary and keep the employés in my office.

"It is my duty to warn the board to make a conservative, legal budget, to decrease expenditures. It would not look well for me to have my own salary increased and then to thave four employés fired from my office."

At his statement there was a chorus of protest from the commissioners. One shouted: "We want to reward you for the work you have done for years and years while one man after another who knew nothing about your office held the job we now offer you." O'Connor shook his head and quieted the board with a gesture.

Plea for "Real Workers."

"It's true that maybe there are some employés kept in jobs by politics," he said. "But if there are to be eliminations the job holders still would be in their jobs. Those who would be eliminated would be the real workers who keep things going. The political job holders would stay right where they are now.

"Take Pierce Shannon in my office. He is a ward committeeman and a legislator. Sweitzer [who is county clerk and ex-officio controller] would never fire him. Shannon is down at Springfield right now getting a bill passed for this county board.

"And I know of state's attorney's employés getting six and seven thousand dollars a year who don't know what it's all about, and examiners of title in the recorder's office who never in their lives saw a title. Still I think that it wouldn't be well for me to get a salary increase while advocating a reduction in the budget. I'm going to refuse."

There was a silent moment when all the commissioners glanced at O'Connor and nodded in sympathy. Then Commissioner Dan Ryan arose, saying: "Well, we all know about this job business, I guess."

Offer to Prepare Budget.

At this point Madsen suggested that he, Howard and O'Connor prepare a tentative budget which would be presented to the commissioners for approval on Monday. There was a general sigh of relief and immediate acquiesence.

The three named as budget makers, all of whom were present at the meeting, promised to prepare a budget which would cut the $18,537,802 demands of county departments to within the $17,229,562 which can be expected as revenue on the basis of an 85 per cent collection of 1932 taxes. Last week the board figured on appropriating on a basis of only 60 per cent, which is regarded as the maximum of taxes that can be collected.

Sandino Orders Execution of Peace Pact Violators

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Augusto Sandino, the insurgent leader who concluded a peace pact with the government last week, has ordered the execution of two of his officers for failure to conform to that pact, the newspaper La Noticias said today.

Son Slays Father to Protect Mother

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Parents Quarrel

Jacob Atkins, 50 years old, owner of a restaurant at 1210 South Jefferson street, was shot and killed yesterday by his son, Harold, 17 years old, when the latter interceded in a quarrel between his father and mother in the rear of the restaurant. The youth, who weighs 230 pounds, told the Maxwell street police that he fired as his father was striking his mother, Mrs. Rose Atkins.

Harold fled after the shooting, but was arrested a short time later at the home of a friend. The elder Atkins died in the county hospital. He was shot four times in the body.

Harold, who was held by the police, told Lieut. Joseph Tieroth that his father had frequently abused his mother in domestic quarrels. An inquest will be held at the county morgue at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Dedicate New Federal Building Next Wednesday

The new $16,000,000 federal building at Canal and Van Buren streets will be dedicated at 10:30 o'clock next Wednesday morning. The ceremony will be featured by addresses by George Rossetter, president of the Association of Commerce; Mayor Cermak, Ferry K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury; Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder, and Walter Brown, postmaster general. The dedication ceremony will be followed by a luncheon at the Hotel La Salle. Government officials estimated that the building would be ready for service by Dec. 1.

JARECKI TO RAZE LAST BARRICADE OF TAX STRIKERS

130 Million Are to Be Ordered Paid.

75 to 80 per cent of them are protected by County court objections.

"And 99 per cent of the objections pending before Judge Jarecki base their claims upon undervaluation or omission of personal property in the assessment roll," he added.

"This ground of objection has been adjudicated against the objectors in a variety of cases. Four adverse opinions upon such cases have come from the United States Supreme court. Eight others have been returned by the Supreme and Appellate courts of this state. As I understand it, the blanket ruling of Judge Jarecki will be directed at this type of objection. Where there is real evidence in support of a plea for a reduction of taxes, a hearing will be given."

Total of Penalties.

Penalties of 1 per cent a month have been accumulating against unpaid taxes since the penalty dates. They now total 31 per cent on 1928 taxes, 21 per cent on 1929 taxes, and 8 per cent on 1930 taxes. Their total for the unpaid taxes of the three levies is now in excess of $25,000,000, of which more than $19,000,000 is due upon the properties for which Judge Jarecki will issue orders of sale next week.

While Judge Jarecki was preparing the move which will complete the wreckage of the machinery set up to fight tax collections through the courts, the struggle for control of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, prime mover in that litigation, continued yesterday.

The directors of the organization have split into two factions, with a majority of the board waging a bitter fight against James E. Bistor, chairman of the board, and John M. Pratt, the $20,000 a year executive secretary of the organization.

Field Workers Hold Meeting.

Field workers of the association held a stormy meeting yesterday behind locked doors in the Palmer house, at which the majority directors were scheduled to present their views in preparation for a mass meeting of the 38,000 members of the association. The mass meeting is scheduled for Tuesday in the Coliseum.

Boos, hisses and catcalls were heard inside the hall at the six hour meeting yesterday. Both sides refused to comment when they emerged. But Lee Lesser, one of the directors opposed to Pratt and Bistor, said as he left the session:

"There will be no meeting at the Coliseum. If there is there will be bloodshed and riots."

BRITAIN'S DEBT ENVOY MAY SAIL FOR U. S. TUESDAY

Will Get Instructions on Program Monday.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, is expected to finish his talks with the British cabinet and receive final instructions on this nation's program for war debts in time to permit him to sail on Tuesday and race to Washington, D. C., to resume negotiations with President Elect Roosevelt. Sir Ronald may arrive in Washington only a day after Mr. Roosevelt's return from the south.

The ambassador held another three hour session with the "big five" cabinet committee on war debts today. Another conference is fixed for Monday morning. A special meeting of the full ministry has been called for Monday afternoon, at which time Sir Ronald will be in attendance to receive his final instructions on Britain's policy.

No Experts Assigned.

So far no financial experts have been assigned to accompany the ambassador on his return trip. It is believed his orders will be to open negotiations with Secretary of State Stimson at once. As soon as he needs experts he will send for them and they will be ordered to Washington.

When these talks between the ambassador, the secretary of state, and possibly Mr. Roosevelt have reached such a point that it is evident an agreement is in sight Prime Minister MacDonald is expected to make the trip to Washington to conclude an agreement with the new President.

So far the closest silence has been preserved about the British ideas of a debt settlement, but well informed sources state that the government favors payment of a lump sum in final settlement, which would be much less than the total capitalized value of the debt at the moment.

Seek Economic Tieup.

It is also believed that the British will seek to tie up with a debt settlement various other world political and economic questions, such as armaments and tariffs, but that they are still stubborn about returning to the gold standard was indicated by MacDonald's announcement yesterday that the nation will not return to gold "under the present circumstances."

STIMSON URGES ARMS EMBARGO AS U. S. WEAPON

Easy to Decide Who's Aggressor, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Use of the arms embargo as an international weapon to bring about peace is the latest idea of Secretary of State Stimson, as revealed in a confidential memorandum submitted to the house foreign affairs committee yesterday and disclosed today.

Testifying in connection with the committee's consideration of a resolution empowering the President to declare an embargo on arms shipments to foreign nations, the secretary of state stated his belief that proper use of the arms embargo would add a new force to his program for dissuading nations from war. He made it clear that he regards the employment of such an embargo as a step in keeping with his stand for the development of the machinery of consultation, for the application of moral pressure, and for the nonrecognition of the conquests of war.

Easier to Pick Aggressor.

Mr. Stimson's memorandum indicated that he thought it both proper and wise for the United States to participate in a general arms embargo against an aggressor nation.

He argued that the modern development of means of investigation and modern methods of publicity are such that it is a practical matter for the world to determine the aggressor in the case of hostilities. To support this assertion the secretary made what were taken to be diplomatic references to the league's decisions in the Manchurian controversy and the dispute between Peru and Colombia over the Amazonian port of Leticia.

The memorandum argued that it is no longer possible for nations to be neutral in the commonly accepted sense, and that the rule of impartiality in supplying arms is open to valid criticism.

Would Follow League.

Should the league or any other group of important powers decide upon an arms embargo against an aggressor state, Mr. Stimson declared, it would be morally incumbent upon the United States to join in in order to "preserve our national dignity and standing as a peaceful nation."

In his memorandum the secretary of state asserted that those who thought the embargo resolution promised danger to American neutrality and possible involvement in trouble based their discussion on "almost medieval conditions which modern experience and realities have almost wholly replaced."

BULLITT SAILS FOR U. S.; ENDS "PRIVATE VISIT"

CHERBOURG, France, Feb. 10.—(AP)—William C. Bullitt, who has frequently denied reports that he was in Europe as the emissary of President Elect Roosevelt, embarked for the United States today on the liner Europa.

Mr. Bullitt said he had made his trip to Europe entirely as a private visitor and that he had called on friends just as he had done in previous years.

"I did not come on any official mission whatever," he asserted, adding that he was returning home "entirely tranquil."

U. S. Arrests Three Accused of Lindbergh Plot

Raymond Harvey (left) and Joe Bryant, arrested at Roanoke, Va., on charge of attempting to extort money from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on threat of harm to infant son. [Associated Press Photo.]

U. S. HOLDS THREE IN NEW LINDBERGH KIDNAPING PLOT

Bonds of Men $25,000; Woman's $5,000.

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—United States authorities today assumed charge of the investigation growing out of the arrest here yesterday of two young men and a woman in connection with an attempt to extort $17,000 from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. At first $50,000 was demanded, but this was scaled down to $17,000.

Joe Bryant, 19 year old son of a laborer, and Norman Harvey, 26, a farmer's son, continued to protest their innocence of the plot as they were formally charged with violating the federal conspiracy statute and a new section of the federal criminal code entitled "mailing threatening communications."

Woman Expected to Post Bond.

The youths were held in default of $25,000 bail each after being arraigned before United States Commissioner Charles D. Fox Jr. Bail of $5,000 for Harvey's wife, Ethel, who was arrested with him, was furnished and she was released.

Commissioner Fox set Monday for a hearing of the charges. Neither youth had retained counsel, but expressed a desire to do so. Meanwhile John N. Keith, special agent of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, was on his way to Roanoke to work with Agent T. N. Stapleton.

Keith was ordered here after J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau, talked with Supt. J. L. Manning of the Roanoke police by telephone and was told that the police would welcome further assistance.

No Startling Clews.

Search of a three room shack, where Norman Harvey and his wife lived, failed to disclose any startling clews. Agent Stapleton searched the Harvey and Bryant homes in the hope that some of the letters received by the would-be extortionists from Roanoke police posing as representatives of Col. Lindbergh might be found.

The hunt yielded some specimens of handwriting and pieces of stationery at the Harvey shack, but authorities attached little importance to them. No stationery of the character used in the correspondence which brought about the arrests was discovered.

Harvey and Bryant were arrested just after Bryant left a Roanoke bank with what they believed was a $17,000 packet of bills. Bryant presented a check drawn for that amount and was handed a package containing paper. Detectives trailed him until he joined Harvey a short distance from the bank and made the arrests.

Bryant and Harvey said Bryant accidentally discovered the check hidden in a stump. Both youths had been living within half a mile of this stump, which was fixed as the point of contact in the two extortion letters received by Col. Lindbergh.

DIES IN STREET CAR.

An Uneasy Conscience Brings City $450 Cash

The city's corporate fund was enriched yesterday by $450 because some one's conscience was disturbed. City Treasurer James A. Kearns reported he had received by mail an envelope containing four $100, one $20 and three $10 bills. Attached to the money was the notation, "Conscience fund." The treasurer credited the corporate fund with the amount.

LISTS DAUGHTER OF ROOSEVELT FOR RADIO TALKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 10.—[Special.]—The services of Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, daughter of President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, are offered for radio programs "consistent with her public position" in a letter sent out by the firm of Bruce Quisenberry, Inc., a management agency of 122 East 42d street, it was learned today.

The letter reads in part as follows:

"I inclose herewith a description of some of the artists we handle, giving a brief account of their qualifications, type of work, etc.

"In addition to these we also take charge of the radio activities of the following oustanding personalities who are undoubtedly so well known to you that any further description is unnecessary. Among these are:

"Will Rogers.

"Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, the daughter of the President elect. Mrs. Dall has a charming voice and most engaging personality. She is willing to appear on any commercial program sponsoring a product consistent with her public position.

"Dr. Rockwell, with a new bag of anecdotes."

George Comtois, whose name was signed to the letter, vouched for the fact that his firm is in charge of Mrs. Dall's prospective radio contracts. Her radio appearances, he indicated, would probably be in connection with her work as associate editor of the publication Babies—Just Babies.

Mrs. Dall said through a secretary that the statement in the letter was correct, but no contracts had been signed.

MILLION FRAUD CHARGED; INDICT TEN MERCHANTS

Use Elkins Act Against Commission Men.

Ten commission merchants and companies were indicted yesterday in the federal court on charges of defrauding the Wabash railway of approximately one million dollars through false claims on damaged goods. Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, before whom the indictments were returned, fixed bond at $5,000 in each case.

Assistant United States District Attorney Benjamin A. Landis said that the defendants inflated the price actually received for the good produce, and reported a low sales price on the alleged large number of damaged packages. The difference between the low price and the alleged average price on the good merchandise formed a basis for the fraudulent claims, the prosecutor said.

Indictments were returned against the following: Gust and Alex Relias, 14 South Water market; William Shapiro, as an individual and as head of Shapiro Brothers, 41 South Water Market; Lee W. Wolfe and the company of which he is president, Northern Fruit and Produce company; L. W. Christensen, president of the company bearing his name at 1421 Solon street; Abe Rafelson and his company at 39 South Water Market; and Leo Feinstein, 1425 South Racine avenue.

Violation of Elkins Act.

The specific changes in the indictments are that the defendants violated the Elkins act, which forbids persons or corporations from receiving, soliciting or accepting rebates on interstate shipments.

Two of the greatest offenders, Prosecutor Landis said, were Gust and Alex Relias and William Shapiro. The Relias brothers filed false claims for $160,000 in two years and were allowed $145,000, the prosecutor said. Shapiro, according to government agents, received $140,000 on false claims for $170,000 during the same period of time.

The indictments are the result of an investigation by the interstate commerce commission on complaints filed by shippers throughout the country. The defendants, if found guilty, face a possible maximum sentence of two years in the penitentiary and a fine of from $1,000 to $20,000 each.

Average Damage $50.

A statement issued by United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green said: "Claims of which we have record are in excess of $1,000 on individual cars and there are innumerable claims of $700 and $800 a car. The average actual damage is probably not more than $50 per car.

"The investigation in this city is not finished. The railroads generally have been lax and negligent in paying these claims and in some instances there is evidence of collusion between these shippers and railroad employés."

AUTO PLANTS AT DETROIT CLOSED STILL BY STRIKE

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—There was but little change today in the strike situation at both Briggs Manufacturing company and Hudson Motor Car plants. Squads of policemen were sent early today to the Hudson body building plant to clear away picketers so that employés who wished to return to the jobs they abandoned Tuesday could do so unmolested. The working force, however, was far from normal.

As a result the 3,000 workmen at the main plant have been put on half day schedule, which will be maintained until bodies are produced in suitable numbers, according to an official announcement.

At the Mack or Highland Park plants of the Briggs Manufacturing company there was no activity by strikers. Less than a dozen picketers were on duty at the Mack plant and none whatever at the Highland Park factory.

No information is forthcoming as to when the Ford Motor company will be able to resume production of the new models, which were announced today and will be shown by dealers tomorrow. By closing the Briggs plant several other automobile companies were seriously affected and put out of work not less than 100,000 men. The Briggs concern makes bodies for not only the Ford Motor company, but also for Chrysler, De Soto, Dodge, Plymouth, and Rockne, and part of the bodies for the Essex.

U. S. HUNTS WILD POTATO 23 YRS.; COSTS $250,000

Texan Demands Relief for Burdened Taxpayer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—A twenty-three year quest for the wild potato, which saw "long haired" scientists of the department of agriculture searching Mexico and South America for the earliest forbears of the spud, was brought to light in the house of representatives by Representative Thomas L. Blanton [Dem., Tex.].

Mr. Blanton thought twenty-three years was long enough to spend money searching for wild potatoes; especially now that the taxpayers of the country are beginning to break under the strain of financing such expeditions.

Real Scientist Has No Hair.

"I call attention to these long haired scientists," he told the house—"and by the way do you catch the significance of that phrase 'long haired'? The real scientist has no hair at all, but the so-called scientists, these potato scientists, if you please, have long hair."

"I call attention to the fact that they have spent $250,000 since 1910 breeding potatoes." Here he quoted a department of agriculture letter explaining the expenditure. It read:

"Our explorers have been sent into Mexico and South America in a search for the wild ancestor of the potato, in the hope that from it could be obtained some original disease resistant qualities which have been lost in its countless generations of domestic descendants."

"What right has the department of agriculture to send these long haired scientists to the wilds of Mexico and South America to hunt up the original wild potato in this time of depression?" demanded Mr. Blanton. "Spending thousands of dollars! It ought to be stopped!"

Look After the Golfer.

Mr. Blanton called the house's attention also to the manner in which the department of agriculture looks after the golfer. He quoted an account of this activity written by one of the department's special feature writers:

"Did you, Mr. Golfer, know that the course over which you play has been vastly improved by the earnest efforts of a group of scientists working for the United States department of agriculture?" read the account. "Did you know that over in Arlington county, on a little plot of ground owned by the government, turf and grass problems are being worked out that may result in ridding golf courses of those pests that infest them during warm months?

"Or did you know that more than $40,000 a year is being spent in research work in the art of turf growing?

"Do the farmers want $40,000 of their hard earned tax money spent each year by these long haired scientists in the department of agriculture developing special turf greens for the golf courses of America?"

Senate Group Reverses Self After Voting Dry Fund Slash

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Pushing senate rules to the limit, drys on the appropriations committee today overrode yesterday's subcommittee action and rejected the subcommittee's 10 per cent cut in the $8,440,000 appropriation for prohibition enforcement, voted by the house.

Despite pains to keep the roll call secret, it was learned that the vote was 12 to 9, and that Senator Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.], appropriations committee chairman and an ardent dry, had taken advantage of a technicality in the senate rules to insure a dry victory.

The appropriation for the prohibition bureau comes in the department of justice supply bill, and the justice department is linked with the department of state, commerce, and labor in a single measure.

Drys Seize Upon Rule.

Senate rules provide that "three members of the committee on foreign relations, to be selected by said committee, shall be ex officio members of the committee on appropriations, to serve on said committee when the items pertaining to the diplomatic and consular service are being considered by the committee on appropriations in the bill making appropriations for the departments of state and justice."

Scouting anxiously for support, Chairman Hale hit upon this rule and used it to bring in Senators William E. Borah [Rad., Idaho] and Claude A. Swanson [Dem., Va.], respectively chairman and ranking Democratic member of the foreign relations committee. Both are drys, Senator Borah being a particularly ardent prohibitionist.

Despite the seeming provision that the foreign relations members should have a voice only concerning the diplomatic and consular service, the votes of both Senators Borah and Swanson were cast against the 10 per cent cut in the fund for dry enforcement.

Balks at Wire Tapping.

When it came to wire tapping, however, Senator Borah refused to go along. The prohibition against wire tapping, put in by the house, was kept in the bill on a 10 to 10 tie vote. The subcommittee recommendation that dry agents be permitted to buy, but not drink, liquor for evidence was adopted.

An amendment proposed by Senator Copeland to cut the dry appropriation to $5,000,000 was overwhelmingly rejected.

As reported out the bill carries $102,610,736, divided as follows:

State department, $12,207,661; justice department, $41,154,050; commerce department, $36,602,415; labor department, $12,646,610.

MURDER INQUEST CONTINUED.

An inquest into the death of William Mallerich, 38 years old, who was fatally shot two weeks ago by a prowler whom he surprised in the act of stealing light fuses from the basement of his home at 2045 Ogden avenue, was continued yesterday when police reported that they had found no trace of the killer.

PRICES OF SOME FOODS BOOSTED BY COLD WAVE

But Many Are Still Held at Low Levels.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Shoppers for groceries and meats will be rewarded today by using more care than usual in the scrutiny of values. Tricks of the weather man not only have served to boost the prices of some foods, but have prevented the normal midweek purchases and a full day of heavy buying for the home pantry shelves is anticipated by storekeepers.

Many stores have added a few cents a pound to their prices on many of the out of season vegetables that came long distances from growing areas hit by the cold snap this week.

Peas, new cabbage, celery and radishes are in this group, while lettuce and carrots of good quality are still selling at the low prices that have prevailed in recent weeks. Tomatoes from the hothouse at 15 cents a pound are economically priced.

Butter and Eggs Higher.

Butter and eggs, both fresh from the country, are only 1 to 2 cents higher than a week ago, still low enough to be bargains. Butter is selling at 21 cents a pound. Sugar is on sale at less than 5 cents a pound in cloth sacks.

Fine grades of flour are low in price, some stores offering their own brands at special low figures. Baking powders and pancake flours, with sirups in cans, are priced attractively in many stores today in anticipation of enhanced breakfast appetites.

In the field of canned foods is an offering of a wide assortment of vegetables in glass jars. Peas, green beans, wax beans, and spinach are being sold as low as 25 cents for two 16 ounce glass jars.

Other canned goods also are lower this week than a month ago, included in the list being pineapple, sauerkraut, applesauce and some of the better grades of salmon.

A wide variety of desserts are being offered in the groceries today, not only the fresh cakes, cookies, and pies, but prepared pie crust and gelatin desserts and puddings ready for the adding of water or milk.

Few increases in prices are to be found in the citrus fruits, despite unfavorable weather for transporting them from the south or west coasts to Chicago stores. More wholesale purchases were made by storekeepers yesterday morning in two hours than all day Thursday, when subzero temperatures almost stopped trading.

The thin skinned tangerines from Florida and Alabama are priced temptingly today. They will be gone in another few weeks. They are priced at the lowest for any February in the history of the citrus market in Chicago.

Strawberries arrived in carload lots at the wholesale markets yesterday and were moved into the stores where they will be selling today as low as 10 cents a pint box, the lowest on record at this season of the year.

Ham at 9 Cents a Pound.

Many families will take advantage of the cold weather to increase their meat orders today. Fine hams are offered by one large group of stores at 9 cents a pound, while beef and lamb roasts are an outstanding value, ranging in price from the pot roasts at 6 to 9 cents a pound up to the boneless rib roasts and loins at 14 to 21 cents a pound.

Poultry of fine quality also is on the bargain counter for the Sunday dinner. Ducks are 19 cents and fine chickens 17 cents a pound. With the roasts or poultry may be found Jonathan apples at 4 pounds for 17 cents and Delicious apples as low as 5 pounds for 23 cents.

An assortment of "soup greens," including small amounts of peas, spinach, beans, carrots, turnips, and a couple of onions, may be bought for 7 to 15 cents for an amount ample for a family of five.

A government report issued yesterday foretold heavy production of foodstuffs in the nation during 1933. Based upon crop reports from large producing areas, it is found that production of milk, cream, butter, and cheese will continue at a high rate, as well as nearly all tree fruits, potatoes, and the perishable vegetables. More poultry and eggs will be produced this year than in 1932, the federal report says.

AIN'T IT GRAND TO BE BUGHOUSE? ASKS W. A. WHITE

Emporia, Kas., Feb. 10.—(AP)—William Allen White, Emporia newspaper editor and author, wrote today on his 65th birthday that his life motto had been "Ain't it grand to be bughouse?"

Mr. White explained he had adopted the motto after reading it "many years ago at Coney Island" on a banner stretched across the street.

"There is no insanity so devastating in man's life as utter sanity," he said. "It will get him much quicker than whisky. Logic is an addiction that drives men into acute melancholia and makes dumb bunnies of its devotees."

The editor said that he used to be afraid of the sixties, but had decided that "the middle sixties are good, so far as I can tell. . . . The thing I cannot understand about life is that I am old, or that any of those whom I have known all of these 65 years are old."

ROOSEVELT AND SMITH INVITED TO CONVENTION

President Elect Roosevelt and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith have been invited by Supt. William J. Bogan to be guests of the convention of the National Education association in the Stevens hotel on July 4, it was announced yesterday.

Educators from all parts of the country, as well as representatives of the teaching profession in Hawaii, the Philippines, and Porto Rico, will attend the convention.

Among the leaders at the convention will be Joseph Rossier of the State University of West Virginia, president of the association; Francis G. Blair, superintendent of public instruction in Illinois; Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools at Atlanta, Ga., and William John Cooper, United States commissioner of education.

The principal topic for discussion has been set forth as "The Adjustment of Schools for Efficiency Through Economy."

NEXT PRESIDENT TAKES 30 FISH; LOSES BIG ONE

James M. Cox Mentioned for Cabinet Post.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The first real fish story from the Roosevelt yachting cruise came in here tonight and it reported that the President elect "lost one as big as a whale."

The message from the Nourmahal, the yacht of Vincent Astor, said:

"The President elect had a big day. Took about thirty small fish—several large ones—lost one as big as a whale."

Farley in Conferences.

James A. Farley, national chairman, was continuing conferences at the temporary headquarters of the Democrats in the Miami-Biltmore hotel here.

A new name was woven into the fabric of the President elect's official family today—James M. Cox of Ohio, Democratic candidate for President in 1920.

Farley called today at the home of Mr. Cox here. Consequently, the Roosevelt cabinet makers began talking Cox for war secretary or ambassador to London or Paris. Cox was the presidential nominee in 1920 when Franklin D. Roosevelt was candidate for Vice President and as an old running mate he is expected to receive high consideration from Mr. Roosevelt.

John Curry Is Caller.

Farley also talked today with John F. Curry, the head of Tammany, but it was stated by both that no business was transacted.

Robert Gore of Chicago, who is host of the Democratic leaders stationed here, and others of the party traveled by airplane to Havana and back today. An informal luncheon was given there at which the Mayor of Havana spoke in reply to Gore.

No Buyers for $5,000,000 Building; Builders Use It

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Cables and Wireless, Ltd., will occupy their new $5,000,000 building on the Thames embankment after all. The building, one of London's new landmarks, has been for sale ever since it was completed a year ago. Last March the depression had so lowered the revenue of an associated company that Cables and Wireless had decided to sell the building and continue in its old offices, but no buyer was forthcoming.

Chicago Dedicates Week-end to the Memory of Lincoln

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

From the animated youngsters who are just learning the greatness of Abraham Lincoln to the tottering old men who carried arms in civil war days when he was commander in chief, Chicago is dedicating this week-end to the memory of the Great Emancipator. Sunday, Feb. 12, marks the 124th anniversary of his birth.

Yesterday brought programs in schools of the city and suburbs commemorating the life and deeds of Lincoln. Patriotic airs were played, the immortal Gettysburg address was repeated, and R. O. T. C. units marched in his honor. Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan admonished his 550,000 wards that "all children of the nation and all adults should keep fresh in their minds the doctrines of charity as exemplified in the life and works of Abraham Lincoln."

Numerous Events Today.

Today the city will honor Lincoln at numerous events. At the noon luncheon of the Covenant club Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Illinois Supreme court will deliver the address at the annual celebration, under auspices of the forum committee.

Both local and visiting students of history will join the crowd that annually wends its way to the Lincoln collection in the Chicago Historical Society building at North avenue and Clark street. There the room in which Lincoln died is faithfully reproduced, with the original furniture. There may be seen also his tall black hat, his shawl, his umbrella, and his favorite sitting room of the home at Springfield.

This noon at the Pearson hotel Col. Raymond Warren, author of "The Prairie President," "Abraham Lincoln's Kentucky Boyhood," and youngest of the Lincoln authors, is scheduled to meet Mrs. Eleanor Gridley, 86, thought to be the oldest chronicler of Lincoln and his times in the country. Mrs. Gridley will speak at 1 o'clock at the Lincoln exhibit now current in the hotel and will give reminiscences of the founding of the Republican party. The public is invited.

All school children are eligible to attend the free moving pictures of Lincoln's life to be shown this morning in the Field museum in the James Simpson theater there. One showing will begin at 10 o'clock and another at 11, and no tickets are required. "The Call to Arms" and "My Father" are the two pictures.

South side veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic will hold services tomorrow morning in the Calvary Methodist church at 78th and Morgan streets, in observance of Lincoln's birthday. The Rev. O. C. Jones will conduct the service. A south side agency has donated the use of automobiles to transport the veterans to the church.

Prize Easy to Be Read.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock Mrs. Harvey Fox, president of the Chicago Woman's club, will preside at the annual Lincoln birthday good will meeting in the club theater, 72 East 11th street. James Geary of 839 West 59th street, of Englewood High school, winner of the Lincoln good will essay contest under auspices of the club, will read his prize entry.

Judge Charles S. Cutting will speak and brief talks will be made by Supt. Bogan, Dr. Robert Kelly, president of Loyola university; Hugo F. Simon, German consul general; Dr. Charles E. Shulman, and others.

There will be no afternoon delivery of mail on Monday, it was announced yesterday by Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder.

ASKS COURT BAN ON MEDICAL CARE BY CORPORATION

Dr. J. Frank Hubert, 6858 South Halsted street, a physician who has practiced in Chicago for nearly fifty years, filed a bill for injunction yesterday in the Circuit court seeking to stop the United Medical Service, Inc., 25 East Jackson boulevard, from engaging in the corporate practice of medicine and dentistry.

The petition, filed by Attorney Frank J. Link, charges that "the practice of medicine and dentistry is not lawful business in which a corporation may be engaged, and as the defendant cannot be engaged in the practice of medicine or dentistry directly, it cannot do so indirectly by exploiting physicians and dentists who might lack the initiative and ability to build up a practice of their own and who, by being placed in the class of hired servants lose all individuality and all feeling of responsibility toward their profession and toward the public at large."

Dr. Joseph G. Berkovitz, former head of the Public Health institute, is head of the medical service corporation, which has twenty salaried doctors in attendance in its offices.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 21; recovered, 34; stripped, 3 [from police records for the twenty-four hour period ending at midnight Thursday]. There were no court cases.

Arraign Owner of Bar Where Killing Occurred

Ted [Spider] Meyers, at whose speakeasy at 2042 North Clark street, William J. O'Brien, Norwood Park roadhouse owner, was fatally shot, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on a charge of violating the prohibition law. The case was continued until today after a bond of $1,000 was set for Meyers. Similar charges against Ralph Clausen, a waiter, and Harry Ross, doorman at the speakeasy, also were continued until today. Bail of $500 each was fixed for the employés.

OUTLINES RISE OF LAYMEN IN RELIGIOUS FIELD

Council Leader Stresses Educational Function.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

While pastors preached from Protestant pulpits, laymen in the pews one day began wondering what the preaching was all about. The way toward finding out seemed blocked. But the laymen discovered that their pastors held a corner in religious training and decided they must break it.

Such, according to Dr. Hugh S. Magill, is a short history of the beginnings of two Sunday school organizations which ten years ago merged into the International Council of Religious Education now holding its annual nine day convention at the Hotel La Salle. The meeting will continue until next Tuesday. Last night the council held a "decade dinner" in honor of Dr. Magill, who is general secretary of the council. Russell Colgate, of New York, president of the council, was toastmaster.

A Laymen's Movement.

Dr. Magill was asked yesterday afternoon why the educational council he heads does not merge with the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. He replied by pointing out the fact that the educational council began as a layman's movement, whereas the federal council of churches emphasizes the cooperative relationships of the clerical or ecclesiastical aspects of its constituent churches.

Dr. Magill said, however, that "great, inclusive federation movements are in the making, but thus far, as specialists in the religious education field, we do not wish to risk being impeded in our work by the ecclesiastical temper."

While the educational programs of the churches invade all fields of church work, Dr. Magill pointed out, the ecclesiastical leaders were slow to see the need of departments of religious education. The federal council, which still retains its clerical emphasis, he said, has only slightly more than half the number of constituent denominations represented in the educational council. The council represents 42 denominations.

An Educational Force.

"The church has yet to get a vision of its whole task," Dr. Magill declared as he pointed to the rise of the two Sunday school associations that joined to form the council. "But the vision is growing."

There is a growing consciousness of the wholeness of the churches' task. As in the field of religious education, laymen have lately invaded the field of missions. Much will come from their work in that field. But the church is more than preaching, more than social service. It is primarily an educational force. When we have helped the church to see its task fully, then this council will make its findings directly available to some great plenary federation, which will be of the nature of the federal council.

Dr. Magill said that, as in the secular field, educational leadership in the churches must be reserved for specialists. He hinted that the clerical mind is not altogether comfortable in the presence of such specialists, and that some resentment against the rise of lay educational leadership has been displayed by pastors who have felt the pulpit should be the official point of religious teaching.

Founders of Association.

"The laity were first to see the spread of the educational task of the churches," said Dr. Magill. "Pastors tended toward thinking their preaching, together with missions and evangelism, was sufficient to meet the task. With the rise of the Sunday schools, the educational work was advanced by such laymen as the late John Wanamaker, H. J. Heinz, and the late B. F. Jacobs of Chicago. These laymen and many others founded the International Sunday School association.

"It was Mr. Jacobs' dream to see every Sunday school pupil in the world studying the same lesson and learning the same 'golden text' at the same hour each Sunday morning."

The old "international series" of lessons which came from the International association, were first published by private printing concerns, Dr. Magill explained. However, the great favor with which these lessons were received by Sunday school superintendents and teachers, who invariably were laymen, brought forth the question of why the various denominational publishing houses should not have this work.

Create Educational Boards.

"But the denominations had not yet formed departments of religious education," said Dr. Magill. "Because of that fact the denominations had no educational experts to edit the lessons or to plan curricula. They were forced, one by one, to create educational boards. Out of the cooperation of those boards the Sunday School council of the Evangelical denominations was formed."

In 1922 the Sunday School council and the International Sunday School association merged to form the present council. Dr. Magill, a layman, who had been a high official in the National Education association, became its leader. He said that from the outset he had regarded religious education as being "related to every function and aspect of the churches' life."

This relationship, he added, includes the fields of evangelism, missions, and social service, and "is the means through which the local church may develop its members into a trained and working body of Christian people."

TWO WITNESSES FORCED TO TALK; CONVICT BANDITS

Joseph Daniels, 30 years old, and Harry Danford, 32, who have long police records as bandits, were sentenced to serve one year to life in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy on charges of robbery. The conviction was obtained by the state despite the antagonistic attitude of the complaining witnesses, one of whom was brought to court in a patrol wagon.

The case grew out of the robbery on Dec. 19 of the alleged handbook operated by Rudolph Singer in room 436 of the Saratoga hotel.

The state charged that Daniels and Danford entered the room with pistols drawn and robbed the manager, Albert Kaufman; a hotel bellboy, Samuel Lamott, and several customers. Notified by a buzzer connected with the lobby, Singer, who was on the first floor, summoned two policemen. The police arrived before the bandits had left the room and were locked out while preparations for their entrance were made.

Daniels and Danford, according to Assistant State's Attorneys John Leonard Murphy and Thomas Dillon, threw away their pistols and sought to square matters by giving back the money. The victims could not be placated, however, and insisted on the arrest of Daniels and Danford. The attitude of the witnesses changed, however, before the case was called for trial.

Lamott refused to obey the state subpoena and was brought to court in a patrol wagon. Once on the stand, however, he told his original story of the robbery. Kaufman, in direct contradiction of his testimony before the grand jury, said he could not be sure of the identity of the bandits.

The state asked that a bench warrant be issued charging the witness with perjury. Judge Fardy told the prosecutors to present the case to the grand jury. Prosecutors Murphy and Dillon announced that they would confer with State's Attorney Courtney before proceeding against Kaufman.

After hearing the testimony of Lamott and the arresting policemen Judge Fardy, who heard the case without a jury, found the defendants guilty.

CRIMINAL COURT.

William McDaniels, conspiracy, sentenced to 1 to 5 years in penitentiary by Judge John Prystalski.

Theodore Thompson, robbery, 1 to 20 years in penitentiary; Richard Paul and Ray Murphy, assault to rob, one year each in county jail by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Charles Gjondla and Alfred Doral, robbery, and Fred Bala, robbery, 1 to 20 years each in Pontiac reformatory; John Karosiak, larceny, to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac; George Brennan and Walter Jensen, robbery, to 1 to 20 years in penitentiary; Ernest Kennedy, Herman Jones and Julius Thurman, robbery, year to life in penitentiary; Fred Karniffel, bigamy, 1 to 5 years in penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

EIGHT FACE HEARING TODAY ON CHARGE OF 'SACRIFICE' MURDER

Inez, Ky., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Authorities completed arrangements tonight for a court hearing of eight members of a cult accused of "sacrificing" an aged woman, anticipating a large crowd.

The hearing is scheduled for tomorrow in a tiny brick courthouse before Martin county Judge T. J. Hardin. The chambers accommodate only 25 or 30 persons.

County Attorney Jasper Preece said he will introduce evidence designed to show John Mills, 32, cult leader, choked his mother to death as a "sacrifice" while seven others watched—chanting and praying.

One of those held, Blaine McGinnis, son-in-law of the victim, Mrs. Lucinda Mills, 72, was quoted by Preece as saying that "when I saw John choking his mother to death I tried to grab his arm, but I could not. I don't know how to explain it. I couldn't move. I just stood there and watched John choke Aunt Lucinda. Even when John told Ballard Mills [a nephew] to get him a chain, I couldn't do nothing."

Chains that had shackled John to his cell door when he became violent several days ago have been removed. He refuses to discuss the crime. Other cult members said he has told them he was directed to strangle his mother by a "divine command."

MAIL TAX BILLS FOR NEW TRIER AND OAK PARK

Residents of Oak Park and of New Trier may expect today to receive 1931 tax bills sent out by their local township collectors. The tax boots have been in the hands of the collectors since Monday evening and the first batches of the new bills were mailed out in both townships last evening.

Meanwhile the county treasurer has been distributing the tax books to the other twenty-eight country township collectors, who are given an opportunity to collect the country town taxes while the treasurer is preparing and dispatching the city town bills. Oak Park and New Trier books were given out first this year because these two collectors had shown the largest percentage of collections from their districts from 1930 taxes. The other towns will begin to receive their 1931 bills within a few days. The penalty date for the first installment is March 1.

The country town collectors will be allowed to keep the 1931 tax books until March 21

SHIFT INSULL PLOT CHARGES TO THIRD JUDGE

Carpenter Decides to Take Vacation.

The task of determining the merit of Samuel A. Ettelson's charges that the federal court receivership of the Insull holding and investment companies was "framed" by Samuel Insull and his bankers, will fall to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, it was learned last night.

Judge Wilkerson will be the third member of the United States District bench to assume jurisdiction in the Insull case since Mr. Ettelson brought his charges three weeks ago. The charges are scheduled for a court airing next Tuesday.

Lindley Original Judge.

Jurisdiction over the Middle West Utilities company, Insull Utility Investments, Inc., Corporation Securities company and lesser insolvent units of the Insull system was originally held by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville.

Judge Lindley retained jurisdiction in the many months during which bankruptcy hearings were held and finally issued his famous order restraining the banks from selling collateral they were alleged to have taken illegally from Insull Utility Investments. The banks obtained a reversal of the order on an appeal to the United States Circuit court, but the reversal became inoperative when Judge Lindley adjudged Insull Utility Investments bankrupt.

Judge Lindley still held jurisdiction when Mr. Ettelson came to a meeting of the creditors of Insull Utility Investments on Jan. 17 before Garfield Charles, federal referee, made his frameup charges and blocked the election of Calvin Fentress as trustee.

Mr. Fentress had been acting as receiver of the company and Mr. Ettelson maintained that as such he was one of the parties to the alleged "frameup." The referee thereupon disqualified Mr. Fentress as trustee.

Transferred to Carpenter.

Sponsors of Mr. Fentress subsequently appealed the referee's finding to Judge Lindley. The judge declined to review the proceedings but announced that because of the press of business in his court at Danville he was transferring jurisdiction of all matters concerning Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities to Judge George A. Carpenter. Later he also relinquished control of Middle West Utilities.

Accordingly the matter of reviewing Referee Charles' decision came before Judge Carpenter on Feb. 3. Judge Carpenter announced that he would open up the entire case, summon the bankers named by Mr. Ettelson and conduct a full inquiry. "It is an interesting case and I may have to forego my vacation to hear it," he said.

Plans Two Months' Vacation.

But as he was leaving the federal building last evening the judge announced that he was leaving Chicago within a day or two to spend two months at Phoenix, Ariz. His calendar, including the Insull matters, would be taken over by Judge Wilkerson, he said.

It happens that another federal judge's name was inadvertently brought up at the original creditors' meeting before Referee Charles Mr. Ettleson was reading from a book on the Insull case, written by Walter Gresham, in which Mr. Gresham said that a certain federal judge had been asked to take jurisdiction of the Insull case and declined it.

"I am taking over Judge Carpenter's calendar, but I don't know yet what cases are on it," Judge Wilkerson said last night. "If the Insull case is on the calendar of course I'll hear it."

RESCUE PARTY IS FOUND SAFE AFTER TWO DAYS

Boy Ship Sought Has Returned.

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Ten persons aboard the thirty foot fishing schooner Saugtuck, who set out in search of a youth Wednesday night and were sought themselves when they did not return for two days, were found safe today at anchor off Middle Ground light.

The party included Mrs. Alexander Hauser, mother of Edward Connolly, 19, who disappeared in Long Island sound Wednesday night and since has returned safely. They were located by the pilot of an airplane, who reported the ship, commanded by Capt. John Mullhaley, covered with a heavy layer of ice, but could tell nothing of the condition of those aboard.

Associates feared they suffered severely from exposure and lack of food. The vessel was only lightly provisioned. Intense cold and rough seas have prevailed on Long Island sound.

Calles Gives Away Home Where He Wed Late Wife

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Gen. Calles, reputed "strong man" of the Mexican government and former president, has turned over his beautiful Santa Barbara hacienda to the agricultural department to be used as an experimental station. Since the death last November of his second wife, the general has never returned to the hacienda, which is 20 miles from Mexico City on the Puebla road. It was there that Calles married the former Leonor Llorente and it was there that they spent most of their brief wedded life.

Trial of Gilday Set for March 20

Daniel Gilday, reformer, and his wife when they appeared before Judge Philip Sullivan yesterday. Gilday's second trial for the shooting of Herman Knol was set for March 20. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Retrial Delayed

The second trial of Daniel L. Gilday, reformer and dry agitator, on a charge of assault to kill, was continued yesterday until March 20 by Judge Philip L. Sullivan. Gilday shot and seriously wounded Herman Knol, 18 years old, in a south side street on Nov. 29, 1931. The state charged that Gilday, who was intoxicated and staggering along the street, shot without reason when Knol came to his aid. Gilday was sentenced to serve 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary as the result of a previous trial. A new trial was ordered by the Supreme court.

DRY CONVICTION REVERSED; JUDGE GIVEN A REBUKE

Hold Carpenter Shouldn't Have Tried Case.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday reversed the conviction of a prohibition defendant by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter and ordered the case remanded for a new trial. The defendant, John McFadden, had been found guilty of maintaining a nuisance and fined $250. The appeal court held that Judge Carpenter, on the face of the evidence, had no right to try the case.

Walter James and Arthur Garner appeared as co-defendants with Mr. Fadden in Judge Carpenter's court and were found guilty of possession and sale of liquor at the Blue Bird inn at 8327 South Chicago avenue. McFadden was one of the operators of the inn, but the charge against him was maintaining a nuisance. James and Garner accepted sentences of 30 days each and fines of $50. McFadden appealed his sentence.

Quotes Excerpt from Record.

The opinion of the Appellate court, written by Presiding Judge Samuel Alschuler, set forth the following excerpt from the record of the trial:

"Defense Attorney Charles N. Goodenow—'I want to ask for the exclusion of the witnesses.'

"Judge Carpenter—'O, I am not so sure. I think I have one of your men convicted right here [indicating] after the evidence is in—if they all plead not guilty.'

"Goodenow—'If your honor please, I want to ask leave once more for the exclusion of the witnesses.'

"Judge Carpenter—'O, no. It is not necessary in this case.'"

"Goodenow—'Well, I will take an exception.'"

The opinion also quoted a statement by Judge Carpenter concerning some mysterious evidence.

"That is my opinion," Judge Carpenter said. "It came to me in confidence. I am not going to offer it as evidence or to the district attorney, but the defendant it relates to may be wanted for perjury because the letter comes from an authentic source."

"Assuming as we do," said the decision in which Judges Evan A. Evans and Will M. Sparks concurred, "that these colloquies indicated the judge's state of mind with reference to an unnamed one of the defendants, the judge ought not to have presided at the trial but should have sent the case to some other judge to whom the conclusively incriminating evidence had not in advance been thus exclusively confided. Without considering other questions discussed in brief or arguments we feel that in all fairness the judgment against appellant should not be allowed to stand. The case is reversed and remanded for trial."

The three defendants in the original hearing were indicted on Jan. 12, following a prohibition raid on the inn.

LUCK FAVORS 40 MAROONED BY THE SNOWSTORM

A report from Morris, Ill., yesterday revealed that forty persons had been marooned by snow and cold in a country schoolhouse from Tuesday until Thursday, but that by chance all needed supplies were at hand and no member of the party was any the worse for the experience.

Among those who were forced to take shelter in the school were a truck driver who had 3½ tons of coal, the driver of a second truck loaded with pies and bread, and a salted peanut salesman with a carload of samples. When the weather-bound forty emerged the coal had all been burned, the pies and bread consumed and the salesman had no samples.

Swallows 8½ Inch Fork; Removed by Operation

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 10.—(AP)—An 8½ inch table fork swallowed today by Miss Margaret Santell, 19, was removed four hours after in a surgical operation. An instrument which would have removed the fork through the throat could not be used because the tines pointed diagonally toward the heart, physicians said. They asserted Miss Santell's condition was good.

NEW STAY SAVES BAIN FROM JAIL UNTIL FEB. 28

Heated Session Held in Prystalski's Court.

John Bain, under sentence to serve one to five years for conspiracy in connection with the failure of the 12 Bain banks, yesterday was given until Feb. 28 to perfect his appeal to a higher court. An extension of time on the stay of mittimus, which was to have expired at midnight last night, was granted by Appellate Court Judge John M. O'Connor, who by a special arrangement heard the conspiracy case.

The appearance before Judge O'Connor followed a heated session in the Criminal court in which Chief Justice John Prystalski announced that he "washed his hands of the matter," and ordered the attorneys to go before the trial judge, J. Z. Gabriel, chief bailiff of the Criminal court, accompanied Defense Attorney Harry Olson to the Appellate court. He announced his intention of going to Bain's home and placing the banker under arrest if the extension was not granted.

Asks for Extension.

Attorney Olson first appeared before Judge Prystalski and asked for the extension. He also asked that Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber be forced to sign a bill of exceptions, which he had filed with the appellate court.

"Where's the defendant?" Prosecutor Raber inquired.

"He's ill," Attorney Olson said. "He's had the flu for four days."

"Every time this case comes up in court, Bain is ill and can't make an appearance," Prosecutor Raber complained. "I object to any further proceeding until the defendant is present."

"Mr. Raber is just trying to be captious," Attorney Olson told the court. "There's no reason to object to everything."

Explains His Refusal.

Prosecutor Raber explained his refusal to sign the bill of exceptions with the statement that "he didn't see how an 11,000 page transcript of testimony could be boiled down to 850 pages," the size of the bill of exceptions.

"This case is going to cost the taxpayers about $10,000," Raber said, "and I want to see that everything is right."

"Well, I'll bet you a new suit the higher courts will reverse this decision," Attorney Olson said.

"That's a bet," Prosecutor Raber agreed.

Judge Prystalski said that he was doubtful that he had jurisdiction to grant an extension on the stay of mittimus, and told the attorneys to consult with Judge O'Connor. Attorney Olson telephoned Judge O'Connor and reported that he said that he would grant a stay if he had jurisdiction.

Looks Up the Law.

Attorney Olson said that Judge O'Connor had said that he wished that Judge Prystalski would determine whether the Criminal court had jurisdiction. The hearing was continued and Judge Prystalski announced that he would look up the law.

When the hearing was reconvened, Judge Prystalski announced that a judge has a right to grant an additional stay if he desires to do so.

"This is Judge O'Connor's case," Judge Prystalski said. "He tried it. He can grant an extension on the stay if he wishes to do so." Attorney Olson, accompanied by Bailiff Gabriel, then went before Judge O'Connor, who granted the extension without comment.

Trial of Stevens Case Is Transferred

To Judge Sullivan

Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday was assigned by Chief Justice Prystalski of the Criminal court to hear the conspiracy, larceny, and embezzlement cases against three members of the Stevens family—James W., 80 years old, and his two sons, Ernest J. and Raymond W. Stevens. They are accused of wrecking the $140,000,000 Illinois Life Insurance company.

Ernest and Raymond Stevens appeared before Judge Prystalski yesterday for arraignment and were granted a continuance until Feb. 28. Their father, who formerly was chairman of the life insurance company, was not in court. It was explained by former Attorney General Patrick J. Lucey, attorney for the Stevenses, that Mr. Stevens Sr. had been kept at home by the severe weather.

In reply to the judge's question Attorney Lucey said he had not decided whether he would demand a jury trial.

PAINTERS' UNION AGENT FREED OF SHOOTING THREE

William Schaaf, 39 years old, business agent for Local 191 of the painters' union, was freed last night by Judge Donald S. McKinlay of charges of assault to kill. He was accused of invading the headquarters of Painters' Local 275 at 220 west Oak street on the night of Jan. 3 and shooting three men. These were Henry Bahlke, 1521 Cleveland avenue; Peter Blantinga, 126 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, and Ben Dickerman, 1219 North Leavitt street.

The principal prosecution witness was Otto Vogel, sergeant at arms at the meeting. Vogel testified that Schaaf entered the union hall and began a brawl which ended in the shooting. Schaaf and several other witnesses contradicted this story, asserting Vogel started the fight and that Schaaf was unarmed.

5 MEN, 2 WOMEN REDS CONVICTED BY JURY; FINED

Five men and two women who were arrested Jan. 27 for participating in a riot outside the relief station at 8610 Commercial avenue were found guilty of disorderly conduct last night by a jury before Judge Frank M. Padden of the Municipal court. In addition six of them were convicted of rioting.

Judge Padden imposed fines of $2 and costs against each of the seven on the disorderly conduct charges, but reserved judgment as to the rioting charge convictions until Feb. 15.

The jury deliberated ten hours before reaching a verdict shortly before midnight. This constituted, it is believed, a record for deliberations of a Municipal court jury. Moreover, the conviction was the first of its kind in Chicago.

Those found guilty were Mrs. Stephanie Honkosky, 9427 Champlain avenue [who was the only one acquitted of the riot charge]; Mrs. Jule Strop, 9222 Essex avenue; Martin Zeman, 8232 Buffalo avenue; Stephen Kopasp, 8527 Buffalo avenue; Valentino Patorine, 7635 Greenwood avenue; Marcurio Barbato, 1015 East 75th street, and Samuel Horzich, 1806 South Racine avenue.

HEMINGWAY CAN SIGN WARRANTS, SEXTON RULES

James A. Hemingway, vice president of the board of education, may lawfully sign school tax anticipation warrants, according to an opinion submitted yesterday by Corporation Counsel Sexton. The question of Hemingway's authority has been under fire since Lewis E. Myers resigned the presidency two weeks ago.

The opinion of the corporation counsel was contrary to that advanced Wednesday by Henry E. Cutler of the firm of Chapman & Cutler, security experts, whose advice guides the banks in the purchase of warrants. Mr. Cutler declared that the office was vacant with Myers' resignation and that the board should elect a new president at once so that warrants and other securities could be signed by the person vested with the proper authority.

At present no plan for obtaining back pay for teachers and other school employés is far enough along to require signature by a lawfully elected president.

The opinion of the corporation counsel admitted that the signing of tax warrants by the vice president might affect their marketability.

The school board is expected to elect a new president next Wednesday. The members are said to have agreed upon Trustee Orville J. Taylor.

ASKS MERGER OF IDLE SHELTERS TO CUT EXPENSE

Armour's Move Answer to Weber Inquiry.

Lester Armour, chairman of the shelter committee of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, yesterday recommended to the commission and the county board that all public and privately operated relief shelters operated in Cook county be taken over by the commission and operated by one director, with the support of an advisory committee.

This consolidation would result, he said, in economy and improved maintenance. Although he did not mention the investigation conducted by County Commissioner Charles H. Weber into the shelter situation, in which the commissioner uncovered evidence of what he termed gross mismanagement, Mr. Armour's proposal was regarded as an answer to the Weber report. Action on the proposal was deferred to the next meeting.

All Depend on U. S. Loans.

Shelters are being operated by the city and private agencies, Mr. Armour declared, although they are all being supported by federal funds loaned to the county. The private shelters are run by the Christian Industrial league, the Urban league, the Salvation Army, the Ashland Club for Women, the Sarah Hackett Stevenson home, and the Cathedral shelters for men and women.

The relief commission recommended an allocation of $300,000 for the municipal and private shelters for this month. This amount can be reduced appreciably, he said, if direct control over the shelters is placed under one head. With the proposed consolidation, great savings could be made in wholesale purchases under contracts, he added.

Present Director Objects.

Commissioner Peter M. Kelly suggested that the letting of contracts for such wholesale purchases could be done through the office of the county superintendent of public service, Frank H. Chambers. Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission, said that all private agencies that are operating shelters have agreed to the consolidation plan, but that Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, director of the shelters operated by the city, does not agree.

The liaison committee also voted that the arbitrary system of determining heat units that was drafted by Charles B. Goodspeed, assistant to the chairman of the commission, be used in awarding charity coal contracts on bids that were received by the county board last Tuesday. The arbitrary system devised by Mr. Goodspeed, it is said, will restrict the contracts to central Illinois coal, the lowest grade fuel mined in the state.

24 HORSES, COWS SELL FOR $5.22 IN FORECLOSURE

Sadorus, Ill., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Twelve horses, twelve cows, a threshing machine, and other equipment sold for a total of $5.22 at a forced sale on the Emmett Stover farm near here today.

The bids ranged from 3 to 15 cents on the live stock and machinery, three of about 150 farmers present doing all of the bidding.

Stover's farm is in the same neighborhood as that of Charles O'Grady, where a similar "penny sale" took place recently. The same group of farmers was present.

The mortgage on which the sale was held has a face value of $775. The holder is W. A. Doss, lawyer of Monticello, whose wife owned the O'Grady mortgage.

Today's sale was scheduled for 10 a. m., but was held up for several hours while Stover attempted to arrange a compromise with Doss. Stover said he agreed to hold the sale, pay Doss all the revenue therefrom, and give Doss a new note for the difference between the sale proceeds and the mortgage, but that Doss refused.

Two representatives of Doss were present, but left soon after the bidding started. Doss obtained a court writ at Champaign ordering the property held on the farm pending legal proceedings.

EYEWITNESSES TELL HOW PLANE BOMBED WARSHIP

Victims in Dutch Mutiny Are Blown to Pieces.

BATAVIA, Java, Feb. 11.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—The Dutch destroyer Piethein arrived here early today carrying the bodies of twenty-two men killed by an aerial bombing which ended the five day mutiny of the native crew of the Dutch battleship De Zeven Provincien.

On board also were twenty-five injured men, hurt when the 100 pound bomb struck the deck of the Zeven and in the resultant fire.

Men on the Piethein told how the mutineers had remained defiant to the end, although they were pursued by a fleet of war vessels and a half dozen airplanes; how during the brief engagement the rebels did not use the heavy armament of the Zeven, and how some of the natives took to lifeboats when the fire broke out.

Eye Witness Tells Story.

One of those present on the ships gave this account of subsequent events:

"At 9:45 a. m. [Friday] we saw boats around the Zeven and men jumping into them, while bamboo rafts were being thrown into the sea.

"Native sailors were struggling frantically to reach them. The boats from the squadron were soon launched and were busy picking up survivors.

"Meanwhile doctors boarded the Zeven, on which was noticed a Dutch ensign flying. A little later the admiral received the request that six men, seriously wounded, be taken immediately to Batavia.

"The Piethein was instantly ordered at full speed to the Zeven to comply with the request. As the Piethein was alongside, we could see the unrecognizable bodies and a pile of knives which had been thrown on the deck.

"One of the officers aboard the Piethein hailed an officer aboard the Zeven, exchanging greetings. They were brothers.

"Officers from the squadron were going around with revolvers in their hands, searching the crew, who were standing with hands above their heads.

"Meanwhile the admiral had signaled the European ringleaders of the mutineers to be taken aboard the Evertsen and the native ringleaders aboard the Java.

Wounded Are Transferred.

"On emergency stretchers of sail cloth the wounded were being lowered into waiting boats and were put aboard the Piethein.

"The Dutch officer, Baron De Vos van Steenwijk, aboard the Piethein, told me that the bomb had an awful effect. It fell just aft of the bridge on the port side, which was blown away. The native commander of the mutineers was standing on the bridge. He was seriously wounded. He died two hours later on the Piethein.

"Some mutineers were blown to atoms. The Zeven's funnels were shattered anl the deck armor was pierced. The signal station was completely destroyed. Flames quickly burst out.

"The baron described the start of the mutiny. He was on watch when he saw the European engineer and some of the native crew hauling in the boarding ladder.

"He rushed towards them, he said, asking, 'What the devil are you doing?' Thereupon they ceased hauling immediately.

"Soon afterwards he turned in, he continued, but he was taken from bed and taken before a group of natives who stated they would offer no violence to the officers if the latter would be peaceable.

Threaten Instant Death.

"Two young officers and several European petty officers who also were fetched from their beds were threatened with instant death if they showed any fight, the baron said, adding that the officers were powerless to prevent it.

"Steenwijk said they saw the ship put out to sea. Life continued normally aboard it, he went on. European officers carried on their duties as usual.

"Asked why the officers did not take concerted action, Steenwijk replied: 'I had tried to get in touch with both Sourabaya and Scheveningen, for we were allowed freedom of movement, but neither station could get my signals and as soon as the mutineers found us in the wireless room we were chased out of it.'"

No Leadership Among Officers.

"'Circumstances also were against us. There was no leadership and no contact with each other. Each officer tried to do something on his own. We did try to start a little counter mutiny, but the mutineers fired their revolvers, although they did not hit anybody.

"'We eagerly watched for the squadron, but when it hove in sight we had no idea of what was in store for us, and when we saw the planes coming we expected only a warning bomb.

"'The mutineers thought the same and their attitude was more derisive than anxious. They thought the moment had come when they could present demands, but almost immediately the bomb fell and the whole sorry story was ended.'"

JUDGE REJECTS MISTRIAL PLEA FOR HOODLUMS

Judge Thomas J. Lynch in the Criminal court yesterday overruled the defense motion to declare a mistrial in the case of Philip Mangano, brother of "Dago Lawrence" Mangano, and Louis ["the Louse"] Clementi, who are charged with conspiracy as a result of terrorism in the cleaning and dyeing industry. The defense charged that newspaper stories in which the defendants were called hoodlums and gangsters had prejudiced the veniremen against Mangano and Clementi.

Efforts to complete a jury continued throughout the day without adding to the four jurors accepted on Thursday. Clementi and Mangano were arrested after four men invaded the Lomber garage, 10 East 29th street, on Aug. 12, 1931, and wrecked four trucks of the International Cleaners and Dyers, 2808 South State street. Both were identified at a police showup as the men who had slugged several laundry drivers.

CITY TO ABATE SMOKE NUISANCE NEAR HOSPITAL

Observer to Watch Garage Stack.

Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, yesterday acted to abate a smoke nuisance originating in the boilers of the Yellow Cab company garage at 324 East Huron street. He sent an observer to watch the garage stack, and instructed him to bring whatever court action is necessary to end violation of the city smoke ordinance.

The garage is adjacent to Passavant hospital in Superior street. At various times complaints have been made to Mr. Chambers that patients in the hospital have been distressed by fumes from the garage stack, which are carried by the wind into the rooms of the hospital.

Given Several Warnings.

"I have warned officials of the cab company several times to abate the nuisance caused by the stack, and some improvements have been made to the heating plant," said Mr. Chambers. "However, on several occasions the stack again has been the cause of complaints and action will be taken that will stop pollution of the air in the vicinity of the hospital. The patients will not be annoyed in the future."

In furtherance of the department's fight against air pollution, 21 persons and business concerns have been served notices to appear at Chambers' office on Tuesday and Wednesday to explain why court suits should not be filed against them.

List Alleged Offenders.

Those served are:

FOR TUESDAY.

Ribaysen Building corporation, 4442-48 West Roosevelt road.
The engineer, 5730 Sheridan road.
Benjamin J. Hutiner, 5455 Everett avenue.
Aragon hotel, 5401 Cornell avenue.
Julius Judson, 3050 Armitage avenue.
Walter Liniewicz, 4822 Henderson street.

FOR WEDNESDAY.

Mrs. E. S. Wheeler, 3441 Jackson boulevard.
Englewood theater, 726 West 63d street.
Eugene Doselein, 3524 West 62d place.
Uptown Motors corporation, 4859 Broadway.
F. P. Hill, 711 South Dearborn street.
Greer college, 2026 South Wabash avenue.
Lang, Weise & Cella, 501 Plymouth court.
Hall & Ellis, 731 Plymouth court.
Albert W. Swayne Real Estate Improvement corporation, 3200 Sheridan road.
Rawson & Evans, 710 West Washington street.
Pine Winter Front company, 404 North Sacramento avenue.
Roosevelt garage, 4234 Roosevelt road.
Ross & Browne, 3955 North Lamon avenue.
Dewey school, 54th street and Union avenue.
Postoffice, 1304 Indiana avenue.

There have been reports that the smoke department would be consolidated with a number of other departments in the 1933 city budget. Several members of the railroad smoke abatement board have expressed their objections to such a program on the grounds that it would "impair and nullify" the activity of the department.

HOUSING BOARD CALLS HEARINGS ON STATE BILL

Architects Ready with Rival Measure.

BY AL CHASE.

Before another effort is made to get a housing law enacted at Springfield which will enable Illinois to take advantage of Reconstruction Finance corporation loans for building, a series of public hearings will be held, beginning next Tuesday at the Hotel La Salle. This was announced yesterday by Alfred K. Stern, chairman of the temporary Illinois housing commission. Various civic organizations will be asked to attend and present their ideas as to what the new housing bill should contain.

ALFRED K. STERN.

Meanwhile it was learned yesterday that a rival housing bill drawn up by Henry K. Holsman, as proposed by the Illinois Society of Architects, and reported to be indorsed by a committee of nine architects representing the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the Illinois Society of Architects, and the Architects' club, is to be presented at Springfield probably next week.

Revise Defeated Bill.

With senate bill No. 50, the housing act which failed to pass at Springfield last year, as a basis for a new draft, the Illinois housing commission has been considering several minor changes and after the proposed public hearings are concluded probably will add several more.

One contemplated change will give the owners of 10 per cent of the land within a mile radius of a proposed housing project the right to file written objections to a housing board project. If this is done the housing board must have its order confirmed by the Circuit court before the project can go ahead.

The original senate bill No. 50 provided that a housing corporation could not sell its property within a period of ten years, except to another housing corporation and only with the consent of the housing commission. It is now suggested that this be changed so it can be sold at any time during the ten year period.

One of the main differences in the architects' bill and that of the housing commission is that the former puts the control of housing up to the municipalities where the work is to be done, this to be accomplished through municipal housing bodies instead of a central state housing commission, as contemplated in the revised senate bill No. 50.

The architects also extend the scope of housing corporations by providing for alteration of existing structures as well as the building of new units.

Japanese Cabinet Is Ready to Act in League Conflict

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 10.—Because of the crisis in the conflict between Japan and the league of nations, Premier Makoto Saito today instructed members of the cabinet to remain in the capital over the week-end in case that an emergency meeting would be summoned to act on the Geneva situation.

The order to the cabinet was delivered despite that tomorrow is a national holiday—Kigensetsu, the supposed 2,593d anniversary of the foundation of the Japanese empire by the legendary Emperor Jimmu.

League to Get "No!"

In response to the league's request for a statement outlining the government's attitude towards ending the Manchukuo government, an official spokesman said that the nation's reply would be an emphatic "No!" The cabinet first, however, will give the request prudent study for two or three days.

Count Yasyua Uchida, foreign minister, today sent a message to Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's chief delegate at Geneva, to submit his draft reply to Tokio before making any commitments to the league committee of nineteen.

The foreign office was agitated over the suggestion of deserting the Manchukuo régime and indicated that Japan will not permit a return of Chinese sovereignty to Manchuria. To the question of whether Japan intends to push its operations in Jehol, a spokesman said that Japan "considers that the league doesn't have to be informed."

League to Condemn Japan.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Feb. 10.—A special assembly will be called for next Friday to declare conciliation of the Sino-Japanese conflict hopeless and adopt a report condemning Japan and recommending means for solution of the dispute, according to the present plans of league of nations leaders.

The exact date depends on whether the subcommittee of nine, which is drafting this report for preliminary submission to the committee of nineteen, finishes in time.

The drafters are proceeding with extreme caution, for the nervous European situations have made them aware of the exceptional importance of the precedents this first report of its kind in history will establish. No previous league documents ever received such care from diplomats, jurists, and the highest secretariat experts that this one is receiving.

Denies Alliance with Russia.

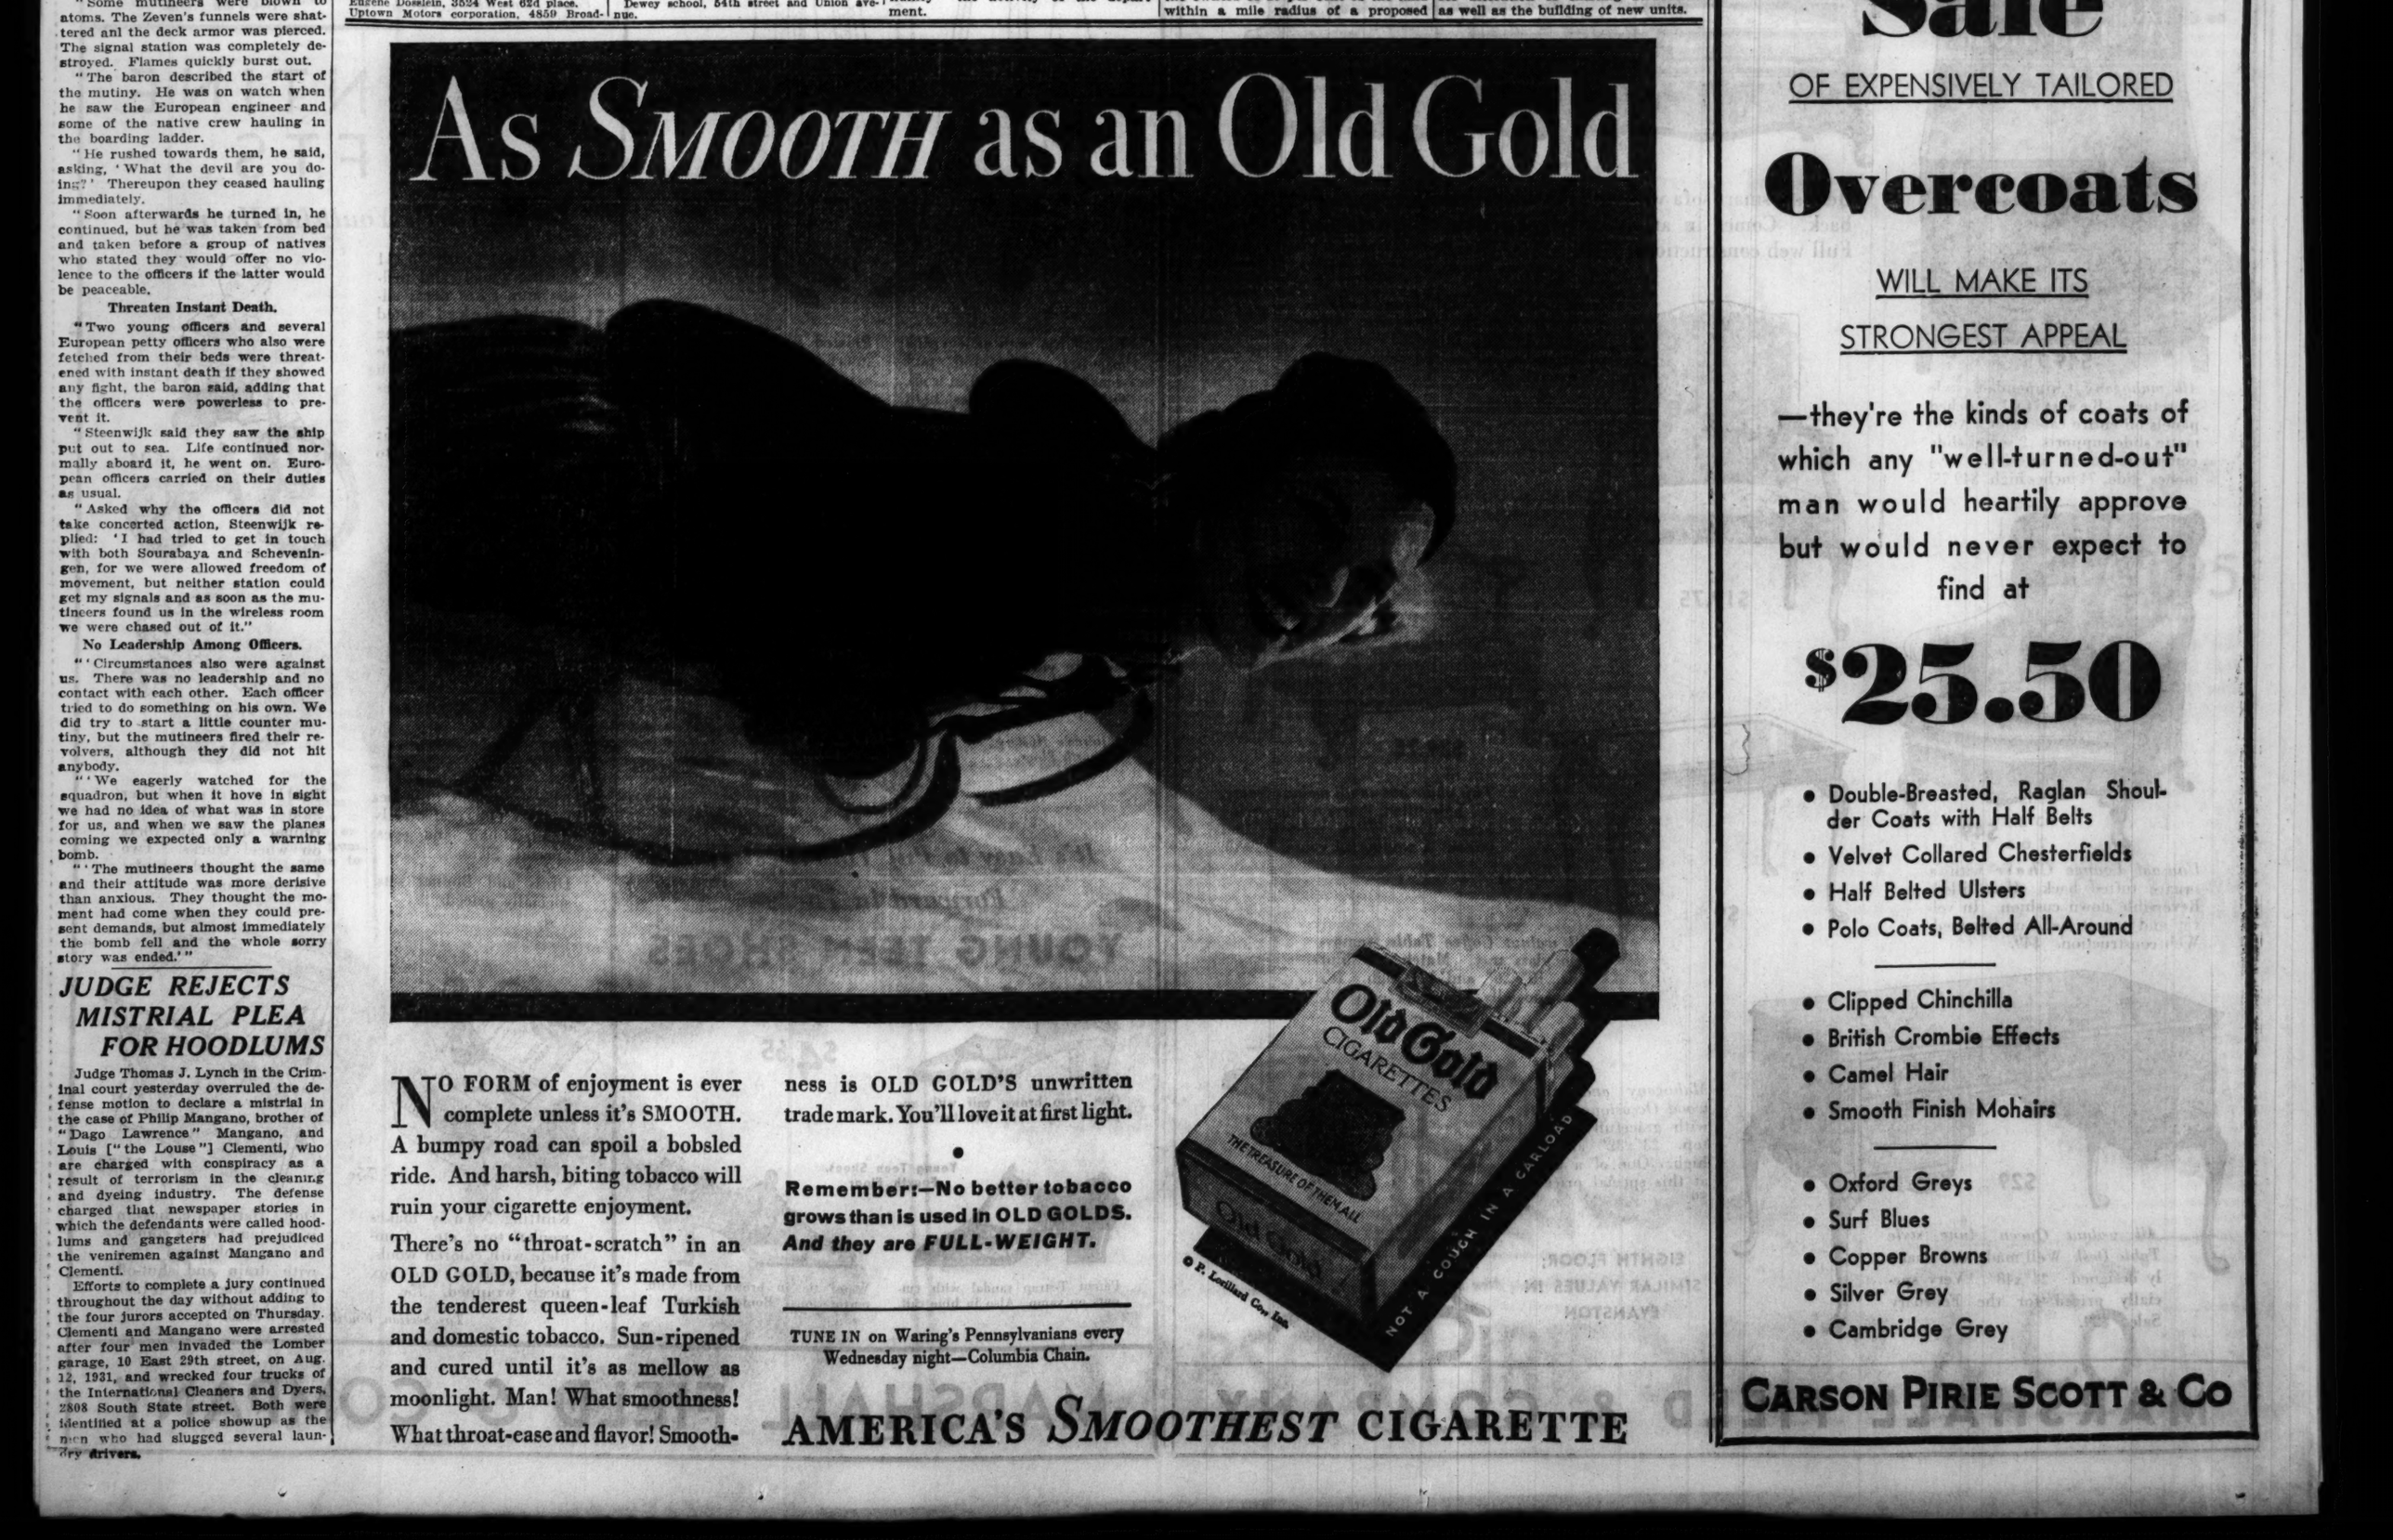
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 10.—"Just a Japanese ghost!" Eugene Chen, former foreign minister of China, today branded the Tokio report that he had drummed up a military alliance with soviet Russia while on his visit to Europe. The Tokio report said that such an alliance would be kept secret until the United States recognizes Russia. China and Russia resumed diplomatic relations in December.

Japanese protests also were reported from Tientsin charging that Chinese were active in warlike preparations, and accusing Nanking of renewing the anti-Japanese boycott. More Chinese troops are said to be moving in the direction of the walled city of Shanhaikwan, which the Japanese captured New Year's day.

Religious Factions Prepare for War in the Philippines

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 10.—(AP)—John Heffington, governor of Lanao province, which is inhabited by many Moros, reported today that two groups of religious fanatics were preparing for intertribal warfare. He said the groups, the Pargs and the Panuds, had built forts, but that authorities were intervening. Previously Col. Luther R. Stevens of the Philippine constabulary reported Moros of Mindanao and Sulu islands were uneasy because they were confused by dissension among Filipinos over proffered independence.



As SMOOTH as an Old Gold
NO FORM of enjoyment is ever complete unless it's SMOOTH. A bumpy road can spoil a bobsled ride. And harsh, biting tobacco will ruin your cigarette enjoyment.
There's no "throat-scratch" in an OLD GOLD, because it's made from the tenderest queen-leaf Turkish and domestic tobacco. Sun-ripened and cured until it's as mellow as moonlight. Man! What smoothness! What throat-ease and flavor! Smoothness is OLD GOLD'S unwritten trade mark. You'll love it at first light.

HITLER PROMISES TO PUT GERMANY BACK UPON FEET

Chancellor Is Cheered by 12,000 at Rally.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler was expected to outline the program of his government tonight, but failed to do so, presumably because the cabinet to date has been unable to agree on its concrete points.

But Hitler's followers were unabashed. His oratory threw a crowd of 12,000 in the huge sports palast into paroxysms of enthusiasm. The throng's shouts of triumph and adoration punctuated the speech, which was broadcast throughout Germany. Loudspeakers were installed by government authorities in Berlin's ten largest squares.

Promises to Save Nation.

The government has decreed that the radio may not be used for party purposes in the campaign for the reichstag election March 5, but Hitler's speech was purely National Socialist election propaganda. He denounced all his predecessors, described how he resurrected German idealism and how he and his associates will save the nation.

The Nazi leader summarized his intentions as follows:

1. "We will not lie to nor deceive our people, nor make cheap promises."

2. He asked the people "to cooperate with him to show their will to work."

3. Hitler vowed to work to the utmost of his ability and not to rely on the help of foreign countires. "Our future is in us, we must develop it," he said.

4. He referred to the eternal laws of history which, he said, must be applied to the reconstruction of Germany.

Tells Aim of Governing.

5. He promised always to consider two fundamental factors of life, "our soil and our people."

6. "The aim is to govern not according to pale theoretic ideas, but for the people and to keep the soil for the people."

The chancellor was hoarse with excitement when he concluded with this exhortation:

"I implore you, countrymen, to give us four years' time to show what we can do. I swear we shall show progress. I swear I am not doing it for money, or for pay. I am doing it for your own sake, you my German people!"

Kaiser's Son May Get Post.

While Hitler was exerting his mesmeric influence on the audience, his officers were negotiating to complete the work of establishing Nazis at all key posts in the land. Newspapers sympathizing with the government announced this noon that Prince August Wilhelm, the former kaiser's son and a Nazi leader, will be apointed governor of the province of Hanover to succeed the Socialist, Gustav Noske, who as minister of defense put down the Spartacist revolution in 1919.

The prince's proposed appointment was given a lukewarm denial in official quarters. It was admitted Noske has been granted a six months' leave of absence and that he will not return to his post, since he has reached the pension age.

Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, minister of agriculture and economics and leader of the Nationalists; Franz von Papen, vice chancellor and dictator of Prussia, and Franz Seldte, minister of labor and head of the Steel Helmet war veterans, agreed today to enter the election campaign with the slogan, "Fighting Front, Black, White, and Red," which are the old imperial colors.

FRENCH DISTANCE FLYERS FORCED DOWN IN AFRICA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 10.—Lucien Bossoutrot and Maurice Rossi, who took off from Istres this morning in an attempt to fly to Buenos Aires without a stop made a forced landing near Casa Blanca, Morocco, tonight. An overheated motor caused their descent.

Mollison Hops for Rio.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 10.—Capt. James A. Mollison, British flyer, who spanned the South Atlantic yesterday, left Natal at 7 a. m. en route to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires. He landed at Caravellas at 7 p. m. in order to avoid arriving here at night. Caravellas is about 600 miles southwest of Natal and 500 miles northeast of Rio.

Jean Mermoz, French aviator, who flew westward over the South Atlantic in mid-January with six companions, arrived here this afternoon in his monoplane Arc-en-Ciel. He expects to leave tonight for Natal, from where he will recross the ocean to Istres.

LAWYER SHOOTS LANDLORD AND HIS SECRETARY

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Noah Roark, 46, Dallas attorney, was charged with assault to murder late today in connection with the shooting of Justin Stein, 65, manager of the Fidelity building, and Stein's secretary, A. B. Strauch, 35.

Both Stein and Strauch were wounded seriously.

Roark surrendered to police immediately after the shooting in Stein's office. He refused to make a statement, referring inquiries to his attorney, William McGraw, but witnesses told officers he and Stein had been at odds over a request that he vacate his quarters.

Two complaints charging assault to murder were filed against Roark by District Attorney R. L. Hurt.

Chews Scrapings from Pipe; 'Nicotine,' Coroner's Verdict

Taylorville, Ill., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—A coroner's jury today found the cause of the death of Vincent Marinello, 49, of Taylorville, to be "nicotine" poisoning, resulting from chewing of tobacco caking, scraped out of his pipe.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

AUTHORITY TO RETRENCH.

Opponents of Congressman Garner's proposal to grant the new President free authority to change or suspend federal activities say that the proposal contemplates a Mussolini in Washington.

The objection seems to overlook the pertinent fact that authority would not be to establish new forms of government but merely to change administration in the direction of government economy and of stopping extraneous activities which in truth themselves are usurpation of authority not originally contemplated in the American form of government.

A dictatorship has been gradually built up in Washington, taking the form of numerous commissions and bureaus, costly beyond the ability of the taxpayer to support then., and interfering with the citizen's right and capacity in taking care of himself.

It is notorious that one man may be able to do what five hundred would be utterly unable to accomplish. When such ticklish things as jobs and official prerogative are being considered, the difficulties of decision increase with the number of people who are called upon to make the decision. There has been enough experience already to prove that little can be expected of congress in abolishing places and putting placement men out on the street. Selfish human nature will triumph over general public good in any such a conflict. Mr. Roosevelt as President might fail, even if he were given the authority Mr. Garner proposes to confer upon him, but at least he has a chance, if he is bold enough to take it, which will never be found open if the two branches of congress are left to deal with administrative problems of retrenchment. Congress created this federal machine by yielding to pressure from various parts of the country, from particular interests, and for particular ideas. Congress can create the machine easily enough, but it will never take it to pieces again.

CORBETT.

Jim Corbett is dying in New York. His doctors say that the only question is whether death will come soon or be for a while fought off. Corbett has a big place in the history of our own times. Men of more than middle age can recall with very fresh vividness the effect of the news flashed over the country that he had destroyed the great institution known as John L. Sullivan. That the event was properly considered trivial does not in the least detract from its stunning importance.

The unbelievable had happened. To find a parallel at all sufficient one must think of the fall of the Roman empire, the failure of the crusades, the death of Charlemagne, the Norman conquest, or something of that sort. Many citizens of the United States were never the same men again after they had forced themselves to realize that a young bank clerk had taken the Gibraltar of human strength upon whose invincibility they had bet their next winter's coal bill, two years' eating tobacco, every thing they had expected to spend in the neighborhood saloon for the next ten years, the family's shoes, old Sorrel's oats, and the wife's hats. They staggered away to their doom.

There was, however, a compensating thrill that went over part of the nation. Youth had proved that maturity was not invincible. It had knocked off the traditional, the elder statesman, the patriarch, and had knocked down the whole system of paternal dominance. No old father again was ever the same man to his eighteen year old son. The tall hat, the voice of experience, the dignity of years as such, went down into the rosin with John L. Sullivan, and youth has twiddled its fingers at age ever since.

MR. BARRY BOUNCES OUT.

As was expected, Mr. Barry is now entitled to use the prefix ex. He is no longer sergeant at arms of the United States senate. It is probably some satisfaction to him that his journalistic value has been enhanced by the episode which cost him his job in the senate organization. He probably would have lost that job March 4 anyway, and if it had not been for his article in Al Smith's New Outlook he would have been just another fellow taking his hat and going home. Now, as the result of defending his former employers by saying there were not nearly as many scoundrels in their membership as the public might think, his prospective writings have an added market value. Al Smith will want more of Mr. Barry, and if the fired sergeant has normal human feelings his subsequent writing will not pull its punch.

It may be suspected that the senators who bounced Mr. Barry out on the street, over the protests of others who tried to protect the critic, were not so infuriated because he said there were only a few crooks in congress, but because he said there were so many demagogues. The feeling in the country at large, whether it is wholly justified or not, is that there is a reasonably high standard of personal honor governing congressional conduct. It is apparent, however, that there is a great deal of demagogy in the two halls and very often nothing but the voice of the demagogue can be heard. There are conscientious and sensible men in congress, but when they get shouted down the demagogue seems to rule. A political crook often will be quite frank in confessing his identity and his purpose, but most the self-conscious demagogue is mad if he's called by the name he knows he deserves.

Mr. Barry hit the pavement, not because he could be accused of saying something that was not true, assuming that it is not true that there are fewer scoundrels in congress than the people believe, but because he told the truth in saying that there are a great many more demagogues than are good for the country. Incidentally, if Mr. Barry had wanted to keep his job and still write pieces, he should have said that the senate contained an exceptionally high grade of statesmanship and that the trouble was all over in the house of representatives. Then the senators might have agreed with him, and, although he is a Republican appointee, he might have been carried over in a Democratic administration.

SENATOR HARRISON'S CLINIC.

Senator Pat Harrison's clinic for the diagnosis and, we trust, the prognosis of the nation's ills will be attended by many distinguished practitioners in the fields of finance, business, agriculture, science, and public affairs. It is to be hoped the patient will be substantially benefited. The quality of the men who have accepted the invitation to contribute is encouraging and is evidence not only of their public spirit but of their respect for Senator Harrison.

But there are notable declinations, and no wonder. Senate hearings of the recent past have been of manners and character not conducive to respect or to a disposition in self-respecting men to submit themselves to their peculiar treatment of witnesses. Senatorial interrogators have recognized no restraint of courtesy or legal form. They have addressed witnesses as if they were condemned culprits, ignoring their rights and with both eyes on the gallery exploited their own lawlessness for the possible profits of unthinking applause. These inquisitions have been a scandal to the senate and an offense to the public morals. Senator Harrison, we are confident, will not permit a repetition in this inquiry.

The citizens who have declined the request should reconsider their decision and do their patriotic duty even if they expect interruptions, leading questions, and fishwife abuse. Their services are needed by their country. Timidity must oe overcome. Otherwise they will offer no counter testimony for the consideration of senate and for the rather supine reporters of Washington to send out to the country, other than the testimony rehearsed between the dancing professors and the Kerensky senators.

BRIGHTER FOOTBALL.

Mr. Hanley, the Northwestern football coach, has an idea he will submit to the rules committee of the game for the brightening of the sport in which he is so successful a teacher. Mr. Hanley is above all a realist. He knows that football is the biggest show the colleges offer the public. From this show all college athletics draw their revenue, and when attendance declines, as it did last year, many of the other branches of athletics must be suspended, as they will be this spring. Therefore Mr. Hanley proposes to make the show a better one, frankly for the reason that it will appeal more to the public as a better spectacle. The box office receipts then will be larger, more people will get more enjoyment, revenues will be increased, and the varied intercollegiate competitions which do not pay can be resumed.

Mr. Hanley's idea is that football defense has improved to a higher degree than football offense. Looking for a parallel in baseball, it is, as he says, as if the pitcher had become entirely too much for the batter. Consequently there are fewer hits, less running around the bases, and a game sewed up in a stalemate. When such sluggers as Babe Ruth turn the tables on the pitchers the public likes the game better. Mr. Hanley thinks that football would do well to encourage more running, and he would make it possible by permitting the forward pass to be thrown from the line of scrimmage. The man with the ball would have the option to throw it when he found himself blocked in his attempt to advance. The defense, not knowing when the ball would take to the air, could not concentrate so assuredly to meet a running attack. It would require more watchfulness on the margins and the running game would have a better chance. The scoring presumably would go into higher figures and the cash customers would get more thrills for their money.

It's an honest suggestion which deals with the practical common sense that football is the great American autumn show.

Editorial of the Day

ARE WE OVERLOADING THE SCHOOLS?

[Cedar Rapids, Ia., Gazette.]

Why should tax supported elementary and secondary schools shoulder any responsibility for the physical and moral development of the boys and girls who attend them?

Have the home and church relinquished to the schools their once recognized functions in molding youth?

Isn't the primary function of the school to train young minds in the art of thinking and introduce them to the sources of information rather than to teach them what to think?

Doesn't the most logical method of reducing school costs lie in the return of some of these nonacademic responsibilities to the home, church, and other state agencies?

Why should it be a school teacher's business to tactfully urge a schoolboy to wash his hands, eat spinach, brush his teeth, tip his hat to women, or refrain from smoking and swearing?

These and other similar questions are raised by the provocative suggestion of a clear thinking local educator that a "reappraisal of aims" and "a realignment of educational functions" may be the intelligent answer to the current militant demand for reduction of school costs. For the present we shall omit the educator's name, because to mention it might stamp him as an active advocate of a nebulous theory which he so far has construcied only tentatively in questioning the educational trends of recent years.

"It is generally conceded," writes this appraiser of the modern school program, "that the schools have made worthy contributions to broader aspects of education and have even competed for the job. The question of a simpler program is raised to meet the financial and social situation. One course only remains—to simplify school aims to the extent of doing one thing well. This one thing, instead of attempting to make the acquisition of knowledge the foundation of intangible objectives, will be a thorough introduction to our current civilization through art, language, mathematics, music, science, and the social studies."

AND PEOPLE down south won't believe it, but it was so cold in Chicago during the twenty degree below blizzard that some of the girls here thought some of taking off their spider web silk hose and wearing wool stockings through the snow and icy winds. Not that they did, but they thought about it. Which shows how horribly cold it was.

CLOTH OF THE LOOM.

As Nancy Hanks passed by her neighbor's house,
Lib Townshend's rocking chair swayed back and forth
Upon the squeaky board in her pine floor.
It made a sullen sound, kin to her thought,
As she slapped butter in her sycamore churn.
Her gaunt, straight form in faded calico
Was rigid as a white oak tree at noon
When winds were still.
One bony hand was taut
About the smooth wood plunger, copper trimmed.
The other brushed a wisp of graying hair
Back from her tanned and bony, high forehead.

She looked out through her loose-hung cabin door
To see the rain weigh down the ripened wheat,
And mullen torches, dripping wet beside
The elderberry, heavy with its fruit
Above the split-rail fence where she had stopped
Long years before, returning home from town,
To give birth to her last and seventh son.
"To a lost 'em all, before they hardly cried,
Must be the Lord's queer way a punishin';
An' still I don' know what I could a done.
Mebby because when ma throwed heavy sticks
At chickens in her fresh green garden-sass,
I should a let her done it, but, instead,
I broke her wrist to calm her anger down . . .

"Mebbe that's why. Or mebby I got pay
For haulin' logs from up the mountain pass
When Dago Tony could a done as well;
But I like logs an' hate to see 'em rode
By them that don' know trees has got a voice.
I don' believe that 's why the Lord took toll:
I guess because I laughed when ol' Jim Cull
Died a black fever holdin' to his gun;
An' laughed when Judson kilt his secon' wife.
The Lord, I guess, has measured out my sin . . .
I reckon that's why all my babies died.

"But her . . . Tom Lincoln's wife, that Nancy Hanks.
I can't abide such fruit comin' to her,
Such a rich cloth, a comin' through her loom!
An' slip-shod as she is . . . a hoein' thar . . .
With them fer hills a shinin' through her eyes!
Her young 'un likely won't stay with her long,
Fur she ain't set on nothin' but the winds
How could a child a bern amount to much;
Born to a woman dreamin' while she walks.
Well . . . I'm a pretty one to talk like that . . .
Me, without kith an' nigh on sixty-three . . .

HOT BATHS.

THE reputation of mineral baths for the cure of disease runs back to the days of the Indians. These people were quite subject to parasitic skin diseases and experience taught them that repeated bathing in the waters of certain hot springs would cure their disorders.

In 1699 Wafer wrote a book in which he told of his experiences in South and Central America. On one occasion they sailed on a buccaneering expedition from Panama down the west coast of South America. He writes of a wafer from a hot spring found in South America:

"I had the curiosity to wade up the stream as far as I had daylight to guide me; the water was clear and shallow, but the streams under the hill were like those of a boiling pot and my hair was wet with them. Many of our men who had the itch bathed themselves here and, growing well soon after, they imputed it to the sulphurousness or other virtues of this water."

The men were right. All of those varieties of skin diseases that go by the name itch are due to skin parasites. In addition to those that are so recognized there are itching eruptions that result from the activities of insects of larger size. If the parasite or the larger insect is killed the itch disappears and the eruption can be expected to get well without further treatment.

While skin diseases of this kind are not nearly as universal as they were in the year 1699 there remain enough of them for all practical purposes. The hot sulphur baths can justify their maintenance today and they need be in no hurry to go out of business. For the cure of skin trouble of this character it is desirable not only to use a preparation of sulphur but to devise a way of getting it deep into the tissues.

In the bath described by Wafer the water was hot and the air reeked with a sulphur steam. Only a moderate amount of washing and scrubbing was necessary. That hot sulphur vapor had no small power of penetration, and this is a quality of prime importance in a sulphur preparation to be used to kill skin parasites.

The Indians had more than their share of rheumatism. They were a healthy people, with a reasonably low death rate, except as to deaths due to violence, but they were apt to be crippled up with rheumatism. Those hot springs, the waters of which were devoid of sulphur, win their reputations in the treatment of rheumatic disorders.

We do not know much about the several kinds of arthritis, including the varieties that are commonly called rheumatic, but one of the old-time opinions that is holding its own is that heat is good for rheumatism. Bathing in hot waters and massage in connection therewith are of service. In all probability the customary treatment by a course of baths is not continued long enough. Longer courses of baths, and more of them, and provision for more exposure to heat and light between baths would be an improvement.

THAT TIRED FEELING.

P. J. writes: I am a student, doing mental work all through the day. I would like to ask you why it is that my mind is so clear and keen in the morning and so dull in the afternoon. Why do I get so sleepy between 2:30 and 4:30 p. m. regardless of how little I eat for lunch or how much I have slept the previous night? How can I recuperate so as to utilize these hours for mental work in the shortest time? Is there some method of relaxation or any means of regaining that wide-awake, fresh feeling mood?

REPLY.

Sometimes this line of symptoms is caused by fatigue. In such cases longer night sleeping hours or a short after lunch nap is advisable. Sometimes anemia or some organic disease is at fault. If so, take iron and arsenic for anemia, or care for whatever disease is the cause.

In most cases, especially in those less than 40 years old, the cause is a lack of interest in one's work—of zest, of thinking, and of planning.

LET NATURE TAKE ITS COURSE.

Mrs. G. K. K. writes: Our baby, 2 months old, has an enlarged abdomen, is tongue-tied and nervous, but otherwise in perfect health. His weight is normal.

1. Is there any cure for enlarged abdomen?
2. Will he outgrow nervousness?
3. Should there be an operation for tongue-tie and is it serious?

REPLY.

1. If he is happy, growing, and thriving, let nature take its course.
2. You can cure that by training him properly. Babies catch nervousness from their parents. Smallpox is no more catching. Overcome parental nervousness, learn relaxation; above all, keep the baby out of the spotlight. Too little attention is just enough.
3. Tongue-tie has nearly gone the way of witches. If he needs a simple operation on his tongue he can have it before he starts to school.

IT IS NOT SERIOUS.

E. C. D. writes: 1. What should a young man, 23 years old, 5 feet 6½ inches or 5 feet 7 inches, weigh? He is small boned.

2. He has a position that necessitates walking all day and he weighs only 128 pounds. He eats and sleeps well. He suffers from indigestion, the result of fast eating, we think.

REPLY.

1. About 145 pounds.
2. Have him eat more slowly. Beyond that he need do nothing. If a man is healthy, being underweight is not serious.

STATIONARY ENGINEERS.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you please advise me where I can file application for stationary engineer's license for the state of Illinois? L. N.

I wish to advise you the state of Illinois has no state law covering examination and licensing of steam engineers for the state, except in the coal mines. Under the laws of this state cities and villages have the right to create a board of examiners of stationary engineers for the purpose of examining and licensing applicants for steam engineer's license within their respective jurisdictions.

HENRY G. M'MAHON, Secretary,
Board of Examining Engineers, Chicago.

ENFORCING JUDGMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Judgment was entered against me four months ago. 1. I filed a "debtor's schedule" over three months ago. I am told that this schedule is now dead and that they cannot levy against me on that schedule. Is this right? 2. Must they cause me to file again before they can levy on my personal property? About sixty days after I filed my schedule I was cited in court and the plaintiff's attorney searched me and asked me under oath to again list before him my personal property. 3. How often may they repeat this act? 4. Can they cite me at a time when the so-called "debtor's schedule" is dead? 5. What is the relationship between a "debtor's schedule" and the schedule I filed and signed with the plaintiff's attorney under the citation proceedings? 6. Can they levy on the basis of the latter? G. N. P.

1. The life of an execution is ninety days. It seems probable that you or your informant is confusing the execution with the schedule.
2. Yes.
3. The citation proceedings must be preceded by a petition to the court. Presumably the court would not order the citation to issue if the purpose appeared to be merely to harass the debtor.
4. Yes.
5. The debtor's schedule filed in the bailiff's office is for the purpose of claiming your exemption. The information secured through the citation proceedings is for the purpose of seeing if you have additional assets which could be subjected to execution.
6. If they find that your assets exceed your exemptions they could issue execution and follow it up with a levy.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 11, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Germany has initiated overtures to the United States to avert war between the two nations. Dr. Paul Ritter, the Swiss minister now in charge of German affairs in this country, yesterday communicated to the state department an informal message from the German government stating that Berlin is willing to consider suggestions to promote the safety of Americans and American ships in the new submarine war zones. Dr. Ritter explained that he was not authorized to go into details, but merely to say that suggestions from the United States as to the means of protecting Americans and American property from injury by German submarines would be welcome by the German government. The Swiss envoy talked with Counselor Polk of the state department, who immediately laid the matter before Secretary of State Lansing. President Wilson then was advised of the move.

MADRID.—A wireless message from the Spanish ambassador at Berlin to American Ambassador Willard here, transmitted at the request of Ambassador Gerard, asked that passage for the ambassador, Mrs. Gerard, and the ambassador's suite be engaged on the Alfonso XIII., leaving Barcelona on Feb. 21, or on the Infanta Isabel, steaming on Feb. 25.

COPENHAGEN.—The first phase of the exodus of Americans from Germany took place Feb. 9. A staff correspondent of the Associated Press passed the Danish frontier as the first American permitted to leave Berlin several hours before the train with the official party of Ambassador Gerard was scheduled to leave the German capital. Ambassador Gerard was permitted to take with him, in addition to embassy and consular officials, American newspaper correspondents and a number of personally recommended friends. The vast bulk of Americans in Berlin have been unable to "arrange passport formalities" and are without information as to when these "formalities" can be completed, but they have no reason to complain of their treatment in any other respect.

WAR SUMMARY.—U boats yesterday sank nine more ships in renewed subsea war activity. Twenty-five Americans on the British steamer Japanese Prince were perilled. Paris reports successful raids in the Verdun sector. Berlin says the attacks were repelled. Paris chronicles air attacks fifty miles in Germany with their objective attained. Berlin aviators dropped bombs on the aerodrome near Dunkirk. Enemy capitals report only minor engagements on the eastern front. Cold weather hampered operations in the Rumanian theater. London reports successful resumption of offensive south of Kut in Mesopotamia. A portion of the new Turkish front was won.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The machine shop building of the Union Switch and Signal company, the largest plant for the manufacture of switch signals in the United States, and until recently engaged in filling munition orders for the European governments, located at Swissvale, a suburb, was destroyed by fire early last night with a loss estimated at $4,000,000. The cause of the fire has not been determined, although officials of the company believe it resulted from spontaneous combustion.

NEW YORK.—Unless the United States government provides convoys or guns and gunners to protect its ships the American line, owners of the steamships St. Louis, St. Paul, and other liners, will not send them across the Atlantic, it was announced here by P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine company. This decision was reached after the failure of efforts to provide their own defensive armament, Mr. Franklin said. The only source of supply of guns in this country, he added, seems to be the United States government "and our government seems disinclined to afford this protection."

CHICAGO.—Despite Pinkertons, parental disapproval and the curiosity of the proletariat, Josephine Gordon, better known as "Joy Gardiner," cabaret dancer, is the daughter-in-law of R. C. Haskins, president of the International Harvester company. She was married at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Feb. 9 to Frank Haskins, fourth son of R. C. Haskins. Mrs. Haskins Sr. and Mrs. Paul Haskins, wife of the bridegroom's brother, were witnesses of the ceremony at the Church of Our Saviour at 530 Fullerton avenue.

POINTED QUESTIONS.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—Thoughtless spending in the past is, in part, responsible for our present troubles. In making plans for the present we ought to keep an eye on the future.

Why is $2,000,000 needed for a nurses' home? Wouldn't $200,000 do well enough? Why do our schools cost so much to complete? What return have the men in the building trades given to our city for all the help they have received? Could our schools be completed by volunteer labor? Would the unions object? Who is running our city?

TRUTH SEEKER.

MOTOR AND INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—If we compel all motorists to insure against injuries to others, regardless of fault, and then limit the amount which may be recovered by the victim of an automobile accident, and couple the latter recovery with speedy settlements by commissions patterned after industrial compensation, the loss is borne not entirely by either the driver or the victim. It is in this respect that the problem resembles industrial accidents. If compulsory insurance by employers and limited compensation to employés is a desirable method of distributing losses due to the injuries of employés arising out of and in the course of their employment, it is difficult to see why it is not also a desirable method of distributing the equally inevitable losses due to injuries of individuals arising out of and in the course of the operation of automobiles.

GEORGE BROIDE,
Northwestern University Law School.

APPRECIATIVE.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—If there is any doubt in the minds of any one as to how much good our policemen do they should have been stationed where they could have watched the officers on duty between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. Tuesday, Feb. 7, at the northwest corner of Michigan avenue and Jackson boulevard. Helping pedestrians get around the corner, helping them get across the street, catching hats on the fly, and pushing stalled automobiles. These are just a few of the many kindnesses performed, to say nothing of their discomfort standing for hours in a raging blizzard. Thanks to our good, kind officers—there are lots of them.

OFFICE EMPLOYE.

IRISH LIBERTY.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—It was mighty fine of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to publish the editorial entitled "Irish Liberty." The article appeared on the first of this month and was a lovely tribute to the spirit of the Irish people. The editorial writer displayed a keen grasp of Irish history, and he is imbued with a fine spirit of fair play. The editorial was illuminating and extremely interesting. May God bless THE TRIBUNE.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Please tell me why Tracy and Stooge wear overcoats with their collars turned up and Tess is in summer garb. F. REMPER.

A PREFERRED CLAIM.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—Apropos the plaint of Legionnaire "F. C." of Brookfield, Ill., the act of congress providing for issuance to service men of adjusted service certificates may be found in Code of Laws of U. S., 36 U. S. C. A., title 38, chapter 11, as amended July 3, 1926. It states, "Proceeds of loans shall not be subject to . . . seizure under any legal or equitable process whatsoever . . . shall not be assignable, nor subject to any deduction or claim." Courts in Illinois and elsewhere have construed these words to entitle war veterans to preference in bank claims under certain conditions.

If this fighting member of "Reilly's Bucks" will present his duplicate adjusted service certificate and bank book to the judge advocate of his American Legion post, to the judge advocate of the Fifth Legion district, or of the Cook County American Legion council, one of them will explain how he can file and have allowed a preferred claim for the balance of $753.50 to his credit when the bank closed, or Legion headquarters, Randolph 5663, will gladly, I am sure, advise him.

CHARLES V. FALKENBERG,

THE END OF THE ROAD.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—There are two very significant items in THE TRIBUNE of this date. One is Arthur Sears Henning's account of how our congressmen are voting on all kinds of ridiculous appropriations; the other is A. L. Tolstoy's letter in the Voice of the People column describing the wholesale robbery of the people in Russia in order to provide revenue for the soviet government.

Such senseless extravagance as Mr. Henning describes can only, as time goes on, lead to a condition similar to that which Miss Tolstoy speaks of. Outright confiscation is only a step beyond extravagant and insane taxation.

WALTER H. LLOYD.

SCHOOL SALARIES.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Since the school board adopted a budget cutting employés 15 per cent and the engineers and bath attendants continue to be paid more than principals and teachers, why not eliminate the teachers entirely and let the engineers and bath attendants have charge of the schools and do the teaching, too, during those hours they basic in idleness?

If this plan should fail, why not let the principal run the school? He could manage very well with his corps of trained teachers, one licensed engineer at a salary in keeping with the type of work, and a few cleaning women.

THE DEATH RATE IN HEBRON.

Hebron, Ill., Feb. 6.—Hebron must be a healthy place to live! This report from 1932 interested me and perhaps will occ to others as an unusual record:

There were nine deaths, all from natural causes, five men and four women, the average age of the men being 84 and that of the women 79. The population of the village is 650. H. E. G.

SEAWAY TREATY IS SHELVED FOR THIS SESSION

Glenn Attacks Pact After Borah Group O. K.'s It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—There will be no action by the senate on the St. Lawrence seaway treaty with Canada at this session of congress and possibly not during the special session to be called by President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt. Opponents of the treaty said they had been informed following favorable action today on the pact by the Borah subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee that no attempt was to be made to push it through congress at once.

As reported favorably to the full foreign relations committee today, the treaty called for joint development of the St. Lawrence river by the United States and Canada. Under the terms of the pact this country would put up 258 millions of new cash and Canada about 140 millions to finish the project. When completed, the river would be harnessed for power in the international section and so deepened as to permit the entrance into the lakes of boats drawing 25 feet of water.

Agree on Division of Costs.

At a meeting prior to subcommittee action on the treaty Brig. Gen. George B. Pillsbury, assistant to the chief of army engineers, and Delos B. Pillsbury, vice chairman of the New York power authority, reported they had reached a basis of agreement for the division of the American costs between the federal and New York state governments. They said it had been agreed that New York would pay a total of $89,726,000 toward the cost of the project in return for the power rights. The understanding was that New York would have to pay less if it was found that the cost of the American share of the project was reduced below the army estimates. New York, however, would not have to pay any additional amount in event the army estimates were wrong and the ultimate cost exceeded the estimates.

Vote Is 5 to 2.

Both Senator Otis Glenn [Rep., Ill.] and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] criticized the provision under which the federal government would bear the excess power costs should the army estimates prove too low. Curiosity was also shown by some of the senators as to why New York state was to be handed the American half of the two million plus horsepower to be developed for $89,000,000 while Ontario agreed to pay Canada 104 millions for the Canadian share.

Five members of the subcommittee voted in favor of the report to the full committee. They were: Senators William Borah [Rad., Idaho], Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.], Vandenberg, Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], and Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.]. The negative votes were by Senators Glenn and Robert Wagner [Dem., N. Y.]. Senators Borah and Robinson advised their colleagues they reserved the right to oppose the treaty when it is considered by the full committee.

Glenn Explains Vote.

In explaining his vote Senator Glenn said that completion of the St. Lawrence seaway would not only mean the removal of the country's central grain market from Chicago to Winnipeg, but would jeopardize the success of the lakes to gulf waterway. The St. Lawrence project also would place a great burden upon the American taxpayer, he said, and would result in further competition with the railroads.

"The treaty," Senator Glenn said, "seeks to limit the amount of diversion from the lakes for the gulf waterway, on which Illinois taxpayers have spent between $80,000,000 and $90,000,000, and which they have donated to the federal government. The limitation might mean that the Illinois waterway would become commercially impractical.

"I believe," Senator Glenn said, "Canada receives a much greater benefit from the treaty than does the United States, and we are called on to pay far more than our proportionate share according to the benefits received."

FOUND GUILTY OF KILLING WOMAN BY OPERATION

Armin L. Kreutzer, 44 years old, a veterinarian, was found guilty of murder by abortion by a jury before Judge Ralph Dady in Waukegan last night, and his punishment was fixed at 14 years in the penitentiary. This is the minimum penalty for murder.

Kreutzer was convicted of causing the death of Mrs. Anna Balis, 32 years old, of 608 Somers avenue, Cudahy, Wis. She was operated upon Nov. 9, and she died Dec. 16. Evidence submitted by State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county and his assistant, Wilfred E. Hall, indicated the operation was performed at the Harbor View Maternity home, operated by Kreutzer in Winthrop Harbor.

Only a hypothetical defense was offered by Kreutzer. Drs. John E. Walters and Thomas Carter, both of Waukegan, called by Defense Attorney George W. Field, testified that Mrs. Balis might have died from poisoning other than that resulting from an abortion. Attorney Field also testified he had been unable to summon a medical witness whose story might have changed the case somewhat.

Kreutzer expected the guilty verdict, he told Sheriff Lester Tiffany. The jurors balloted 90 minutes, one of them holding out for a life sentence. Motion for a new trial will be heard Feb. 18.

BRITAIN HOLDING EIGHT OFFICERS IN 'SPY' SCANDAL

Charged with Selling Secrets Abroad.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Utmost secrecy surrounds the espionage investigations involving an unidentified army officer now under close arrest in the Tower of London. THE TRIBUNE learns, however, that the secret service has been deeply interested for some time in the activities of officers suspected of selling information to another country.

The war office announced that the officer arrested held a commission in the Seaforth Highlanders, one of the most famous regiments of the British army. But it has also had under investigation the activities of other officers who are reputed to be in the pay of foreign governments seeking to obtain information concerning mechanization developments and details of carefuly prepared plans for air defense.

Hint Money Comes from France.

It is reliably indicated that money for the purchase of this information is coming from France.

THE TRIBUNE is informed that the intelligence department of the war office was assigned to make an exhaustive inquiry into the financial affairs of a number of officers following the embezzlement of regimental funds two months ago. As a result, seven officers are under "open" arrest, meaning that they are confined to camp areas, and the eighth is under "close" arrest in the tower.

Urgent need for money was given by the officers as the reason for sale of state secrets. Many officers of ordinary regiments are without private means. Investigators found that they had been frequenting night clubs in London, whose owners are now holding a number of "dud" checks written to meet their bills. Rather than face prosecution and court martial, the officers accepted money from representatives of foreign governments.

Trace Big Deposits.

The secret service traced deposits ranging from $1,000 to $2,500 to the accounts of officers who are without other means than their pay, and by numbers on the notes traced the money to foreigners..

It was also discovered that several officers were spending short leaves abroad, and it is reported that three of those under open detention were on the army interpreter list.

Bank accounts of women habitually seen at night clubs where the officers were commonly seen also have been under scrutiny of war office operatives. In some cases these have been found to be unexpectedly large.

War Office Ponders Case.

A select committee of the war office is considering the information. The committee is reported to have recommended that army officers be forbidden to take leaves abroad without their commander's permission, and that all automobiles privately owned by army men be registered with the garrison and the district to enable police to spot a car breaking bounds.

Further, London would be placed out of bounds to all officers below field rank. If these restrictions are too stringent, then the committee would recommend that night clubs be placed out of bounds. Half a dozen military stations are within one to three hours' drive from London.

FIRES ROUT TWO FAMILIES CLAD IN NIGHT ATTIRE

Two residence fires in Evanston early yesterday forced the occupants to flee into the cold in night attire. The family of Chester T. Bradford, manager of the traffic department of the International Harvester company, fled from their home at 1632 Wesley avenue. They were Mr. and Mrs. Bradford, their two daughters and S. C. Green, a son-in-law. In the other fire Mr. and Mrs. William A. Field Jr. and their two children, and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart McCormack, relatives, and their child, fled to the street from the Field home at 2704 Harrison street.

Charles S. Dewey, chairman of the committee on sale of tax anticipation warrants, a division of the Sargent Committee on public expenditures, last night commended the 300 firemen who fought the $1,000,000 Rosenbaum grain elevator fire Thursday night on Goose Island in subzero cold.

"These firemen have remained loyal to their duty to the citizens of Chicago all during the time they have received nothing for their work," said Mr. Dewey.

Six fire companies continued pouring water into the smoldering ruins of the grain elevator last night. Louis Sayre, an official of the grain company, said the loss was fully covered by insurance. It appeared last night that some grain might be salvaged, although it was expected the fire would burn for several days longer.

INAUGURATE NEW MARCONI RADIO IN VATICAN TODAY

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. and Guglielmo Marconi will formally inaugurate the world's first ultra short wave radio telephone station tomorrow in celebration of the fourth anniversary of the Lateran peace treaty between the Vatican and Italy and of the eleventh year of the reign of Pope Pius.

It will be the first regular utilization of the plants, the latest invention of the wizard, by which he hopes to bring radio telephone service within reach of the masses of the people. The plants have been installed in the Vatican and at the papal villa at Castel Gandolfo, twenty miles away, by Marconi engineers.

The pope and the inventor will talk briefly from the Vatican with the custodian of the villa and with the auxiliary bishop of Albano, where the villa is situated.

'British Agent' Is Human Tale of Red Revolt

Memoirs Carry Stamp of Real Honesty.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"British Agent," by R. H. Bruce Lockhart. [Putnam.] Published Feb 1 February choice of the Book of the Month club.

OCCASIONALLY there is a book of memoirs which records historic events in the making so vividly and so factually as to make readers see the very stitches as they form the pattern of the fabric of history. And occasionally there is a book with such an air of honesty that the pages are thrilling out of sheer human frankness, for it is not often that one reads what one feels to be a perfectly honest book of memoirs. The author of an autobiography is no less human than the rest of humankind. Any author wants his hero to be interesting, whether he be rake, rebel, righteous or radiant, and it is a rare author of memoirs who does not consciously cut himself out with the kind of literary jigsaw that will make his hero fit together into a thrilling pattern.

R. H. B. LOCKHART.

To find a book which is at the same time a contribution to the facts of history and so disarmingly frank that it is also a contribution to human record is a joy. Such a book is "British Agent," by R. H. Bruce Lockhart. It is not "written" at all in the specialized sense of that word, which means set down in fine writing. It is disarmingly without any pretense whatever as literature. But it is a human record and the record of a period of tense historic events which no one of whatever literary tastes can resist. There is no plea in it either for or against a régime. There is little interpretation in the perspective of the years of the events which it records. It is just one of those rare phenomena, a living record.

R. H. Bruce Lockhart was called Lloyd George's "schoolboy ambassador." He bore that title in Russia in the difficult months after the fall of the provisional government and before the attempted assassination of Stalin. He was merely "British Agent," with no definite standing, so that, as he says: "If in the house of commons some irate interventionists wished to know why in the name of decency the British government maintained an official representative with a government of cutthroats . . . Mr. Balfour . . . would then reply that we had no official representative accredited to the bolshevik government. On the other hand, when some revolutionary minded Liberal charged the British government with the folly of not maintaining an accredited representative in Moscow . . . Mr. Balfour would reply, with the same strict regard for the truth, that in Moscow we had a representative—an official with great experience of Russia—who was charged precisely with these duties."

It is with such a delicate international relationship that the entire last part of the book has to do, and never have I read a more illuminating tale of those hectic months. Only a few human beings in the world could possibly tell that tale, for few knew it at first hand politically.

That intimacy was the result of years of apprenticeship on the part of the author as vice consul in Moscow. His record of life in Russia begins in 1912. He knew it first as a young man of 25. He lived there almost continuously, always in close touch with the current government from the old régime through Kerensky's to the bolshevik, until at the Archangel expedition and the subsequent attempt by Dora Kaplan on the life of Lenin he was popularly blamed for both disasters, clapped into the Kremlin, and escaped with his life only as a hostage exchanged for the bolshevik agent in London, Litvinov.

To me—and I confess that by this time I thought I had read almost as much about those tragic days as could be written, with every phase covered as it has been—"British Agent" has all of the excitement of news, told with engaging frankness and a Scotch (not English) sense of human foibles and their funninesses. . . . Mr. Francis' patent spittoon, for instance, without which the American ambassador never stirred. I found "British Agent" wholly absorbing.

Beg Your Pardon—Yesterday the mention of "Secret Agent" should have read "British Agent." It is this book and its author whom Harold Nicolson discussed with me.—Editor.

Two Authors Chief Guides to Young Pens

Lawrence, Eliot Influence British Writers.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—In England at the present time the two greatest influences upon the young writers who come to us by way of Oxford and Cambridge universities are, without doubt, D. H. Lawrence and T. S. Eliot. How the young writers manage to combine the the storm of Lawrence with the calm of Eliot I do not know, but the fact is there. Mr. Eliot's own future activities are a matter of deep interest, for his religious orthodoxy is troubling some of his literary disciples, especially those who have learned skepticism at the home of modern mathematics—Cambridge. But his purely literary influence will persist until some other influence [or fashion] takes its place.

T. S. ELIOT.

And in this connection those who are interested in the development of specifically "modern" literature should make a point of reading the work of two young English poets of high class. The first of these is W. H. Auden, whose book, "The Orators," was published last year; the second is Stephen Spender, whose "Poems" has just been published here. Mr. Spender is a nephew of J. A. Spender, the great editor of the Westminster Gazette before that paper lost its identity, first as a daily news sheet and then as an incorporated detail in the London Daily News, now the News-Chronicle.

His father and another uncle were also authors and journalists, so that Stephen Spender is a striking example of inherited talent. Mr. Spender has written a novel which will be published within the next few months; and while it is my impression that he regards the abnormal alone as interesting his gifts are such that I expect him to take a high place among young authors as soon as that talent is recognized.

A book of another kind which should be of deep interest, not only on account of its subject but also on account of the author's ability, is the "Life of Cecil Rhodes," by Clifford Sharp. Mr. Sharp was the writer of the essay on Rhodes in the volume called "Great Victorians" published last fall; and his essay was admittedly one of the best in the book. Not all the essays in that book passed unchallenged, but Mr. Sharp's was too good to be ignored.

Now Mr. Sharp has been very ill in the last few years, and as the result of his illness he was forced to relinquish the editorship of the London weekly review, the New Statesman, which he had conducted with conspicuous distinction since its first number. It is very good news that he is once again well enough to write and upon a theme so well suited to his bent as the life of Rhodes. The book will not be ready for some time; but when it comes it should be notable.

An interesting novel to be published very soon is that entitled "The Coming Back," by Lady Constance Malleson, formerly the wife of Miles Malleson the dramatist and author of one of the most outspoken and moving autobiographies of recent years. If the novel is as good as the autobiography, it will take the London of the intelligentsia by storm. What it will do to the rest of England I cannot say.

Omar Khayyam Subject of Harold Lamb Biography

Harold Lamb, biographer of Nur Mahal, Ghengis Khan, and Tamerlane, is at work on a fictional biography of Omar Khayyam. He has been traveling until lately in the orient. During his six months tour he visited the ruined city of Bakche Serai, wandered over the country around Tiflis and followed the ancient caravan route from Teheran to Bagdad.

BRIEF REVIEWS

BY M. D.

"All Women Die," by P. J. Wolfson [Vanguard], takes its title from the last sentence of the book, "Don't we all die sometime — even women?" It is a straight from the shoulder tale of a man, the hard boiled leader of a road gang, who loves his brother's wife and carries on an affair with her when he goes back to his home after a long absence. He begins to believe toward the end of the book that every one he knows and loves dies under his touch. It is a story that despite its preoccupation with sex has a directness of treatment and a realism of approach that puts upon it the stamp of genuine artistry. The reader cannot, unfortunately, rid himself of the impression that P. J. Wolfson has been a little too obviously influenced by Ernest Hemingway.

P. J. WOLFSON.

Oswald Garrison Villard has written in "The German Phoenix" [Smith & Haas] an account of Germany's development from the birth of the republic 14 years ago to the present day. The author shows how Germany has slowly progressed toward a socialization of industry and business that is comparable only to Russia's social reorganization. Germany's struggle for life against almost insurmountable odds has been heroic and inspiring in the eyes of the author. From the ashes of a dead monarchy, Germany, to him like the phoenix, has risen into at least a temporary flame of life. Her disasters, her leaders, her past, present and future problems that may or may not bring disaster upon her, the developments in culture, the status of women and morals, are all sympathetically and penetratingly described by an author who has spent years in the study of Germany.

Sir W. S. Gilbert of the famous Gilbert & Sullivan team did not collect all his Bab Ballads in the volume of that name. Those not published have been referred to as the Lost Bab Ballads. Townley Searle, however, with the consent of Lady Gilbert has gone back to the old periodicals in which these humorous skits appeared and edited and illustrated them in "Lost Bab Ballads" [Putnam].

When Sir William Gilbert was asked why he didn't publish all his ballads he said, "the public have enough already—the book is already too big."

Sir Thomas Lipton Reveals Many Thrills in Autobiography

Sir Thomas Lipton said when he was ready to sail for his final challenge with Shamrock V. for the America's cup: "Don't print it (this autobiography) until I win that bloomin' cup—then I will have something to crow about." He was then 81 years old. His trustees, however, decided to release the manuscript after his death to reveal the magnitude of this man's good sportsmanship.

Though he was defeated in his attempt to win the cup, other aspects of his life reveal that he was a "winning" man. This is a story of fighting and winning against severe odds.

Lipton, a Scotchman by birth, rose from almost incredibly humble beginnings to a position of enviable distinction in international commerce and sports. He became, in a very short time, an extremely wealthy man, for that time, and a famous one. His world-wide adventures, his daring and courage, his precocity and persistence reveal him as a man who lived a life that would rival the most exciting and imaginative novel. With his collaborator, William Blackwood, Sir Thomas Lipton has put down for readers who recognize real adventure the many experiences of his long and eventful life. The book is called "Lipton's Autobiography" [Duffield-Green].

Mystery Tales Take Up Lives of Criminals

Literary Elegancies Added Features.

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

TODAY we are buying British. If you want to be really amused and at the same time soothed by apt phrases and nice literary elegancies read "I'll Tell You Everything" [Macmillan], by J. B. Priestley and Gerald Bullett. No horrible crimes are committed, no dastardly deeds pulled off, but confusion is confounded to the boiling point. It is certainly the most mysterious mystery that has come my way for a long time. Much as I dislike the word "intriguing" in its present and annoying misuse, I have to admit that it does fit this particular book, so if you enjoy being "intrigued" run out and get it. In it abounds the same sort of gayety that made "The Good Companions" so delightful and all the charming twists and turns that Mr. Bullett employed in "The History of Egg Pandervil" are again revealed. May it lead you to a reading of that most touching and beautiful book. If it should you have two treats in store instead of one.

EDEN PHILLPOTTS.

A queer, grim story is "Bred in the Bone" [Macmillan], by Eden Phillpotts. The mystery is quickly solved and the story is concerned with the consequences of the crime rather than the crime itself. Punishment comes to the murderers not from without but from within and the contrast between the woman who never regrets her deed because through it she got for a time what she wanted and the man whose conviction of sin drives him mad is a theme that Mr. Phillpotts develops at length and with skill. The book is no "thriller," but has a variety of interests if you like stories of the English countryside and people. No one describes them better than Eden Phillpotts. The story moves through convincing episodes to a convincing conclusion.

"Darkness at Pemberly" [Century company], by T. H. White, is another story of ruthless murder to achieve personal comfort. The murderer and murderee are scholarly gentlemen associated, as the jacket says, with "one of England's hoariest institutions of higher learning," whether Oxford or Cambridge my knowledge is too inexact to say. Again it takes no time at all to discover the criminal, but to bring home to him the foul deed is not so easy.

Inspector Buller is a new and pleasant sort of detective and all the people concerned are the kind you would enjoy meeting. The story is well told, and if toward the end it tries you a little high, still I recommend it with conviction and welcome a new, entertaining, and accomplished writer of detective stories.

Dr. Hailey wends his quiet way through "The Cotswold Case" [Lippincott], by Anthony Wynne. Again in an impregnable room is murder done and again is Scotland Yard foiled, but on the whole it's a good story and should please the avid reader of conventional mystery tales.

That unquenchable mystery monger, E. Phillips Oppenheim, has turned out another new book. In "Murder at Monte Carlo" [Little Brown & Co.] a covey of New York gangsters is transported to the Riviera with dire consequences [a] to the noble lords and charming ladies about whom Mr Oppenheim prefers to write and [b] to the gangsters themselves who meet their match. You may like it and then again you may not.

A very curious item that comes from England is "Sherlock Holmes and Dr Watson: A Chronology of these Adventures," by H. W. Bell [Constable & Co., Ltd]. It is a quite serious inquiry into the exact dates involved in the various Sherlock Holmes long and short stories and the frequent inaccuracies of Dr. Watson. It is disclosed that the doctor made three marriages and that Mr. Holmes kept slipshod records. A few weeks ago Frank Swinnerton in his London letter spoke of the sudden interest in England in this field of research—the whimsical English seemingly in a rage for new whimsicalities.

And to end we have two grand anthologies. Three "novels of mystery" [Longmans-Green] by Mrs Belloc Lowndes, "The Lodger," "The Story of Ivy," and "What Really Happened," have been reprinted in one fat volume which gives you a great deal for your money. I formed my taste on "The Lodger," which has become a classic in the twenty years since it was published and is a masterpiece of mounting horror. The other two stories are among the best that Mrs. Lowndes has written.

Into "The Father Brown Omnibus" [Dodd, Mead & Co.] are gathered all of G. K. Chesterton's stories of the astute little priest. Father Brown who looked so mild but knew so much. He is different from any other detective in fiction and well worth knowing. In these forty-two ingenious and polished stories Mr. Chesterton is at his original best, not too funny, never long winded, and always original.

It should interest all serious students of international affairs.

WHEALAN TO AID CITY AND STATE ROAD PROGRAM

Hails Horner's Move to Obtain Funds.

BY HAL FOUST.

President Whealan of the Cook county board yesterday welcomed an invitation from Gov. Horner to join with the state and the city in preparing a Chicago highway construction program upon which the present session of the general assembly can base an appropriation.

A similar invitation addressed to Mayor Cermak did not reach him because he is in Florida.

Work Would Relieve Idle.

"Cook county will do everything within its power to expedite the preparation of such a program and the prompt inauguration of the actual construction," said President Whealan. "It is important that work should be started as soon as possible to relieve idleness.

"Gov. Horner is to be commended for this effort to get the present session of the legislature to act on a Chicago road program. If he were to follow routine procedure, there probably would be no appropriation for a metropolitan program until the 1935 general assembly."

Traffic Surveys Ready.

Maj. George Quinlan, Cook county highway superintendent, estimated that within three weeks representatives of the city, the county and the state, by holding three full day sessions, could reach an agreement on a construction program in Chicago for the next four years.

"We have the advantage," he said, "of having a comprehensive Chicago traffic survey prepared by Dr. Miller McClintock of Harvard university, under the direction of the council traffic committee headed by Ald. John Massen. We have the advantage of a state traffic survey prepared by the Illinois highway department for the advisory commission on future state road construction.

The state advisors found that the weakest link in the Illinois highway system is the municipal connections and extensions. The city survey presents convincing proof of the need in Chicago for a system of pavements with continuous grade separation.

Start Detours First.

"The task of preparing a biennium program for construction in Chicago therefore will be simple. First, work can be started in selecting the exact routes for elevated highways radiating from the loop, as recommended in the Massen-McClintock report. The acquisition of right of way and the preparation of working specifications can be launched. At the same time, construction can proceed on those streets that must carry the through traffic until the superhighways are finished, streets that will serve as correlative facilities after the elevateds are built."

Homer Byrd, chairman of the county board's road committee, estimated that 4,000 men will be put to work in Chicago as soon as the state decides to spend $5,000,000 a year here. This $5,000,000 is what the city would get if the legislature followed the recommendation of its advisory commission to allocate 1 cent of the gasoline tax revenue for expenditure within municipalities.

REPORT HAWAII TO FREE 4 MEN IN MASSIE CASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Feb. 10.—Final disposition of the Massie rape case appearly likely when it is called Monday in the Circuit court on the regular criminal calendar.

Officials declined to predict what the disposition would be, but it is freely predicted that the case will be nolle prossed and the four surviving defendants, Henry Chang, Chinese; David Takai, and Horace Ida, both Japanese, and Ben Ashakucio, Hawaiian, will be released.

It is understood that the findings of the New York private detectives who investigated the case here and on the mainland will be the basis of final action. It is believed this report absolves the defendants, including Joseph Kahahawai Jr., of whose slaying Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, husband of the rape victim, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, her mother, and E. J. Lord and A. O. Jones, sailors, were convicted.

JUDGE TO DECIDE IF DANCE LESSONS CANCEL THE RENT

Judge Cecil Corbett Smith in the Renters' court will be asked to decide on Feb. 17 whether the dancing instructions that Mildred Woods gave her landlady's husband equaled in value $76 in back rent. A suit to evict Miss Woods from her studio at 2747 West Washington boulevard was continued when she announced that she would contest the case.

Mrs. Edith Quinn, 221 South Wood street, owner of the studio, brought the suit. Through her attorney, T. J. McCormick, she said that her husband James, made several trips to the dancing studio to collect the rent money, but he returned each time without the rent. When Mrs. Quinn went to the studio herself, Attorney McCormick said, she was told that her husband had canceled the rent money in exchange for dancing lessons.

Miss Woods was fined $5 several weeks ago for operating the dance hall without a proper license.

Baby Case Witness

MRS. MOLLY RYAN.

In an effort to settle the dispute over the custody of Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, "million dollar baby," Judge Daniel P. Trude of the Circuit court late yesterday after a protracted afternoon conference with attorneys declared the case would be put over until 2 p. m. next Friday "in the interest of the child."

"This court has taken the responsibility for the welfare of the child," Judge Trude said. "The court advises counsel to submit certain suggestions made by the court to their clients for thorough consideration."

When court opened yesterday Judge Trude called attorneys representing Franklin D. Saemann, the father, and Mrs. Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, the mother, into his chambers. It was reported that he suggested that the child be kept in the home of her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Fahrney, 400 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, with some person agreeable to all parties to care for the child. When the attorneys returned to court in the afternoon, however, no agreement had been reached.

Mrs. Mollie Ryan, formerly the baby's nurse, who testified Thursday regarding the mother's alleged cruelty to the baby, was ready to continue her testimony when court opened, but was not called.

HIT BY MORGAN CAR; JURY GIVES $37,500 DAMAGES

New York, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Damages of $37,500 were assessed against J. P. Morgan, the financier, by a jury in Supreme court today for injuries resulting to Howard A. Baugh, a salesman, who was struck a year ago by a Morgan automobile. The banker was not in the car at the time. The chauffeur, Henry I. Shaw, was charged with driving in a careless manner. Baugh, who said injuries to a leg forces him to wear a brace the rest of his life, sued for $75,000 damages.

JAKE FACTOR'S AID SENT TO CELL FOR NINE MONTHS

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 10. — Harry Geen, one time personal secretary to John [Jake the Barber] Factor, former Halsted street barber, who is fighting extradition from Chicago, today was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment and ordered to pay costs of prosecution not exceeding $2,500 for receiving money from the operations of Factor's Broad Street Press, knowing it was unlawfully obtained.

When Geen was convicted recently the jury recommended that consideration be shown him because he had been completely dominated by Factor. Geen had agreed to pay the heavy costs before sentence was passed, so Judge Whitely absolved him of hard labor during imprisonment.

Judge Assails Factor.

"The jury convicted you or receiving these sums of money from the proceeds of a conspiracy to defraud, Judge Whitely said. "It is quite clear from the evidence that five persons were mainly concerned in the fraud, John Factor and four others, including yourself.

"Only two of these four have been convicted and sentenced. The first was Arthur J. Klein, who was sentenced on Feb. 10, 1932, to 21 months' imprisonment. The second was Hubert John Spellen, who was sentenced on July 9, 1931, to 12 months' imprisonment."

[The other two referred to are Burnett L. Elman and Frederick K. Newbury. Proceedings began in November, 1930, accusing Factor and his aids of swindling English investors of some $7,500,000 through bucket shop operations under cover of the Broad Street Press.]

Heeds Clemency Plea.

"I realize that the sums of money you [Geen] have been convicted of receiving were smaller than the others got," Judge Whitely continued, "and I am taking into consideration the recommendation of the jury that you were greatly under the influence of Factor. I think the proper punishment is that you be imprisoned for nine months in the second division and pay a sum not exceeding $2,500 towards the cost of prosecution."

Geen's share of the $7,500,000 allegedly collected by bucket shop operations was fixed in the indictment at $70,000.

Albert H. Robins, a graduate with honors in law from the University of Chicago, who formerly practiced in Chicago, was counsel in Geen's defense. He is the first Chicago lawyer to practice as a barrister in the British courts.

MEDICS FIND WAY TO EASE PAIN OF ANGINA PECTORIS

Alcohol Is Injected Into the Nerve System.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Hope is in sight, through newly developed methods of surgery, of doing away with the severe pain suffered by most persons who have angina pectoris, the American College of Physicians was told at its closing session today, when it was decided to hold the 1934 clinical session in Chicago.

The hope lies, said James C. White of Boston, in injecting alcohol into the nerves that carry pain sensations from the heart to the brain, or in cutting the nerves so that they cease to function, just as do severed telegraph wires. These operations, of course, do not cure angina pectoris, but make the disease more bearable by removing its most terrifying symptom. It is the most painful and one of the commonest forms of heart trouble.

Treat Patients in Homes.

The alcohol is injected into the nerves at a point where they emerge from between the ribs and the chest. The operation can be performed in the patient's home or during a very short stay in the hospital, and so far, Dr. White stated, there have been no deaths or serious complications resulting from it.

Dr. Paul B. White of Boston also spoke on angina pectoris. He said it is apparently increasing, partly, at least, because of the tendency of modern people to "burn the candle at both ends." He said "our much vaunted civilization" can be blamed for much of the increase in the disease at the present time.

Rules of health published in 1542 by the University of Salerno, Italy, he quoted as still applying for those who wish to avoid angina pectoris. They include "avoyde great charges, thought, and care; eschewe anger; eate and drynke sobrely." A fourth rule advises exercise.

Progress in Diphtheria.

If early promise is sustained, children may in future be immunized against diphtheria in a single week instead of being treated for three months, Dr. Alton Goldbloom of Montreal told the surgeons today.

At the Montreal Children's hospital, where the new method of immunization is beineg developed, a concentrated solution of toxoid or antitoxin is injected under the first layer of the skin, instead of entirely under the skin in weaker strength as is the present general practice. The method is an outgrowth of recent experiments conducted elsewhere and later checked up in Montreal by Dr. Goldbloom.

Efforts also were made to make monkeys immune to infantile paralysis. It was discovered that the skin itself has the power of mustering the disease resisting faculties of the body. As a result there has been developed an ointment which is smeared on the skin of the child to produce resistance to infantile paralysis. Dr. Goldbloom and Dr. David Klein have applied this system, at least in part, to produce immunization against diphtheria.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 10.—Carlos de la Rosa, 59, senator from Matanzas and vice president during President Machado's first term, 1925-'29, died suddenly last night. At a luncheon yesterday, De la Rosa engaged in a bitter controversy with Matanzas political leaders over electoral problems. He was stricken shortly afterward. WALLED PRISON FOR CRIMINAL DEFECTIVE ASKED

D. D. Coffey, superintendent of the Chicago State Hospital for the Insane at Dunning, yesterday advocated a walled institution in which to keep mental defectives convicted of crime. Speaking of the case of Miss Anna King, who was sentenced to the Dunning institution for the murder of her mother, Mr. Coffey said that "it would be far better to segregate such cases."

"For the safety of the other patients and the people in general," he said, "it is necessary to place such people in an institution from which they cannot escape. We have no way of being sure that patients will remain here. Ten or 12 escape each year, but we usually apprehend them through the aid of their relatives."

He approved the plan to use the deserted woman's prison at Joliet for mental defectives.

Dietrich Pants Bring Moans from Designer

Gown Stylist Expresses His Deep Regrets.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 10.—Joe Strassner, gown designer, who came to Hollywood from Berlin with Lilian Harvey, is an old friend of Marlene Dietrich. But Strassner is another of Marlene's well wishers who wishes she would get out of men's clothes.

"It is too bad," he thinks, "I was at the Mayfair party. I see her in a man's dinner jacket. I am reminded of nothing except a café in Berlin where the waitresses dress like men.

"Miss Dietrich is so beautiful as herself. To model beautiful gowns for her would be a joy for any dress designer. It is not right that such beauty and such a figure should not be properly set off."

Strassner is only one of a retinue to be brought to the Fox studio from abroad with Miss Harvey. Her favorite director, Dr. Paul Martin, will sail from Germany in a few weeks to join her and probably to direct her second picture here. Her own foreign automobile and her own chauffeur, Gustave Bohm, German war flier, who was shot down in the English channel and interned in Britain for two years, also is here with her.

Miss Harvey's first film is being directed by John Blystone, one of Fox's tried and true directors, who was assigned to "break in" the blonde continental star to American film technique, mannerisms, policy, and taboos. It was thought that after one film with a standard American director Miss Harvey would know what to do to please American audiences and she can thus choose her European director for a succeeding film.

Ruth Selwyn, one of the few women who have successfully produced plays, temporarily has halted her career as screen actress to make a brief trip to New York preparatory to a resumption of her stage producing activities in Hollywood. She has just finished "A Woman Must Give," originally known as "Men Must Fight," at MGM.

Constance Cummings today won a suit intended to release her officially from serving at $125 for Columbia, so that she may accept another offer at $500 a week. The actress sued to have the Superior court rule her Columbia contract, based on a system of six months options renewals, definitely void, because of the studio's failure to serve legal notice of option renewal at the close of the most recent six months period. The studio had contended it had served oral notice.

Gilbert Miller, just arrived from New York to make his debut as producer-director for Columbia, says. "For the stage there seems to be left only the drama of thought—the sort of play that has an appeal to a fairly well limited number of people throughout the world. The melodrama, the play of action, has been taken over completely by the films. Accordingly, while I am not abandoning the stage, and never will, I am fascinated by the prospect of producing and directing films."

Mrs. Miller is here with him. He will select his own vehicles to produce for Columbia and share in the profits of completed films. Miller had rejected many offers to join the film industry.

SKIRTS FOR MEN

Hollywood, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The other side of the men's pants for women question was demonstrated today by Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, screen comedians, to a pop eyed throng.

They appeared in perhaps the most public place in Hollywood wearing skirts. But they wore men's coats shirts, and shoes.

The scene was in front of a popular café.

"Skirts were good enough for my mother, so they're good enough for me," quoth Wheeler.

They were accompanied by Wallace Beery and Tom Mix and a traffic jam was barely averted.

Wheeler and Woolsey advocate skirts for men for these reasons:

Skirts are more comfortable than pants.

Skirts have no pockets for a wife to search.

Skirts do away with baggy trousers.

Skirts have no place for money carrying, so the women will have to pay luncheon checks.

Millionaires' Club Will Hold Northern Meeting in Chicago

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The committee of 100, exclusive body of wealthy winter residents and known sometimes as the "millionaires' club of Miami Beach," will hold its annual northern meeting for 1933 in Chicago in October, it was announced today.

The committee, composed of approximately 100 members, has 36 Chicagoans on its roster.

Five Chicagoans were appointed as a group to plan for the meeting, which will include attendance at the World's Fair. They are Fred A. Poor, Charles A. McCulloch, Fred B. Snite, Warren Wright, and John D. Hertz.

Miss Louise Taylor to Wed Massachusetts Man

New York, Feb. 10. [Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. William Annan Taylor of 9516 South Winchester avenue, Chicago, have announced to relatives and friends in this city the engagement of their daughter, Miss Louise Taylor, to Roger Wellington Holmes of Cambridge, Mass., son of the Rev. and Mrs. John Haynes Holmes of this city. Miss Taylor attended the University of Chicago and was graduated from the Art Institute of Chicago in 1927. Mr. Holmes was graduated from Harvard in 1926 and received his M. A. degree from that university in 1932.

Good Morning!

Think you they'll ever permit Warren William to be a good boy again? I doubt it!

This excellent, John Barrymore resembling actor scored so high in "The Match King" as a cold blooded, completely conscienceless villain that I fear he's oiled a road for himself over which he may be compelled to travel ad infinitum. A pity! For Mr. William is versatile and should be allowed free play for his talents. Maybe he will be. HOWEVER—in "Employés' Entrance" he is again cast as a relentless master of men and women.

He is seen as the brilliant, ruthless dictator of a great department store. No milk of kindness runs in his veins. When a man or a woman ceases to be definitely valuable to the store's money making program, out goes the employé. Kurt Anderson dominates the board of directors, treating its president with a contempt the latter must like or else . . .

Married. NO! Nor ever will be. He takes his women and leaves 'em. It's the only way, he tells the admiring youth he aspires to train in his ways.

The boy, Martin West, has a wife who models in the store and who has known Anderson too sadly well before she obtained her position at his hands.

The finale is melodramatic and not exactly convincing, but it, like the story as a whole, is interesting by reason of Mr. William's very effective characterization. Loretta Young, Wallace Ford, and Alice White uphold him nobly.

Alice is funny! Looks and acts just like a blonde Betty Boop!

See you tomorrow!

Physician Says Soy Bean Milk May Be Chief Diet of Babies

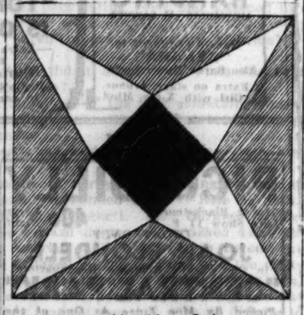
The time may come when as an economic measure the soy bean, now used chiefly for forage, may become the diet of the infant and young child to the exclusion of animal milk. Dr. A. H. Parmelee, clinical instructor in pediatrics at Rush Medical college of the University of Chicago, discussed this possibility yesterday before the mid-west regional meeting of dietitians, sponsored by the Illinois Dietetic association at the Belden-Stratford hotel.

Soy bean milk or cereal is a new trend in infant feeding in this country, although it was known to the Chinese 5,000 years B. C., Dr. Parmelee said. It has been only in recent years, he explained, that nutrition experts and pediatricians have begun to see the possibilities of the product as a complete diet for an infant.

"In fact the soy bean is being used right now entirely for the feeding of children who are sensitive to certain foods. The soy bean is a vegetable rich in protein, with almost no starch, a small amount of carbohydrates, is rich in fats, deficient in calcium and phosporous, but adequate in vitamins A and B, and moderate in C and D," Dr. Parmelee said.

"The use of vegetables at an early age is change in the trend of infant feeding," the doctor continued. "Each year we push back the starting point of feeding babies vegetables another week or two until now we find that infants are being given vegetable purees from 6 weeks, 3 months, on up. But we should guard against putting too great strain on the intestinal canal by the feeding of vegetables containing too much cellulose."

Unusual Quilt Based on Pretty All-Over Design



World Without End.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The name "World Without End was taken from the book of common prayer. And when you see the entire quilt pieced in this design it certainly gives the impression of world without end . . . or beginning, for that matter.

It is an all over design, the pieced blocks being stitched together without intervening blocks of white. The points of the stars join at the corners forming a kaleidoscopic design.

This pattern has been pieced, too, in just two colors with the center square the same as the background but with the colors reversed on alternate blocks.

For a pattern of the "World Without End" design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

CLASS DAY.

"Here is a letter I received this morning," said Prof. Fordney, drawing a single sheet of paper from an envelope as he addressed his class. "I will read it through and then I want each of you to write, in less than 50 words, what procedure you would follow in handling this man's case.

February 9, 1933.

Dear Prof. Fordney:

No doubt you read in the newspapers two months ago of the event that caused my arrest. I am appealing to you because I know you will be quick to appreciate the injustice of my situation.

In the first place, I am confident you will believe that I shot King Morrison in self-defense and in protection of my property which surely is a fundamental right!

When I surprised him robbing my melon patch he became excited and unintentionally, I believe, shot at me. When he refused to put down his gun I fired, and if he hadn't suddenly jumped to the right the wound would not have been fatal.

The Negroes in the community believe that I murdered King in cold blood. However, I am sure you will agree that I acted in self-defense. May I count on your help?

Sincerely,
LEE MASON,
Durand, Wis.

"You have fifteen minutes before closing time," remarked Fordney as every one in the class but Irving Bell started to write. "Better hurry, son," he warned.

"Not me," laughed Irving. "I'm paying no more attention to it than you are, professor!"

WHY WAS BELL JUSTIFIED?

The above was sent to Prof. Fordney by Henry Haldane, master magician, Chicago, for a class day problem.

Perhaps you have one you would like to send him. If so address him, care of this paper. He will be delighted to see what his students make of it.

Catholic Women Meet to Plan Benefit Card Party

Representatives of various organizations of Catholic women affiliated with the Council of Catholic Women met yesterday at the Palmer house to make plans for a large benefit card party to provide funds for an ambitious program of welfare work for girls to be carried out under auspices of the council. The Rev. Thomas F. Egan, pastor of St. Sabina's parish, was named general chairman in charge of the several committees arranging the event, which will be held Feb. 18 at the same hotel. The affair is the first to be sponsored by the federated organizations for this purpose.

Guila Bustabo Again Shows Violin Skill

BY EDWARD MOORE.

For a number of seasons Guila Bustabo has been acclaimed as a young technical marvel on the violin, and her return to Orchestra hall last night after a protracted term of study in New York indicated that she still deserves all that can be said of her in that respect.

It was said out in the front part of the house that she had been suffering an illness, but nothing of the sort was evident in her playing and there was not the slightest reason to grow apologetic about it. A technic such as hers does not let its possessor down so easily. She has most of what every brilliant violinist strives for, a tone of great beauty if of only moderate breadth, an ear of great accuracy, a set of fingers on her left hand that, whether they are moving slowly or with lightning rapidity, come down on the right millimeter of the string at exactly the right instant.

Her approach to the interpretive side of her music is, it is true, somewhat cooler than the joyous abandon with which she flings herself into a technical problem. At that, it is logical and correct. She is still young, sixteen years old, they say. What she has accomplished in that time classifies among the mysterious marvels of greatly talented youth.

Louis Persinger, her present instructor, was at the piano, supporting her with the same unobtrusive certainly as when he gave Chicago its first hearing of two other youthful marvels of the violin, Menuhin and Ricci. With him she played Sinding's Suite in A minor, which after long silence is beginning to get popular again, and Goldmark's Concerto. Without him she played two movements from Bach's Sonta in C for violin unaccompanied, then he returned for the two final numbers of the program, Chausson's "Poème" and Paganini's "I Palpiti." It was a program to test the capabilities of a violinist of any age, and the audience with good reason was adulatory.

Stylish Hose Perfect for a Valentine

New Shades of Gray Appeal to Wise Buyers.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Sentimental sundries for sentimental though practical shoppers who search for feminine fripperies instead of befrilled and bowknotted valentines for the gal of today are near to her appreciative heart—hose and still more hose. The female doesn't live who spurns socks, dozens of them, from the fragile, misty affairs that go out of nights to the sturdy though sheer numbers that trot about town of days. New shades are as exciting as a new movie, so shop knowingly, for all the brand new tones, the grays that will complement the new gray suits, shoes, and costume accessories.

One fashion shop is quite pardonably excited over a goodly supply of silver grays that are absolutely guaranteed to swish through all kinds of soap and water and emerge without all those fantastic mauve streaks that used to ruin a perfectly good gray shade in years gone by. This silver tone is a perfect gray, pale and interesting, just the tone for all the light gray suits and frocks you are going to wear this coming spring.

And all you shoppers who remember the grand old standby, the taupe toned hosiery, are going to cheer loudly for its revival. This same shop has all kinds of this flattering, slenderizing color, a taupe that can be worn with black, brown, blue and green; in fact, the best all purpose stocking of history.

Then hustling along in close harmoney with the other gray shades is a new light gunmetal shade that is ravishing with oxford gray clothes of the pumice and dark gray woolens. It certainly will do slim things for thickened ankles, as this blackish gray makes any ankle a mere shadow of what it is in any other lighter shade.

If you want stockings that are gray with just a suggestion of brown, you'll find some new shades that satisfy that demand, and if you want to be miles ahead in your fashion knowledge try some of the gray beige tones to wear with your black costumes . . . for very husky whispers have been heard about the smartness of wearing beige hose and beige tinted gloves with smart dark gray costumes and black shoes, a black hat and a black handbag.

For the sports enthusiast as well as the gal who swanks around in brogues and walking oxfords you couldn't find anything better as a sentimental remembrance than the lisle lace or mesh hosiery. This foot-warming invention comes in two good looking shades, a good beige and a gray. The stockings are as thin as any silk, but they are warmer, the small precise pattern is as lovely as any lace design in decorative evening hose, and they are positively a knockout with tweeds, woolens, and knitted things in or out of doors.

Lovely new shades for cobwebby evening hose feature a lot of shimmering silver tints, some pale nude tints and a sun-tan that is perfect, a sun-tan with enough of the beige cast to be a successful tone for summer wear with pastel colored and white fotwear.

The royal road to romance reaches the most obdurate heart, via the hosiery route! . . . send them and prove it!

Lelong Designs Taffeta Frock for College Girl

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Junior proms and college dances generally get small attention from the French dressmakers. These dignitaries don't understand that education has its lighter moments, unless they have been in America and seen for themselves. Lucien Lelong is one who has, and who every season creates a flock of dance dresses for the college girl.

This season Lelong has a group of taffeta dresses created with the junior prom in mind. Each frock sports a little wrap that can be worn or not according to the temperature and the girl. One of the prettiest is shown in the sketch today. It is made of white taffeta, and has a little cape of twilight blue velvet to throw around the shoulders when sitting out a dance in dim places.

The dress has a very simple bodice with a panel down the front and back and a square neckline. The skirt also has full length panels down the front and back. It has a fitted hip yoke at the sides, below which the sides of the skirt are shirred in two deep rows of shirring, and fall in gathers from this shirring to the hem.

The capelet is a three circular tier affair, which comes about half way down the upper arm, and which has a cravat of white ermine that is knotted in front.

Thieme Offers New Subjects in Art Display

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An exhibit of paintings by Anthony Thieme, which has just opened in the Carson Pirie Scott galleries, is an event of moment. Thieme as a painter has grown in popularity with the years. He has been awarded numerous popular prizes in exhibitions of this year and last.

Chiefly he has been in the habit of painting ships, either fishing boats tied to a dock with a glimpse of wet pier and glistening gray water, or boats out on the ocean at the mercy of tide and wind. Always there has been a romantic flavor about his work and always he has preached the gospel of beauty.

In his present show he has increased his range of subject matter. A trip to Holland accounts for a number of the pictures. Mr. Thieme was born in Rotterdam and his love for the low fields, slow canals, the little cottages, urgent windmills and placid cows is real. He has woven a magnificent pageant of loveliness about them. His preference for gray skies, with just a little scrap of blue showing here and there, is obvious as is his preference for trees in the spring. Again and again are the gray skies and spring trees found in these paintings.

But one does not tire of them. Always an element of surprise lurks ready to sweep you from your feet. Spring with fruit trees in blossom is the different note struck in "The Blue Door." A few white chickens tantalize one in another painting and again the eye is held by shadows in the water.

The cloak of Sargent covers "Near the Sand Dunes," a picturesque incident of the life of the fisher folk. "Gathering Wood" is another bit of work put into poetry.

The paintings are all effective, decorative, pleasing and satisfying. Among the finest, perhaps, are "A Dutch Farmer," "Morning, Holland," "Morning Light," "Evening in Foreign Waters," "Peace," "A Dutch Windmill" and "Reflections."

The exhibit will continue to Feb. 26, and is well worth seeing.

Prehistoric Animal Life Will Be Shown at Fair

Animated dinosaurs, life size mechanical models of the type of animals who inhabited the earth a hundred million years ago, will waggle their tails and shake their heads in one of the exhibits at A Century of Progress exposition. The animals will cavort about a lake among other strange forms of life of that age, a part of the exhibit by the Sinclair Refining company. A cavern showing geologic strata in which oil originates will be installed in the exhibit.

Onwentsia Hunt Hounds Arrive at Aiken Today

Austin H. Niblack There for Short Holiday.

BY JUDITH CASS.

AUSTIN H. NIBLACK will spend today making sure of the safe arrival of the 23 couples of the Onwentsia Hunt club hounds at Aiken. He shipped them off in grand style the beginning of the week and then boarded the train himself on Thursday to join Mrs. Niblack at the South Carolina resort, where she has already opened their house.

Master of the Onwentsia hunt, Mr. Niblack will spend most of his two weeks' holiday riding to hounds. Among the huntsmen already at Aiken is Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, the New York grandmother, who keeps up with the best of them riding the courses and taking the jumps. Mrs. Merrill Hubbard and Roger Hyatt will join the Niblacks at Aiken, leaving town this noon.

Mr. Niblack will see that the hounds return to Chicago the beginning of March for the Onwentsia hunt, which is to be moved this year from Milburn to the great Libertyville estate that once belonged to the Samuel Insulls. Adjoining these properties is Mellody farm, once the pride and joy of the late J. Ogden Armour. The Onwentsia hunt will also use this course.

Riding Classes at Onwentsia.

Other "equine" news from Lake Forest comes from the handsome indoor arena at the Onwentsia club. Classes of smart young equestriennes are meeting every Monday and Thursday afternoons in the big ring to practice "jumps" under the direction of two army officers who come down from Fort Sheridan.

Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter is one of the aptest pupils, and then there are Mrs. John A. King, Mrs. Champ Carry, Mrs. David B. Peck, Mrs. James B. Forgan, Mrs. Keith Carpenter, Mrs. Stuart J. Templeton, Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., and the two Welles, Mrs. Donald P. Welles and Mrs. Edward K. Welles.

As compensation for their many hours of hard work there's to be a gymkhana some time the next month when the students can demonstrate for all their friends their proficiency in jumping and making military formations. As a matter of fact, there's compensation every week in the tea party given after each class. On Thursday Mrs. James B. Forgan was the hostess.

Even more interesting perhaps than the army classes are the children's sessions three afternoons a week and every Saturday morning. No one would dream the small equestriennes were beginners to see the way they keep heels down and curve their sturdy legs around their big mounts. Among the blue ribbon winners in this group are "Bilasy" King, the John A. Kings' daughter, and Mrs. Merrill Hubbard's two daughters, Mario Merrill and Elizabeth.

Ice Carnival for Children Today.

It will not be horseback riding that will interest young Lake Foresters this afternoon, however, for the annual ice carnival at the Winter club will take place then, and all the youngsters will don fancy costumes over their skating outfits for the event. There will be a grand march, fourteen races and figure skating contests followed by hot refreshments.

Winnetka youngsters also will put on fancy costumes over their warm skating clothes this afternoon to participate in the ice carnival at the Indian Hill club. A hot supper will be the finale of the party. The club had to call off its skating party last Thursday night because of the intense cold.

Three to Become Brides Today.

Three weddings of interest are taking place today, all small, in fact two of them will be witnessed by only members of the immediate families and to the other one only a few friends have been invited.

Miss Edith Boynton, daughter of Mrs. Charles T. Boynton, is to become the bride of John H. Harmon at the residence of her mother, Ravinoaks, in Highland Park, at 11 o'clock the Rev. Duncan H. Browne of St. James' church officiating. Only the members of the families, including the bride's mother and sister and brother, Mrs. Everett L. Millard and Donald S. Boynton, and their families, and the bridegroom's children, John H. Jr., Ethel and Emily, and his brothers, Arthur L. Harmon and Hubert P. Harmon, and the latter's wife and children will be present.

After the ceremony there will be a wedding breakfast and then the bride and bridegroom will leave for Florida. Upon their return they will be at home at the residence of Mr. Harmon on Laurel avenue in Highland Park.

Miss Emily Chester Battelle is to become Mrs. Douglas Seymour Offutt at the somewhat early hour of 10 o'clock [early for Protestant services] this morning because that is the only time that the Rev. John Timothy Stone can officiate. His work as the head of the Presbyterian Theological seminary keeps him traveling almost constantly and he is coming to Chicago this morning especially to fulfill a promise he made to "little Emily" long ago to "tie the knot" for her.

He arrives this morning about 8 and leaves again at 10:40, so there will be just time for him to get up to the Ambassador East, where the bride and her mother, Mrs. Albert Chester Battelle, live, and where the wedding is to take place, perform the ceremony, eat a piece of wedding cake and hurry back to the railroad station.

Only members of the immediate families will be present and there will be no attendants. Mr. Offutt, who is the son of Mrs. Ellwood Offutt, and his bride will leave immediately after the wedding to motor to New York and then they will go to Florida via

Use Corn Sirup to Keep Icing, Candy Creamy

Also Tends to Prevent Crystallization.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented weekly by Miss Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 9:45 today for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Well, here's a thought!

One TRIBUNE reader suggests that we call our Saturday first aid to the cook column "The Cook's Life Line" because it has pulled so many kitcheneers with fallen cakes, weepy custards, curdled soups and grainy candies out from the depths of despair to the firm land of understanding.

We thank you! And don't forget that if kitchen catastrophies or puzzlers do turn up at your house we want to help you find the reason. And if you are minus a recipe your soul or your husband covets, tell us that, too, and we'll do our best to track it down.

First today comes a query from Miss H. K. She writes: "Why does my seven minute frosting always turn sugary and hard? I've tried boiling it not quite seven minutes, but it doesn't seem to help."

It is a bit hard to answer that question, since it is most likely that your recipe is at fault. If there is too great a proportion of sugar to other ingredients in any candy mixture, crystallization or graininess will follow, and once large crystals have started to form, the only way to really save the frosting is to add more liquid and recook it. However, there is one ingredient sometimes used in cooking sugars which slows up the forming of these crystals and tends to give us more creamy candies and frostings. This is corn sirup. The following recipe has given countless cooks satisfaction, and I believe it will solve your troubles.

SEVEN MINUTE FROSTING.

2 egg whites, unbeaten.
5 tablespoons water.
1½ teaspoons light corn sirup.
1½ cups sugar.
1 teaspoon flavoring.

Place all the ingredients except the flavoring in the top of a double boiler and beat until well blended. Then place over boiling water and cook beating steadily with a rotary beater for seven minutes, or until the frosting will stand by itself in peaks. Remove from the fire, stir in the flavoring, and continue whipping until it is of the correct consistency to spread

Next from Mrs. M. M. T.: "I have always used a certain cooking fat for deep fat frying, but hoping to economize, I would like to use lard. Will you tell me how hot it should be and if there are any other points about it?"

Since lard has a somewhat lower smoking temperature than most other frying fats, this must be watched, as smoking means a breaking down of the fat, a discoloration, and the coming of a disagreeable flavor.

For potato chips, shoestring potatoes, French fried potatoes and fried chicken, heat the lard to 375 degrees F. Doughnuts call for only 365 degrees F. for frying. Veal cutlets are best at 350 degrees F. It is particularly important in using lard for frying that no food bits are left in. Strain after each using through a heavy piece of cheesecloth and clarify still further before using by dropping several slices of raw potato in the cold fat. Heat gradually until the slices are well browned, then remove by straining. Between fryings keep the fat well covered and in a cold place.

Mrs. T. N. B. is having trouble with last summer's jellies, which are molding. "How can I prevent jellies from molding?" she asks.

In the first place, remember, mold is really a growth of bacteria which is floating in the air and has found a favorable place to grow and spread. That means either that the jelly glasses had microscopic mold spores on them when the jelly was put in, or that the seal was not tight and they have found their way in since. Jelly that has a low percentage of sugar will also tend to ferment and mold more easily than a sweeter jelly. With such a jelly it is often necessary to sterilize the glasses and take the utmost pains with the immediate and complete sealing with paraffin. This is desirable but not so essential when there is more sugar in the jelly.

GASOLINE ALLEY—GONE AGAIN

THE MAN WHO STOLE THE OLD CAR, LEFT TO THE KIDS BY A STRANGER, HAS BEEN APPREHENDED. AND THE KIDS IDENTIFY HIM AS THE MAN WHO GAVE THEM THE CAR IN THE FIRST PLACE!
ARE YOU SURE HE GAVE IT TO YOU, SKEEZIX?
SURE HE DID.
HE SAID HE WOULDN'T TOUCH IT AGAIN FOR A MILLION BUCKS.
I DIDN'T GIVE IT. I JUST LENT IT.
WE'D BETTER GIVE HIM THE PRIVILEGE OF CHANGING HIS MIND HADN'T WE?
BUT WE FIXED IT ALL UP!
EVEN SO IF IT WAS REALLY HIS, WE CAN'T HOLD HIM FOR STEALING IT.

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," rows to town and sends Bart help and taxies home. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived on the island fifteen years, but don't mix. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, died suddenly from a heart attack. Bart is left with the care of his invalid mother. The family lawyer gives Bart a letter left for him by his father, in which he confesses to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly island are his second family. They knew him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his mother's sake to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. He returns two weeks later with the legacy. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem. He spends a week-end at the island. Bart realizes he loves Alice, but couldn't marry her. He resolves to stay away from Folly Island. He sees a lot of Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcée.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

UNEXPECTEDLY ENGAGED.

It was a rosy little dinner, the world growing brighter and better all the time for Bart Burgess. He approved of Lora, here in her small domestic atmosphere. She seemed toned down, somehow. Poor kid. Probably the world had given her a pretty rough ride. That claret was all right. A little raw and inky, perhaps, but it had a way of pulling them all together. . . . Wonderful what Mrs. Bayley could do over there, with no servants and an old oil stove. Her cooking deserved fine vintage wine. Everything around her was fine. Her flowers. Alice. . . .

Mrs. Lind was talking on and on, Bart making appropriate responses laughing in the right places. He hadn't realized before that Mrs. Lind could talk so much. But she was a nice little woman, rather amusing, too. Always liked Mrs. Lind. Bully mother-in-law for somebody. But what was the matter with Lora tonight? Just sitting back, listening. It was becoming to her, being so quiet in that silver gilt outfit. And the pretty perfume in her hair. Might be a good idea to tell her how nice she could be when she was just quiet. . . .

"Kiss us both," demanded Lora. "Kiss us both."

Then dinner was over, and Mrs. Lind sipped coffee in the drawing room while Viola went for her wraps. "And call a taxi," she demanded rather pointedly.

"Why fool with a taxi?" asked Bart. "My car's outside, and Thomas not doing a thing. I'll be beating it after a while. Awful job on tomorrow. Just send it back for me, and I'll send it back for you. How's that?" Perhaps he was trying to shorten his evening with Lora, unexpectedly left on his hands.

"That's awfully sweet of you, but ——"

"Don't stand there calling him names, mother," broke in Lora. "Go ahead and mind your boss."

So Mrs. Lind went ahead.

It was nearing eleven; Bart and Lora were still seated on the narrow sofa from which they had not stirred for nearly two hours. Their voices had become dangerously low. Lora's had lost its high, nervous timbre. Again he wondered that she could be still so long. He was quite sober now, he imagined, although he had said some fool things. An idiot in the back of his head kept calling out, "Well, after all . . . well, after all. . ."

"There must be some other girl in it," she was saying.

"Nerts!"

"Don't look so guilty. You haven't kidnaped her, have you? Besides, you're free, white, and twenty-one."

"Nobody can be all those things."

"Well, tell me about that other girl. I know she isn't good for you, so I'd love to know about her."

"Whew. You're talking like Nosey Warren."

"He told me about her."

"No!" What trail had Ingy been following?

"Yep. Her name's Alice, or something old fashioned. She lives on a rock in the middle of the ocean and digs clams. I'll bet she's common as dirt. Naturally I loathe her."

"On account of which?"

"What do you think, fool?" The eyes of a tame gazelle were swimming into his. Charming lights in them. He wished he'd passed up that last cocktail.

"Bart, dear, have you had a bump or something?"

She was so gentle now; he remembered the almost caressing touch of the serviette, passing over his shirtfront.

"Do I look bumped?"

"Yes, you do."

"You're not such a bubble yourself tonight."

"No." She surprised him with a sigh. "People get to thinking, you know."

"Gosh, are you taken that way?" His laugh was hollow.

"They made me what I am today, I hope you're satisfied." This was Lora. Then somebody else, more to be considered. "I'm young—and experienced. It's queer what a darned fool an experienced woman can be. Bart, I'm a lady born. I can stand back and see myself hooning around, and I know that's not the idea at all. Anything alive will jump when you put it on a hot griddle. Don't think I'm a great, suffering Joan of Arc. That girl was something else again."

"And what are you?" A question you can ask of any woman and expect an interesting answer.

"I'm a one man girl. I'm a female person who likes to give a lot—that's because I'm fearfully selfish. You know now that I've been thinking."

"That doesn't do either of us any good."

"You must have had a bump." Her penetrating voice had softened to a lower violin note. Her round, dark eyes were drawing him with a very feminine wish. "Bart," she invited, "aren't you at all in love with me?"

"I don't know."

"You are. You know you are." It didn't shock him when she said, "We ought to get married. Why don't we?"

"Well, after all. . . . Well, after all ——" the idiot something jingled in his head. He felt her arms around his neck, silken and sweet. Her lips were sweet, too, as he remembered them. . . .

The doorbell rang. "It's mother," she said, jumping away from him, and she ran to let her in.

Mrs. Lind, roly-poly, slightly shabby in her purple evening coat, came into the drawing room. "Kiss us both," demanded Lora. "Kiss us both."

Yes, it was easy to be in love with Lora Sackett. Bart Burgess fortified himself with this thought as he rode toward home, and brushed away the congratulatory kiss of a somewhat worried lady who was to become his mother-in-law. A little drunk, a little drugged by the perfume and the white eager arms of Lora Sackett, he felt that he had found a simple answer to all his nagging questions. It had come so naturally, just as a matter of course. So that's how people get married. They just get together with no definite intentions, and the next they know they're engaged.

But just how had it come about? As he recalled it, he had arrived at the Lind house with his mind made up to do nothing about Lora. Then Mrs Lind had to go and play bridge. Then Lora's talk had become more and more personal, drawing closer and closer around him, like a goose—a pleasant noose of silk and flowers. Had he asked her to marry him? No. It was Lora's "We ought to get married." But somebody had to say it. He'd have said it himself in a minute or so. Dear girl, she wasn't really hard the way she pretended. In his arms she had been as soft as a dove.

Beauty Answers

If there is any question pertaining to beauty and personal hygiene upon which you wish advice write to Antoinette Donnelly. The Chicago Tribune. Enclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

RUTH: LETTUCE, WHILE RECommended for its excellent minerals, rates very low in calorie value.

DOWAGER: WHITE CLOTHES are not becoming to certain women with white hair because of the yellowish effect on the hair. Silver gray is more flattering.

Go to Milwaukee for Wedding.

Among the Chicago friends who went to Milwaukee yesterday to attend the bridal dinner that the Thomas S. Van Alyeas were giving last night for Miss Elizabeth Cameron, who is to be married to Dr. O. E. Van Alyea this afternoon, were the Darrow B. Fultons, the Jay Frederick Reeves, William Boyd, and Henry Gross. Mrs. Thomas Van Alyea is to be Miss Cameron's matron of honor and Mr. Van Alyea will serve his brother as best man at the wedding, which takes place at 4:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Jackson Kemper. A classmate of the bride's father at Harvard, the Rev. Holmes Whitmore of St. Paul's Episcopal church, will officiate. The small nieces of the bridal couple, Harriet Van Alyea and Betty McKee Christensen, will be flower girls.

Dr. Van Alyea and his bride, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield H. Cameron of Milwaukee, will be in Chicago the early part of next week and will sail the end of the week from New Orleans for a trip to Cuba and Panama, returning about the middle of March. They will reside at 1512 Dearborn Park way.

So that those who are not dining at the Casino the night of the circus—next Saturday—may know what they are going to miss if they linger too long over their demi tasses and liqueurs the committee in charge has arranged a schedule of events. At 10 o'clock the side shows will open; at 11:35 the grand march will start; at 12 the "big show" will commence; and at 1 "Benny" Fairbank will perform his sleight of hand and magic tricks, and after that the serving of a buffet supper will start.

There will be dancing, of course, in between each part of the entertainment. The junior Henry Faurots and the Louis C. Sudlers are the only ones we've heard of so far who are entertaining at large dinners anywhere other than at the Casino, and among those who have made reservations for tables at dinner at the Casino that night are Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., whose daughter, Florence, is to be married to William A. Robinson that afternoon; Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry, Russell Tyson, the Orville Taylors, the Adlai E. Stevensons, the Ellsworth Lafins, the Edward H. Bennetts, and the Arthur Meekers. The proceeds of the circus will be the Casino's contribution to the Emergency Relief fund.

Tea Tomorrow for Count de Fleury.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett are giving a small tea party tomorrow afternoon at their Burton place residence for their house guest, Count Serge de Fleury, who was here last year to deliver several lectures but who this year is just passing through Chicago and stopping over for a visit with his numerous friends and acquaintances.

Today Robert Hall McCormick will entertain at luncheon for the count and on Monday Miss Lucy Martin will give a luncheon at the Arts club for the Frenchman.

More people who are enjoying the cold weather are those in the party headed by John Nash Ott Jr., who left last night to spend the week-end winter sporting at the Ott camp on Tomahawk lake, near Minocqua, Wis. Those who will be entertained by Mr. Ott are Mr. and Mrs. R. Douglas Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Forgan Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fowler of Lake Forest, Miss Jean Armstrong and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fisher of Winnetka, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harper and Miss Harper of Glencoe, and Henry Barlow of Chicago.

Mrs. Charles Barney Goodspeed will return this morning from a brief stay in Boston, where she went for a rest. She is in charge of publicity for the Chicago Friends of Music, president of the Arts club, and actively engaged in many other enterprises and affairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden left last night for Chandler, Ariz. They intend to return home at the end of five or six weeks.

Mrs. Alfred T. Carton and Miss Catherine Carton went to New York last Tuesday and Mr. Carton followed them the next day. They will be away just a week.

Mrs. Strotz, Son Leave Hospital.

Mrs. Harold C. Strotz and her ten day old son, who has been named Courtney Strotz, have left the Passavant hospital and are at home with Mr. Strotz at 1244 Stone street. Mrs. Strotz is the former Maxine Stresenreuter Culver.

Charles James is so busy in London that he is not coming to see his parents, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Ralph H. James, in Chicago, for the present. However, Mrs. James hopes to go abroad in April and visit him as well as her two daughters, Mrs. Gordon Stannus (Frances James) and Mrs. Charles Clarence Smith, the former Margaret James, who was married last July.

A letter from Miami brings the news that Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and her mother, Mrs. Charles Deering, often are guests of Richard F. Howe of New York in his box at Hialeah Park for the racing. Mr. Howe is Mrs. McCormick's uncle. Howell B. Erminger Jr. and his daughter, Miss Carolyn Erminger, are among other Chicago fashionables seen with Mr. Howe recently. Other Chicagoans seen at the track frequently are Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. McCulloch, Roy Carruthers, Warren Wright, Edward N. Hurley, John D. Hertz, and Albert D. Lasker.

Evanston's beloved "first lady," Miss Cornelia Gray Lunt, will pour tomorrow afternoon at the book tea

Society Learns How to Sew

Mrs. David H. Colville having a dress fitted by Miss Doris Bokum at the sewing school where these two young women and several others well known in society started this week learning how to make their own clothes. Mrs. Colville, a bride of about a year ago, and her husband moved here recently from the east, and Miss Bokum is the "subdeb" daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norris H. Bokum. Unlike most of the girls who make their debuts and then learn the utilitarian things that will fit them to be real helpmates when they are married, Miss Bokum has spent this year learning the homey things and next year will have her good times as a debutante. WEDDING

Miss Deborah Elizabeth Costello, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James T. Collins of 1242 Columbia avenue, will be married to Daniel Caulsield Goodwin of Des Moines at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Ignatius church. Traylor, Mrs. John F. Hagey, Mrs. Philip Shumway, Mrs. Chester D. Tripp, Mrs. Warren A. Lamson, Mrs. Peirce A. Ward, and Mrs. Charles J. Wright. The affair will be held in the Aragon ballroom and William S. Hennings is general chairman.

The South Suburban Winter club, which gives so many jolly parties each winter, is having a black and white party [costume or formal] tonight at the Olympic Fields Country club. Mrs. Joseph V. Lawrence is chairman of the hostess committee, and others serving on the committee are Mrs. Lyle Harper, Mrs. Mark Bates, Mrs. Harry Hobbs, Mrs. Earl Conant, Mrs. George Cullen, Mrs. Lee Carrier, Mrs. Clarence Mead, Mrs. William Pape, Mrs. Arthur Fitzner, Miss Catherine Alten, and Miss Elizabeth Davis.

On the second Sunday of every month at 5 o'clock the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel is the rendezvous of many music lovers of society, for the Woman's Symphony orchestra gives a concert at that time every month. Some of those who habitually attend the concerts are Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg, Mrs. George J. Jaeger, Mrs. Louis K. Boysen, Mrs. Welch Dickinson, Mrs. Royden Keith, and Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt.

The orchestra is composed entirely of women and it is unique in being the only woman's symphony with a woman conductor, presenting a regular series of concerts each season. Ebba Sundstrom is the conductor and Mrs. Arthur Byfield is the president of the organization. Tomorrow's concert features the violinist and guest conductor, Alexander Bloch.

Couple Bickers Early and Late Over Business

They'd Be Wise to Take Time for Recreation.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

They've been married but a short time—and it's argue, argue, argue the whole day long. They run a business together. Before they were married they were the best of pals. Suddenly all the old friendship seems to have vanished. For one thing, the business is not going so well. Then they are constantly under one another's feet.

She tells him: "If we both tried to please one another more, we might make a success of both marriage and business." He calls her silly and romantic for talking that way. If he is mad enough, he calls her worse than that. She loves him and would hate to leave him, but can't stand this much longer.

A case of nerves, probably. Two cases of nerves. The business is worrying each of the pair. One says: "If we'd do it this way!" The other offers his suggestions, which are rebuffed. Probably there is no release from this tension in the evening, since the shop is kept open late.

Now, it won't do to suggest that they try to please each other more. A working plan including this idea is needed. Some constructive program must be planned in which both man and woman get a little time off from business and from each other. An afternoon off a week for a movie, for some sort of escape from the shop worries, should be allotted each in turn. And a whole day off once in a while, too. A Sunday devoted entirely to a recuperative program, with no no talk of shop permitted, should be the rule.

Arguments over every little thing, arguments about nothing, indicate a harried state of nerves—and the worst treatment nerves may be subjected to is to keep them cooped up indoors twenty-four hours of the day, week in and week out. Better to let the business slump a bit than to eliminate all pleasure from the marriage scheme.

Youngsters Are of Varied Minds About Homework

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

All sorts of things serve as a background against which children's differentness shows itself. Take this everlasting homework. I happen to have had lately several conversations with the mothers of boys and girls in their first year of high school.

"My daughter adores her homework. She won't even do any of it in her study periods at school because she enjoys doing it at home," said one.

"Thelma feels so important over the pile of books she brings home and over all the various subjects she has to study and she's so proud of being in high school that I can't tear her away from her books at night," another mother told me.

"Margaret gets a real 'kick' out of having a report card and marks," said another acquaintance as we were comparing notes. "I never thought that that child, reared on progressive education's idea of no marks could be so thrilled over A plus, B minus, and C."

The mother of a boy said the same thing. "All John talks about for a week after the report comes in is those marks. He seems determined to make them as high as possible."

But another boy's mother had a different story to tell. "Arthur certainly hates his homework. He likes school, but he says when he gets home he thinks there ought to be something else besides algebra and French and books, books, books. He doesn't see the need of advanced mathematics if you're not going to adopt a profession in which you need them. He doesn't think your shoulders should be bent over lessons and writing all day long.

"I like to be outdoors with my animals. I want to watch all my pollywogs and fence lizards and turtles. I want to draw and read a book once in a while. But I don't have any time to do those things. I think it's all wrong—these mountains of homework."

For him it is. For the others probably not. Each child reacts according to his nature. Schools don't take this into account. Perhaps they can't. But mothers must try to. Where the child doesn't fall into the pattern set she has her work cut out for her. But she must do what she can with the situation for the child's sake.

The only way

DOWN under the toilet bowl is the trap. No scrubbing ever cleans it, because no brush can reach it. Germs breed there. Odors result. Sani-Flush is the way to purify that trap.
Ugly stains in the bowl yield to this odorless cleanser too. Sprinkle a bit of Sani-Flush in the toilet. (Follow directions on the can.) Flush—and the porcelain sparkles like new. Yet you haven't scrubbed or scoured. Sani-Flush does all the work for you. It cannot harm plumbing.

It Takes Long Time to Make Thick Lashes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I hear conflicting reports from eyelash growers. Some women say they've been applying this and that cosmetic item to the lashes with very little success. Some report success, a definite increase in the length and thickness of said lash. I suspect that the complaints about nonsuccess might, on investigation, prove a lax method of application.

One night the cosmetic is applied; six nights it is neglected—and in such cases the product is always wrong! I've noticed this to be true of other cosmetic items, a massage cream, say, or an astringent, or a wrinkle corrective. Even a good diet suffers the same abuse.

I doubt if anything takes quite the same length of time to show results that do eyelash growing aids. A month or two means nothing. A fair test is six months or a year. What brought up this theme today was the reappearance of an old friend, and a luncheon date with her at which she told me of her success with castor oil as an eyelash grower. Her lashes had improved, because I did not remember them as anything outstanding. Today they are quite lovely.

But it was a year's patient treatment that brought them to their current state, my friend reported. Her shiny upper lid [now frankly smart, if you'll notice] she explained as more castor oil—just the bit left on her finger tip after her eyelash treatment. Incidentally, this shiny lid is going to do a lot to prevent the crinkled, wrinkled lids so often seen on otherwise finely preserved women, if the style holds, which we hope it will.

Manufacturers are getting out preparations to meet this style demand, creams with ingredients that lubricate without leaving a heavy surface oil.

One noticeable advance in eye treatment is the rarity of that hard, black line drawn under or along the lower lid. The lower lid these days is left alone. The lashes are given what coloring is needed and the upper lid shaded with a becoming paste where fancy so dictates.

It's interesting to note the way the spotlight shifts from feature to feature. Right now it is the eyes that are "hogging the stage," so to speak.

GOLDEN GLOVES NO PROBLEM FOR MATHEMATICIAN

Purdue's Mr. Beyler Surprises 'Em.

Chicago boys begin the quest for Golden Gloves Monday at Guyon's Paradise on the west side. More than 600 have entered the first of the four city sectional meets. Details on following page.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 10.—For two years A. E. Beyler has been an enigma here on the Purdue university campus. To be sure, the professors have known right along that he was an excellent student, particularly brilliant in mathematics.

His classmates, however, didn't know just how to catalog him. They heard him recite well and saw him flit from one building to another always carrying an armload of books. He was of excellent physique, yet there seemed to be no branch of athletic activities which interested him. This was indeed unusual at Purdue, where nearly all the able bodied men are rounded up for one sport or another.

The life of Beyler, to those who thought about him at all, appeared to be just one armload of books after another.

Imagine Their Surprise.

Imagine the excitement among the Purdue students and townspeople who draped themselves around the ringside at the Journal and Courier's Golden Gloves tournament here last night when who should crawl through the ropes to fight for the light heavyweight championship but the mysterious Mr. Beyler.

Opposing him for the title were three of Purdue's huskiest freshmen football players. They were perfect physical specimens—hard as nails from their many tussles against Purdue's famous varsity team last fall.

But did that feaze the studious Mr. Beyler?

It did not.

With a left handed attack which immediately sent the several thousand spectators into a frenzy he tore into the football gladiators.

It's Just a Workout.

First he knocked the tar out of Carl Kintz, freshman lineman. His next victim was Charley Wilds, who many times last fall had led the freshmen charges against Purdue's varsity eleven. Lastly, he bowled over Rex Martin, giant full back.

Came the piercing voice of the announcer, "The new champion, Ladies and Gentlemen, is A. E. Beyler of Purdue."

The effect on the crowd was electric. They stormed and roared in their excitement. They were happy in the thought that this newly discovered fount of energy and strength would carry on for them in THE TRIBUNE'S Tournament of Champions, beginning at the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 27.

The effect on Beyler was entirely different. While waiting in the dressing room to pose for a photograph with other members of the Lafayette team, he was found busy with a sheet of trigonometry problems.

Lafayette's Best Team.

Beyler will travel to Chicago as a member of the best team Lafayette ever has sent to the Tournament of Champions. Its complete makeup as determined by victories in last night's battles is as follows:

112 pounds—Bobby Blake, Delphi.
118 pounds—Dick Baker, Crawfordsville.
126 pounds—Dick Noonan, Crawfordsville.
135 pounds—Bill Reynolds, Lafayette.
147 pounds—Way Woods, West Lafayette.
160 pounds—Dutchy Long, Purdue.
175 pounds—A. E. Beyler, Purdue.
Heavyweight—Sock Kurtz, Purdue.

Blake, Noonan and Kurtz were all members of the Lafayette team last year and each has improved considerably. Kurtz, who for three years played in the Purdue university backfield, won his heavyweight title last night when he rocked Hayden Johnson, a giant Lafayette Negro, to sleep with a knockout punch in the first round. He's going to be a rough and ready heavyweight contender at Chicago, and it will take a mighty man to whip him.

Noonan appears to be a finished boxer. He has stepped up from the 118 pound division to the featherweight class this year. He has been fighting so impressively that a number of professional promoters have attempted to coax him into their field. He has rejected the offers, however, and says the professional game will not interest him for some months to come.

Blake a Puncher.

Blake can hit about as hard as any flyweight who has tried to win a Golden Glove and the Lafayette folks think he's already moving along the championship trail.

The Lafayette team was picked from an original field of 240 boys, coming from all the nearby cities and towns in this section of Indiana, and representing most every vocation.

The tournament, despite subzero weather on the night the championships were decided, attracted capacity crowds at every session. A. E. Beyler had caused the home folks to forget the elements completely.

They're Not Sure It Isn't on Level.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 10.—About 22,000 customers came to Madison Square Garden this evening with a prurient desire to witness something phoney in a fight between Primo Carnera and Ernie Schaaf and went away after 13 rounds of it still wondering just what it was that they did see.

Schaaf, the protégé of Jack Sharkey, fell down in round 13 and was counted out resting on his left elbow. The punch that put him on the floor was no more than a left jab and no worse than a hundred or more left jabs which he had accumulated before that. As Carnera's big mushy mitt hit him on the mouth Schaaf staggered backwards half way across the ring and dropped near the ropes. He seemed suddenly all in from the roughhousing to which Carnera had subjected him, including a series of bumps on the chin delivered with Primo's right elbow.

It's Rather Mysterious.

When he failed to get up Sharkey and Johnny Buckley, who handles both Sharkey and Schaaf, went through the ropes and hauled Ernie to his corner. Schaaf's head lolled and they put the stool under him and began to knead his neck and pour water over his head. He seemed to be unconscious, but for no reason that was apparent to the patrons who formed the largest crowd attracted to the Garden for a fight since the days of the boom.

Sharkey started pawing excitedly at Schaaf's mouth, trying to get his fingers between the limp fighter's clenched jaws, and Buckley, in apparent fright, after some futile fingering, whipped out a knife and cut away hunks of rubber from Schaaf's mouthpiece, which seemed to be wedged in. Carnera flounced his elephantine bulk around the ring in a few sweeping bows, attempted to pay his respects to his victim, found him inattentive and withdrew amid cheers.

Sharkey, Buckley and two house policemen then put Schaaf up on their shoulders, passed him over the ropes and down the steps and with yells of "Gangway!" rushed him through the crowd to his dressing room. The crowd lingered for some time puzzling about all this, but presently went away baffled but hoping it was not on the level. The prize fight customers love their suspicions and there had been rumors in print that this one was to come to some unconventional ending.

Schaaf Taken to Hospital.

There was a good deal of conversation around the ring in the "What was it?" vein, but after 15 minutes the crowd left and about that time Schaaf's people did him up in coats and bathrobes and rushed him across the street to the Polyclinic hospital, where Arnold Rothstein and other casualties of the guerrilla warfare on Broadway and the side streets were taken in to die.

There the subject ceased to be one for the speculation of the customers and passed into the charge of the doctors on the night watch. It was said that a fragment of the mouthpiece had lodged in Schaaf's throat, impeding his breathing, and that it would have to be taken out by surgeons.

The fight was not very stimulating because Schaaf, who weighed only 207 pounds to Carnera's 264, did not know how to bob and weave under Primo's upstanding European style of work. Primo popped him steadily on the mouth with left jabs of the kind which finally felled him and had pushed him steadily under the heart with short rights delivered as Schaaf stumbled constantly toward him.

Schaaf was overmatched and not a very good fighter, either; and when he finally folded up he seemed to be just too weary from the cumulative effect of the blows and the pulling and hauling to get back on his feet.

Garden Galleries Jammed.

The whiff of scandal which had preceded the fight, like the smoke of battle in the snoot of an old war horse, brought the customers stampeding to the Garden with the fire of righteousness flaming in their eyes. The ticket men were shoving standing room coupons out through the wickets at $2.20 each as early as half-past 8, and, for the first time in many a month, there was need of a strong turnout of horse cops to reinforce the foot sloggers in shoving the crowds around in the streets outside the Garden. All the seats were sold, of course, at a maximum price of $3.30, and there were rows of standees leaning on the iron rails behind the seats all around the two galleries.

The gate receipts were $44,000.

The basis of the evening's gossip was this: Sharkey and his manager, Buckley, are joint managers and proprietors of Schaaf, and this evening's fight was supposed to decide the heavyweight championship runnerupticy between Primo and Ernie. Naturally, if Ernie had won, that would have created an embarrassing situation, as Sharkey could not ethically fight his own man for his own championship. Therefore the chit-chat over the seidels of the prize fight profession had it that Schaaf must not win tonight.

He succumbed to a push in the face, and persons who are loath to surrender their cherished suspicions may put two and two together and see what that comes to.

BACHMAN TO BE MICHIGAN STATE COACH, REPORT

Campus Paper Concedes Job to Chicagoan.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Charles Bachman of Chicago, former football coach at University of Florida, will be the next head coach at Michigan State college, it was being conceded on the campus today. While athletic department officials continued to deny a definite choice had been made, the college newspaper predicted the appointment of Bachman and in unofficial circles it was declared that he is certain to be named.

Bachman, a football player and track athlete at Notre Dame from 1913 to 1916, coached at Northwestern in 1919 and then went to Kansas State, where he stayed until 1927, when he resigned to go to Florida.

Auburn Keeps Wynne.

Elimination of Chet Wynne, coach at Alabama Polytechnic institute, from the list of prospects has put Bachman forward as the logical man to succeed James Crowley, who leaves East Lansing the last of the month for Fordham university. Wynne, it was disclosed, telephoned college athletic officials that he cannot consider any proposal at this time, as he has pledged himself to renew his Auburn contract.

Both Bachman and Wynne made good impressions when they visited the local campus and it is now believed that both were made tentative offers. Wynne, it has now been revealed, was willing to "talk business," but when he returned to Auburn such pressure was brought upon him to remain there, in order that the school might retain its athletic prestige at least through the depression, that he could not resist the appeals.

Casteel Still Candidate.

Ralph Young, director of athletics at Michigan State, said today the athletic council members "have not made up their minds" and that the matter of making a definite selection and announcement is up to the board of agriculture and President Robert S. Shaw.

Miles W. [Mike] Casteel, assistant back field coach under Crowley, is still a candidate for promotion to head coach, but the Bachman appointment is considered much more probable.

ADAMS RESIGNS AS GOVERNOR OF HOCKEY LEAGUE

Boston, Mass., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Charles F. Adams, president of the Boston Bruins, today presented his resignation as a member of the board of governors of the National Hockey league to President Frank Calder, with whom he has disagreed on many points during the past few years. Adams notified the other members of his action but would not comment on it.

Adams' resignation is the second that has affected the National Hockey league's board during the current season. Frederic McLaughlin of Chicago voluntarily retired in December without offering any explanation.

Purdue Invades Iowa Tonight Illini Five Meets Wisconsin

All Western conference basketball teams except Northwestern will be in action tonight, six of them in conference games. Ohio State, Chicago, and Michigan will tune up for the remaining games of their 1932-'33 title campaigns by taking on nonconference opponents.

Purdue, having divided its first four games, plays a return engagement with Iowa at Iowa City. The Boilermakers will be seeking to avenge the two point defeat suffered at the hands of the Hawkeyes, 35 to 33, at Lafayette.

Badgers Battle Illini.

Wisconsin, always considered a title contender, will travel to Champaign to face the Illini. The Badgers have suffered two defeats in the conference schedule, while triumphing in three games. Illinois has won two games while losing three thus far.

Indiana meets Minnesota at Bloomington in the third game.

The undefeated Buckeyes of Ohio State, who are leading the race with five consecutive victories, will meet the Army at Columbus. The Buckeyes last Monday scored their fifth victory by defeating the Badgers, 31 to 30.

Michigan Meets State.

Michigan, which lost only to Illinois in its four conference games, will seek to get even for an earlier defeat by Michigan State at East Lansing.

The Maroons, who were embarrassed again at Iowa City last week, 42 to 12, meet Marquette at Milwaukee. The Maroons have suffered six consecutive conference defeats.

COMMITTEE ON FOOTBALL RULES OPENS MEETING

Few Changes Expected at 3 Day Session.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Members of the intercollegiate football rules committee and invited representatives started their three day session at the Green Hills farms in Overbrook behind closed doors tonight. Walter Okeson, new chairman, presided.

Among the early arrivals were Fielding H. Yost, athletic director at Michigan, and Amos Alonzo Stagg, as delegates from the central states. Stagg, former Chicago head coach, who only recently was appointed football tutor at the College of the Pacific, is now an honorary life member of the rules committee.

Likely to Stand Pat.

Friends of Stagg intimated there was not nearly as much business confronting the committee as a year ago when he helped to make the advisory report on football accidents throughout the United States and like many of the other members is content to "stand pat" on the present rules with possibly a few minor changes.

It is planned to speed up the game as much as possible and also make it safer.

One of the recommendations of the American Football Coaches association to eliminate play near the side lines is likely to come in for considerable discussion. The plan is to have the ball brought out ten yards from the side lines whenever it is downed closer than ten yards to the out of bounds mark. This is designed to do away with the needless "step out" play with its usual wasting of a down.

Discuss Screened Pass.

The recommendation that "on a forward pass no ineligible men shall be permitted to advance beyond the line of scrimmage until the pass is thrown" has always been in the rules, according to one of the prominent coaches here for the meeting, "but has never been fully enforced."

Among those present when the meeting formally opened tonight were Chairman Okeson; W. O. Hunter, University of Southern California; Yost, Stagg, H. J. Stegeman, University of Georgia; Secretary W. S. Langford of the football rules committee; John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Western conference; Howard Jones, Southern California; Noble Kizer, Purdue; Lou Little, Columbia; Herb Dana, Piedmont, Cal.; A. R. Hutchens, Fort Wales, Fla.; F. A. Lambert, Columbus, O.; A. W. Palmer, Haverford, and Wilmer G. Crowell, Philadelphia.

NOTRE DAME WINS TRACK MEET FROM PURDUE, 68 TO 27

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Notre Dame opened its home track schedule tonight with a 68 to 27 victory over Purdue. Unexpected strength in the field events and in the 880 were largely responsible for the triumph.

Charley Popejoy of Purdue turned in the best performance of the evening when he won the mile in 4:26.4 from Eddie King of Notre Dame. Ray Troy, Clyde Roberts, and Ed Sheils scored a slam for Notre Dame in the 880. Dilling, Nockles, and Huller scored a slam in the 60 yard dash.

INDIANA WINS, 61-43

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Five field house records were broken and one was tied as Indiana university's track team opened its season by defeating Ohio State, 61 to 43, tonight. Bennett, in the 60 yard dash, and Keller, in the 70 yard high hurdles, turned in record breaking performances for Ohio State, while Hornbostle, in the 880 yard run, Crouch, in the broad jump, and the relay team set new marks for Indiana. The 440 yard run record was tied by Fuqua of Indiana.

Virginia Van Wie Loses in Coast Golf Final, 3 and 2

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: When out-of-town merchants came to Chicago to buy goods in the '70s and '80s they visited a number of wholesale houses, of which I present a partial list. This list by no means represented the entire trade. In fact, it omits many still prominent today. It is a list of firms now entirely out of business with no successors carrying on. Here they are:

Dry Goods—Richards, Shaw, Fitch & Winslow; James H. Walker & Co.; Stettauer Bros.

Clothing—Charles P. Kellogg & Co.; H. A. Kohn & Bros.; Cahn, Wampold & Co.; Henry W. King & Co.; Clement, Bane & Co.

Cloaks — Griswold, Palmer & Co.; Beifeld Bros.

Trunks—Vogler & Guedtner.

Herman Hefter.

Michigan avenue on the near south side in 1875 and even up to 1882 was a pleasant, quiet street with no stores nor anything but homes. The large Baptist church south of 23d caught fire one cold night about 1884 and was almost totally destroyed, although the spire was not damaged.

There was about a foot of snow on the ground and the mercury around zero. Such fires were numerous at that time in winter, perhaps due to defective chimneys. All fire engines were steam, but drawn by horses—four horses for the large ones.

Deep snow in winter was the rule I have seen the snow banks along 22d street so high at the curb that a person on the walk could not see the horses in the street. We kids used to tunnel into the banks and make caves. March was always a month of heavy snows. And when it did thaw, good night—deep slush everywhere.

J. C. Howland.

Just Thoughts.

Biting winds, leaden sky,
Barren earth, cold and dry;
Gray bushes, white ice;
Bare black trees—not so nice
To be on a brown road walking to town
With collar up and cap pulled down.

Turquoise sky, soft breeze,
Yielding earth, leafy trees,
Budding bushes, water streaming,
Thrush's whistle, am I dreaming
On this purple road walking to town—
Cap in hand, collar turned down?

Dear old Spring, how can I doubt
With miracles like you about!

Maizie.

One-third Realized, Anyway.

Back in 1926 Prof. John J. Meehan of De Paul Law college sent an article to "Voice of the People" shortly after authorization of the state athletic commission suggesting the names of Packey McFarland, Ed W. Smith, and Harvey T. Woodruff as members of such commission. Despite his legal lore, Prof. Meehan always has been an ardent boxing man and very well informed on that subject, as this column must think after his suggestion of 1926.

Well, seven years later McFarland is appointed to the commission, Ed Smith now lives in California, and Harvey T. Woodruff is still The Wake. Help! Help! In thanking Prof. Meehan at the time for his complimentary suggestion we questioned the propriety of a newspaper man accepting such an appointment even if it were offered.

GOLDEN GLOVERS HIT LONG TRAIL TO TITLE MONDAY

Impartial Judges to Give Decisions.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The long trail to a Golden Gloves championship and the honors which accompany that title will have its Chicago beginning at Guyon's Paradise, Crawford and West End avenues, when 618 boys, in both Open and Novice divisions, meet Monday. In succession after the west side tourney the boys of the far south side, the north, and then the south, will have their opportunity to join the group of 64 Open division boxers and the best novices who will fight at the Tournament of Champions.

The Open division this year probably will not be as difficult in the number of bouts necessary for qualification. The establishment of the Novice class has taken the majority of the entries. Consequently the two boys in each Open division weight who will go into the Tournament of Champions will not be required to fight as many times as before. No boy, however, in either division is permitted to box more than twice in one night.

All Judges Competent.

Most important, at least to the contestants, are the judges and referees, whose opinions determine the winners in the progressive eliminations. THE TRIBUNE has been exceedingly fortunate in the caliber of the men who have judged the annual amateur bouts. These men stand at the front of the list of Illinois judges. With many years of experience, both in professional and amateur boxing, it is seldom their opinions will be questioned.

Amateur boxing is difficult to judge. The novices lack the finished skill of the professionals, but more important to the judges is that at the end of three rounds there must be a decision. There can be no draw, since a year ago the Amateur Athletic union banned an extra round.

Give Fair Decisions.

In the three years that the out of town teams have come to Chicago to fight in the Tournament of Champions they have paid, perhaps unknowingly, a tribute to the boxing judges. None of these cities has questioned the fairness or the ability of the men who have given official opinions at the ringside.

The list of judges who will officiate in Golden Gloves this year follows:

All boxers who have entered the west section must report between 4 and 6 o'clock Monday afternoon at Guyon's Paradise for examinations and to be weighed. Bouts will be determined by lot. The drawings will be made not later than 6:30 and the first fights will start simultaneously in two rings at 7 o'clock.

Seats are not reserved. General admission is 60 cents, including tax, and the first to come will sit in the front rows. The doors will be opened one hour before the start of the tournament.

Entries for the north side tournament, which starts Feb. 20 at Loyola university gymnasium, will close Monday. The entries for the south side tournament on Feb. 23 and 24 close next Thursday. The far south side meet will be held Feb. 16 and 17.

Did you ever hear of a pianist who wished to be a boxing champion, or, for that matter, did you ever hear of a boxer who wished to be a pianist? James Spata, a lightweight from Melrose Park, who will box in the west side Golden Gloves tournament, lists his ambition as the desire to be a big time pianist. At the present time Spata is employed as a messenger boy by the Chicago and North Western railroad. He's been boxing three years and he was born in Rochester, N. Y., 19 years ago.

Many of the west side boxers are Bohemian-Americans. Among them is Francis Stroner, a butcher, who expects to knock over a few middleweights in the Novice division. Stroner has been boxing six months. He played on the Chicago Boys' club championship basketball team in 1924. His ambition is to win all his fights by knockouts.

Minnesota Hockey Team Defeats Wisconsin, 8-0

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Minnesota moved closer to the Big Ten hockey championship for 1933 by smothering Wisconsin tonight, 8 to 0.

Zero Weather Menaces Only Hungry Birds

BY BOB BECKER.

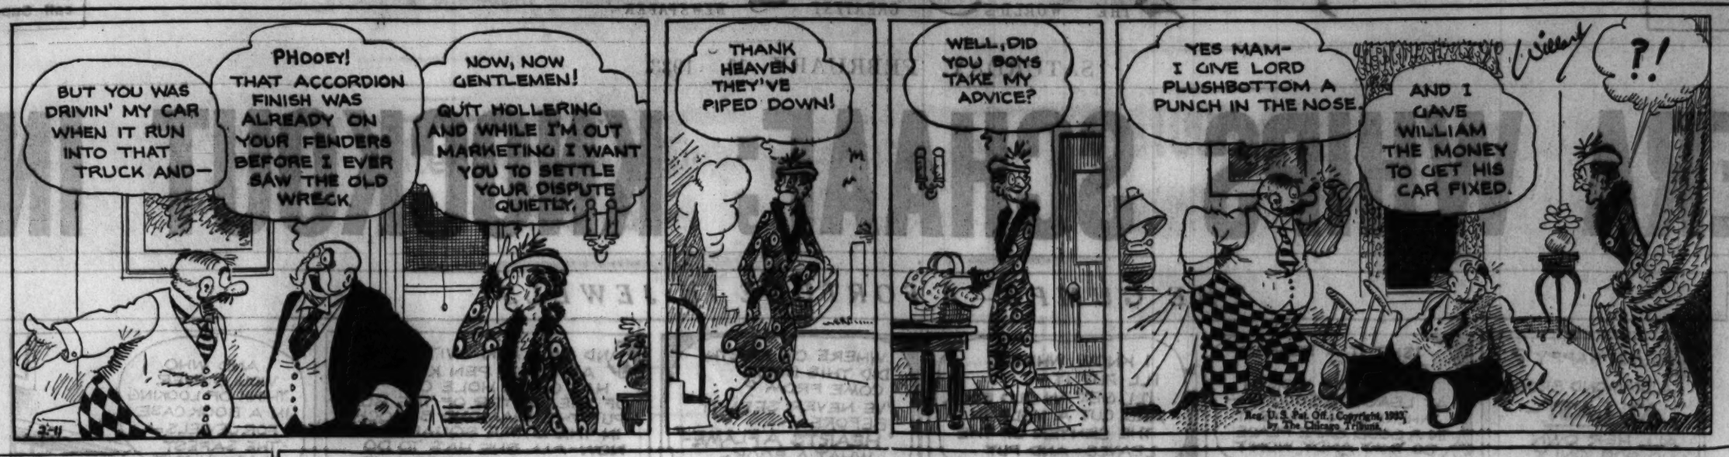
Chicagoland need not worry about the bob whites, pheasants, robins, cardinals, titmice, and other feathered winter residents facing subzero temperatures as long as these birds have plenty to eat. Given a full stomach and our winter bird residents can endure very low temperatures. On the other hand it is a scientific fact that half starved birds cannot survive even a moderate cold spell.

Land owners, Boy Scouts, and sportsmen are being urged to join hands in a movement to provide food for game and song birds during the winter. Although it may not be generally known a February or March snow or sleet storm is worse than one in December. Early in the winter nature has on hand big stocks of food for most birds.

Right now bird fans who wish to put out food for game birds should rely on cracked corn, corn on the cob, sweepings, or any of the small grains.

When it comes to song birds in Chicagoland, those which can be induced to take food around a house, bread crumbs, dog biscuit crumbs, suet, sunflower seeds, rolled oats, canary seed, cracked nuts, and similar items will supply them with sufficient nourishment and heat.

MOON MULLINS—THE BOYS DECIDE TO 'COMPROMISE'



SMITTY—WONDERFUL YOU!

GOLDEN GLOVES NO PROBLEM FOR MATHEMATICIAN

boxers of all divisions brought out a large crowd tonight for the second round of the preliminaries in the Daily Times-CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves tournament at the Davenport Coliseum. Twenty-eight bouts were scheduled, with the winners of last night and members of smaller and heavier classes competing.

Glen Dexter, heavyweight; Johnny Baltzer, flyweight, and Quinn McCann, bantamweight, all champions of last year, made their debut tonight.

The 1,000 fans who attended the first preliminaries last night were repaid for braving the cold weather. Nine knockouts were evidence that it was no lovefest. Featherweights, lightweights, and welterweights were featured in the opening show. Kewanee boys won six out of seven bouts in which they entered and the Moline Elks club entries took six out of eight.

4,000 AT MILWAUKEE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 10.—Milwaukee tonight qualified 18 amateur boxers for next week's semi-final and final rounds of the third annual Wisconsin Golden Gloves sectional tournament. Racine and Waukesha each placed two representatives, while Sheboygan and Manitowoc placed one each. These lads will battle it out among themselves for further glory at the Eagles club here one week from tonight.

Sixteen triumphed tonight, to earn the chance to compete further for individual prizes, a team trophy and a trip to Chicago. A season's record boxing crowd of 4,000 watched them win.

Finals were reached in the flyweight, bantamweight, middleweight and heavyweight classes after two days of battling, which saw a total of 41 bouts presented. Semi-finals were gained in the remaining weight ranks. Under this arrangement, semi-finalists next Friday will be required to fight twice and makes possible a program of 16 bouts.

SILVER SKATES CHAMPIONS SEEK ILLINOIS CROWNS

The Illinois speed skating championships and the 41st annual Northwest Skating club derby will be held on the Garfield Park lagoon Sunday afternoon, at 1:00 o'clock.

Entries in the men's senior division included Eddie Stundl, Wilbur Marks, Cornie Ewert, John and Charles Serro, Al Kucera, and Art Conroy. Frank Stack, the present champion, will not defend his title.

Leo Freisinger, Silver Skates and national intermediate champion, and Bernie Canatta, Silver Skates and national junior champion, also are entered as are Elizabeth DuBois, Mable Swanson, the Silver Skates champion, and Pricilla Richey, in the women's senior division.

PURPLE ALUMNI BEAT FRESHMEN QUINTET, 28-26

Northwestern's alumni basketball team beat the freshmen, 28 to 26, at Patten gym last night. A crowd of 3,000 witnessed the first annual game between the two teams.

ORDERS BOOKED BY U. S. STEEL AT NEW BOTTOM

Unfilled Tonnage Is Only 1,898,644.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 10.—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation dropped last month to the lowest point in the history of the organization. As of Jan. 31 the backlog totaled 1,898,644 tons, a decline of 69,496 from December.

The previous low was registered at the end of July, when orders totaled 1,966,302 tons, from which point they turned up after seventeen successive months of decline.

A drop had been expected by Wall street, but the showing actually reported proved somewhat of a disappointment. In fact, in some quarters an increase had been expected. The report reveals that United States Steel was forced to draw rather heavily on its backlog to maintain January operations at a level higher than December.

Blame Smaller Auto Takings.

It was reported in some quarters that the decrease was due mainly to drawing on standing orders placed by automobile concerns. However, while the decline exceeded expectations, the stock held steady, showing the market was prepared for almost anything within reason.

While Wall street usually guesses freely as to the actual figures which "Big Steel" will show in new business from month to month, January's report aroused less interest beforehand than for some time. This was due probably to the fact that most of the estimates of the Dec. 31 figures went awry because of the year-end adjustments made by the corporation.

Last year was unquestionably the worst in the history of modern steel making and sentiment has been gaining headway that during the early months of this year a slight improvement of more permanent character may develop.

All time record monthly unfilled tonnage figures were made by the corporation in April, 1917, when the total of new business on hand was 12,183,083 tons, due to the piling up of world war orders.

BRITAIN BUYER OF GOLD THOUGHT SOLD TO POLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 10.—The Bank of England was revealed today as the buyer of the major share of the $15,999,900 gold earmarked at the local reserve bank yesterday afternoon. The British Central bank's daily statement of gold bought or sold revealed the purchase of £3,000,600 which, at par of exchange, is about $14,582,000. This left only $1,417,000 to be accounted for among other purchasers. It had been believed the gold had been purchased by Poland.

The countrys gold stocks had a net gain of $1,649,000 today. A reduction through an increase of $967,400 in foreign earmarkings was more than offset by imports of $967,500 from Chile, $773,500 from England, and $876,000 from China, the latter shipment being received at San Francisco.

Better German Finance Offers Hope Abroad

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The improvement in German finances yesterday was pointed to by Harry Salinger, vice president in charge of the foreign banking department of the First National bank, as an encouraging development in the situation abroad.

Continued repatriation of capital that has fled from Germany, he explained, would tend toward stabilizing that nation's financial standing. Mr. Salinger included these remarks in his annual report to directors of the bank.

"Germany is operating under the standstill credit arrangement of 1932," he reported. "It would seem that Germany at present gives indication, relatively, of improvement, and an ability to consolidate and control her position by constructive procedure.

Large Sum Taken Home.

"It has been estimated that German expatriated moneys amounted to an equivalent of between $1,500,000,000 and $2,000,000,000. If the repatriation which has started continues, it will create much confidence in the financial stability of Germany."

Last year he described as a "hectic and critical" period. With most countries off the gold basis, foreign banking operative procedure was difficult from the standpoint of credits and of exchange. There were numerous and changing governmental decrees and restrictions.

"It is needless to discuss specific conditions," his report continued, "since the press has given much space to these matters during the year. It is our sincere wish that with intelligent, honest performance of duty by our duly elected government officials and with proper constructive interpretation and dissemination of information by the press in the year 1933 there will be created an atmosphere of confidence and stability which should make for progress here and abroad."

Effect on U. S. Trade.

To show the effect on the United States foreign trade of depressed business conditions combined with exchange and credit restrictions he presented the following table [last three ciphers omitted]:

	Total Foreign trade.	Exports.	Imports.
1929	$9,640,000	$5,340,000	$4,300,000
1930	6,875,000	3,813,000	3,061,000
1931	4,514,924	2,424,289	2,090,635
1932	2,940,542	1,617,877	1,322,665

These figures indicate a decrease of 70 per cent from 1929 to 1932 in the total foreign trade of the United States and a drop of 35 per cent between 1931 and 1932.

GEORGE W. HILL DECLINES STOCK ALLOTTED HIM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 10.—In a letter to stockholders of the American Tobacco company, George W. Hill, president of the company, today vigorously defended the company's employés stock subscription plan. He also announced that in order to uphold the principle of the plan more vigorously, he had decided to decline the allotment to him of 13,440 shares of the stock.

Under the stock subscription plan, which was approved by the stockholders in July, 1930, some 312,000 shares of the company's class B stock were made available for allotment to employés, and of this total, 53,830 shares were actually allotted in 1931 at $25 a share to 534 employés. Of this allotment, 32,370 shares, including Mr. Hill's stock, went to directors and the rest to minor employés. The stock sold today at 53⅝, and at the time the allotment was approved by stockholders, was quoted at 112.

Mr. Hill asserted in his letter that he felt preservation of the plan was vital to the interests of the company.

COURT REFUSES TO OUST BONDING FIRM RECEIVERS

New Orleans, La., Feb. 10.—(AP)—A petition filed by out of state stockholders and creditors for removal of S. Sanford Levy and Clay W. Beckner as receivers for the Union Indemnity company here was denied in Civil District court today by Judge Michel Provosty.

The removal was asked on grounds that intercested parties from out of the state were not properly represented in the receivership because Levy was a vice president of the Union Indemnity company and Beckner was a local representative of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, one of the company's largest creditors.

United Corporation Votes Regular Quarter Payments

United corporation, the big Morgan-Bonbright utility holding company, yesterday announced the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 10 cents a share on the common stock and 75 cents a share on the preferred shares.

Printing Feels World Fair's Spur to Trade

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The printing business, of which Chicago is a national center, is one of the industries which is receiving a substantial impetus from the World's Fair.

An enormous volume of printing is being done in connection with the exposition. Chicago firms will get the bulk of this business.

A wide variety of advertising matter in addition to the official publications such as the weekly programs, guide and souvenir books will be prepared between now and the opening of the exposition.

The fair committee itself will have a printing bill which will run between $150,000 and $200,000, according to present estimates. This does not include the many kinds of the printing which will be done independently of the fair's official organization. All in all it is estimated the printing in connection with the exposition will amount to more than a million dollars.

Printing Contracts Awarded.

Contracts by the fair committee have already been awarded on the official publications. R. R. Donnelly & Sons company were given the contract for printing the official view book and post cards. Cuneo Press, Inc., was awarded the business of printing the official guide book and the weekly program.

The first edition of the official fair book, consisting of 60,000 copies, was put out four months ago. This edition has been sold out and the next edition will be ready early next week, according to fair officials.

Based on present attendance estimates, it is expected that 250 to 300 thousand of the programs will be distributed each week for duration of the exposition, which runs 26 weeks. The cost of this printing placed in the neighborhood of $200,000.

Other firms which have been awarded business by the fair committee include, Lincoln Printing company, Rand, McNally & Co., Poole Bros., Inc., Neeley Printing company, Kenfield-Leach company, American Colortype company, and Edwards & Deutsch.

Contracts Let on Bids.

All the business was awarded under competitive bidding.

All the firms exhibiting at the fair will distribute printed advertising matter. Several firms are getting out special booklets and literature describing the exposition. Among the latter firms is National Cash Register, which has prepared an elaborate brochure on the exposition.

A few of the representative concerns which will have special literature printed are General Motors corporation, Sears, Roebuck & Co., Montgomery, Ward & Co., Butler Bros., and International Harvester company. The principal railroads which will handle fair traffic are also sending out literature.

Admission tickets which may exceed 50 millions is another important exposition printing job.

Another Canada City Balks Paying Debt in U.S. Money

BURLINGTON, Ont., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The town council here decided today not to pay $800 in United States exchange charges on debentures and interest due in New York next week. Yesterday a Massachusetts bank filed suit against the city of Calgary because of its refusal to pay exchange rates on $2,135,000 debentures which matured at New York on Jan. 1.

Wrigley Company Will Offset Shorter Hours by Wage Boost

An increase in the wage schedule for the factory workers of the William Wrigley Jr. company in order to offset the loss of pay resulting from the shorter hours will probably be adopted shortly, P. K. Wrigley, president, said last night.

Mr. Wrigley said that the company had definitely decided to make a readjustment, but the exact form has not been decided upon yet.

Retain All Workers.

"We have kept all of our people on the pay roll," he said, "but they are working shorter hours and consequently receiving smaller wages. We are going to make some sort of a readjustment in order that the workers who are paid by the hour will get more pay.

"It's the only way," Mr. Wrigley added, "to get things started again. Many people are taking advantage of the times to cut wages because of the oversupply of men but we don't feel that it is fair to do that. We are spreading the work to keep as many as possible employed and are going to help those whose working time has been curtailed."

Raise Wages in Canada.

The company's Canadian subsidiary recently raised the wage scale of its factory workers and increased its force by 10 per cent. The company's Chicago plant has recently added to its force and some divisions are running 24 hours a day.

"We feel that any company which can make a fair profit should not bear down on labor," Wrigley said. Such firms, he said, are obligated to keep up the purchasing power of the workers.

RAIL'S GOOD DEED COSTS IT MONEY BY U. S. ORDERS

How the railroads are often caught between two governmental barrages is illustrated in a recent interstate commerce commission decision ordering the Norfolk and Western to make reparations to former Gov. Henry C. Stuart of West Virginia. Some years ago during a severe drought in the southeast, extending into Ohio and Indiana, the railroads agreed to requests to help alleviate the situation by making rate reductions of from 33⅓ to 50 per cent on shipments of feed grain into the troubled areas and on shipments of live stock out of them.

The department of agriculture cooperated in this relief measure. It was desired only to aid those farmers really in need of relief and decision as to those actually entitled to it was made through county agents. It is said that the plan generally was successful. However, requests were made by owners of race horses and the owner of a large fashionable hotel for relief rates on grain shipments which were turned down.

Among others the former governor asked and received relief rates. The county agent found that he was in a good financial situation and the department of agriculture asked that relief rates be denied him, which was done. Thereupon the former governor said he was being discriminated against and filed a case with the interstate commerce commission asking reparations. The interstate commerce commission held with the former governor and ruled that he was entitled to reparations, although the department of agriculture had asked that he be denied them. It is stated that the relief rates cost the railroads several million dollars.

Traylor Asserts Tax Cut Needed to End Depression.

The big depression clinic sponsored by the senate finance committee is scheduled to begin Monday and last until March 4.

Business men, bankers, professors, writers, and others are being summoned to present their views on slump causes before the committee.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago, one of those whose opinions have been requested, has already said what he thinks is the most important thing to do.

"To attempt to meet treasury deficits simply by further increasing taxes," he has insisted, "is to add to the already excessive burdens that all private enterprise bears, which, in the final analysis, will reduce earnings needed to meet new taxes.

"Bureaucracy in government, paternalism, large public pay rolls, unjustifiable multiplication of government departments and services are the outgrowth of public demand as well as legislative approval, and it is our responsibility as citizens to restrict these developments."

Policy of Union Pacific Forecast Dividend Payment.

Declaration of the regular $1.50 quarterly dividend by Union Pacific railroad despite the drop in earnings last year was no surprise to those familiar with the policy of the Union Pacific directorate.

Carl Gray, president of the road, conversing informally at the Traffic club, some time ago summed up this policy.

"Up until the last few years," he said, "the theory of dividends has always been that you refrain from paying out all you earn in good times so that you may build up a surplus against lean years.

"The dividend policy of Union Pacific has surprised many people who during the last few hectic years have forgotten the old theory of paying dividends. There's no mystery about it. We've simply been trying to continue doing what others have forgotten that they originally set out to do."

Union Pacific reduced its annual dividend rate from $10 to $6 last July, but it is still one of the few big dividend payers among the railroads.

First Dividend, 10 Cts. Share, Voted by Cord

The Cord corporation has declared a dividend of 10 cents a share, the first in its history, according to announcement made last night.

E. L. CORD.

The action came as a surprise in financial quarters. When most industrial corporations are cutting or eliminating entirely their payments to stockholders this concern is paying its first dividend. Officials gave no indication that the stock is being placed on a regular dividend basis. The payment is described only as "a dividend." It is payable March 15 to stockholders of record March 4.

Holds Cord Concerns Stocks.

Cord corporation is a holding company, organized in 1929 at the peak of the boom. Its principal holdings are in the stocks of the Auburn Automobile company, Lycoming Manufacturing company, Stinson Aircraft corporation, and the Century Air Lines, Inc. Its organizer and present head is E. L. Cord who also is the active head of the companies in which the company has its investments.

The explanation of the unexpected dividend action may be in the company's annual report issued late last month. During 1932 the firm nearly doubled its quick assets. At the close of the year current assets were $9,096,000, against $5,984,000 a year earlier. At the same time current liabilities dropped from $485,000 to $382,000. Profit increased to $1,526,000 or 67 cents a share, contrasted with $529,000 or 26 cents a share in 1931.

Watch Course of Money.

"The management," Mr. Cord said in his report, "has been most concerned with maintaining the cash and current position of the company during the period of deflation and will be equally vigilant in taking advantage of all opportunities to preserve the relative purchasing power if a period of drastic inflation occurs."

The company has been receiving dividends from Auburn at the rate of $4 in cash and 8 per cent in stock annually. The cash dividend has been in force since 1927 and the stock dividend since January, 1928. Cord corporation is reputed to hold a majority of the capital stock of Auburn, which totals 211,000 shares.

JANUARY SALES OF A. & P. STORES ARE OFF FROM '32

January sales of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, largest of the grocer chains, were off 17 per cent from January last year in dollar volume. This is a less favorable showing than was made in December when dollar volume was off only 12.8 per cent from the preceding year.

January sales were $57,235,000 against $68,966,000 a year ago. Tonnage sales were 371,394 against 395,427, a shrinkage of 6.8 per cent. In December tonnage sales ran 3.43 per cent under 1931.

Treasury Bills Are Sold on 1-10 of 1 Pct. Interest Basis

The $75,000,000 offering of 91 day treasury bills dated Feb. 15 and maturing May 17 was oversubscribed more than 3½ times, Secretary of the Treasury Mills announced last night. Subscriptions totaled $281,000,000. The highest bid made was equivalent to an interest rate of about 0.10 per cent on an annual basis. The average rate of bids accepted was equal to about 0.23 per cent on an annual basis.

Principal Markets Will Close Monday

The principal security and commodity markets throughout the country, including the New York and Chicago stock exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade, will be closed Monday, the official holiday for Lincoln's birthday, which falls on Sunday. Banks in New York and Chicago also will observe the holiday. The Chicago live stock market will not suspend trading. Principal southern markets will remain open.

STOCK ADVANCE RUNS INTO BOG; LOSSES SMALL

Bad News Dries Up Buying Orders.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 10.—That "spring revival" of confidence on the share market encountered adverse news today and the buying orders dried up. Leading issues gave up from 1 to 2 points or more of the modest gains they have been running up for the better part of a week and losses in some of the preferreds amounted to as much as 7 points.

An unexpected drop in the unfilled tonnage figures of the United States Steel corporation revealed in the company's report around noon, the bank statement disclosing an unseasonably large expansion in circulation, the afternoon dip in wheat prices, and some off color dividend news, particularly that of J. I. Case, were the market's chief worries.

Tobaccos Sell Off.

Tobacco stocks had a fresh report of impending cigaret prices and some uncomfortable speculation on the outlook for further taxes on the trade's products to contend with and some of the leading issues of the group showed signs of being quite upset. American Tobacco preferred dropped more than 3 points, and the preferred of Liggett & Myers took a tumble for more than twice that. Common shares of the two companies and of the Lorillard company were under pressure most of the day and finished 1 to 2 points below their previous closing levels.

The rails showed a better spirit than most of their associates, having the salutary influence of preliminary forecasts indicating an increase of about 7,000 cars in the freight revenue figures for the week to be made public tomorrow. Up to the time when wheat began to show such unmistakable signs of weakness the carriers had succeeded in maintaining a pretty solid front with small gains showing up here and there in the section.

The selling in this group was well absorbed when it did begin to appear in volume and net losses of the leaders were limited almost without exception to small fractions.

Steel Shares Lower.

Steel shares sold off moderately after the tonnage report came out, the common and preferred of the group leader yielding each about a point. Brokers thought the news had been somewhat discounted in advance.

Word of utility rate reductions in Tennessee and Maryland acted as a drag on the power and light division. Traction stocks had a mild flurry around noon, but were unable to carry through. Talk of early unification of the New York systems as a preliminary to a fare increase continues to make for a better feeling toward these issues. American Telephone turned easy on selling, most traders having already discounted its earnings report showing net of $7.28 a share.

Case preferred gave up 2 points on the carving of its dividend.

NEW FORD CARS APPEAR TODAY IN SHOWROOMS

A new line of Ford automobiles will go on display in dealers' showrooms today. The cars are larger and more powerful than previous models.

A new styling is expressed in fourteen body types. Fenders are skirted, the radiator has a sloping V grille, and the gasoline tank is masked with an apron. The body is of the all-steel type and windshields are of safety glass.

A improved V eight engine has aluminum cylinder heads. These dissipate heat rapidly, furnishing increased speeds, faster acceleration, and greater power. Dealers said the new car is capable of a sustained speed of 80 miles an hour.

CONSOLIDATED GAS TO REDUCE ELECTRIC RATES

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 10.—[Special.]—As a result of negotiations between the Maryland public service commission and the Consolidated Gas company of Baltimore the company announced today that it will reduce the maximum primary rate on domestic electrical service in Baltimore.

The rate in the city and suburbs will be cut from 7 cents gross (6.72 cents net) to 5¼ cents gross (5 cents net) per kilowatt hour.

Promoted by Bank

WALTER LICHTENSTEIN.

W. LICHTENSTEIN IS VICE PRESIDENT OF 1ST NATIONAL

Widely Known Among Economists.

Walter Lichtenstein, since 1921 executive secretary of the First National bank of Chicago, was elected vice president of the institution at a meeting of directors yesterday. Mr. Lichtenstein joined the First National organization in 1918 as foreign trade advisor and held that post until his election as executive secretary.

He is widely known in financial and economic circles. Prior to joining the First National staff he was associated with the faculties of the University of Chicago and Northwestern university. He holds the degrees of A. B., M. A., and Ph. D. from Harvard university. At Harvard he was associated with the late Prof. Archibald Cary Coolidge in the building up of the great collections in the Harvard library.

Mr. Lichtenstein gained prominence in 1929, when he accompanied Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National, to the international financial conference at Baden-Baden, where the Bank for International Settlements was organized. He served as general secretary of the conference. He has also served in unofficial capacities for the United States state department and last summer was one of the four American delegates to the international communications conference in Madrid. He has been secretary of the federal advisory council of the federal reserve system for many years.

Among his clubs are the Midday, Cliff Dwellers, and Quadrangle of Chicago; Metropolitan of Washington, D. C., and the Harvard of New York.

RATES ON BANKS' ACCEPTANCES ARE ADVANCED ⅛ PCT.

Official rates on bankers' acceptances were advanced ⅛ per cent on all maturities yesterday. The new scale is ½-⅜ per cent on 30, 60, and 90 day maturities, ⅝-½ per cent on 4 months maturities, and ⅞-¾ per cent on five and six months maturities.

Posting of the new rates follows a reduction announced last week. Money market authorities said the action simply corrected a technical condition, that there was no adequate reason to lower rates a week ago, and that refusal of banks to buy acceptances at the former figure led to the rebound in interest charges. The change in Chicago rates followed a similar change in New York.

MASS. MUTUAL'S INCOME TOTALS $107,982,286 IN '32

New York, Feb. 10.—The Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company today reported total income for 1932 of $107,982,286, including $67,731,021 of premium income. This compares with $108,335,641, including $73,181,916 of premium income, in 1931.

Total disbursements were $87,540,165, against $73,500,252 a year ago, leaving an excess of $20,352,121 receipts over expenditures.

Total assets were increased during the year from $426,899,037 to $449,621,074.

FIRES TAKE BIG TOLL OF GRAIN STORAGE SPACE

City's Capacity Cut 8½ Million Bushels.

Elevator fires in Chicago have lopped 8,500,000 bushels from the city's grain storage capacity within the last eight years, the board of trade records disclosed yesterday. The latest fire destroyed the Rosenbaum elevator on Goose island Thursday night, consuming 1,635,000 bushels of grain.

No new elevator warehouses have been built to replace the burned structures, according to the records of Lyman West, statistician for the board of trade. One of the rumored reasons for this failure to replace them was said to involve labor troubles, grain owners preferring to store their grain at other points rather than have their employés under union domination here.

Capacity 24,000,000 Bushels.

Although the storage capacity has been cut 8,500,000 bushels, Mr. West's records show that there is still a 24,500,000 of unused capacity in the city, but this includes elevators not operated under the custodian rule of the board of trade at the present time.

Some of the warehouses could, however, be declared "board houses" by a vote of the board of directors. At the present time the capacity is ample to care for anticipated needs, although an unexpected movement of grain might bring congestion.

Before the Rosenbaum fire Thursday night, twelve "regular warehouses" were operated under the custodian rule of the board of trade, with a total capacity of 18,713,000 bushels. The Rosenbaum structure could hold 2,000,000 bushels, but only 1,635,000 bushels were stored there when the fire broke out.

Much Unused Space.

In the eleven warehouses remaining, there is still about a 5,500,000 capacity unused at the present time. In addition, among the houses not operated under the custodian rule, there is about a 19,000,000 unused capacity, some of which space could be used by the board if more was needed. So that a great capacity still is available for Chicago grain storage.

Chicago's total capacity is estimated at more than 50,000,000 bushels. Minneapolis' capacity is set at 91,000,000 and Kansas City at 60,000,000. Duluth and Superior, Wis., have a combined total of 50,000,000 and a like capacity is claimed by Buffalo. Before the turn of the century, Chicago was the largest grain storage center in the country.

N. Y. CENTRAL AND MILWAUKEE REPORT LOSSES

New York Central railroad yesterday reported a net loss of $18,256,400 in 1932 after taxes and charges, compared with net income of $2,430,101 in 1931. December net loss was $1,104,411 against loss of $286,465 a year ago.

The road's current assets as of Dec. 31 were $76,115,414 against current liabilities of $108,541,751. At the end of 1931 these items stood, respectively, at $81,442,386 and $103,092,205.

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific reported a loss of $23,269,678 for 1932 compared with a loss of $13,812,759 in 1931 and a profit of $7,074,014 in 1929.

Last month's output is estimated at 115,915 cars and trucks, 38 per cent above the December total and larger than production for any month of 1932, with the exceptions of March and April. The figures do not include Ford operations.

Rail Inquiry Group Expected to Criticize Wasteful Rivalry

New York, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Dow, Jones & Co. said today that "sharp criticism of railway managements for not eliminating competitive wastes" will be made in the national transportation committee's report, which is expected to be made public soon.

It is understood, the agency said, that the report will urge abandonment of a large amount of unprofitable branch line mileage where localities are served by more than one carrier.

View On Capitalization.

It was also forecast that the report would advocate scaling down railroad capitalizations. This would apply, it was said, to cases where the capital structures are considered too high to be supplied bya normal amount of traffic.

"Consolidations of railroads probably will be urged," said Dow Jones, "where it is evident that substantial economies can be effected through single management.

"Legislative reforms which would allow railroads to enter all forms of transportation business unhampered by severe regulation to which they are now subjected are expected to be recommended.

Stand On Motor Transport.

"It is understood that the committee to a great extent adopted the report of the joint railway-highway users committee, which provided for regulation of motor transportation and taxation of motor vehicles for complete cost of the highways.

"In some quarters it is said the committee will urge that the government cease subsidizing waterways and the aviation industry. That the railroads should also be relieved of oppressive taxation is also believed to be advocated."

CHARGE RAILROAD PLEDGES TO R.F.C. FAR UNDER LOANS

Foes of New Borrowing Cite Value of Collateral.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Opponents of further government loans to the railroads tonight loaded their muskets with what they regarded as powerful ammunition taken from a Reconstruction Finance corporation report showing that advances to the carriers in some cases far exceed the present market value of the collateral.

The report, listing sharp declines in the value of the collateral furnished by the roads on their loans, was laid today before the senate banking subcommittee, investigating the advisability of suspending further advances to the carriers.

Chairman Couzens specifically cited more than half a dozen large loans which are not covered by the present value of the collateral security, including one which he said was an "insull road."

Seek $70,000,000 More.

The committee also learned that the railroads have applications pending before the R. F. C. or the interstate commerce commission for about $70,000,000 in loans in addition to the approximately $300,000,000 already advanced to them.

The inquiry was suspended following today's session to give Couzens and other members an opportunity to study the information so far received and decide what course to take.

Couzens would not say today whether the almost unanimous testimony presented in favor of continuing extension of government credit had changed his opinion that further loans should be suspended. Among the loans cited by Couzens today, with the present market or estimated value of the collateral back of them, follow.

Central of Georgia: Loans outstanding, $2,903,000; collateral, $898,000.

Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee: $1,150,000; collateral, no estimate.

Missouri Pacific: $17,100,000 in loans, $7,392,000 in collateral, but additional collateral of unestimated value was furnished on an additional loan of $3,000,000 recently.

St. Louis and San Francisco: $5,000,000 loans; $829,000 collateral.

Southern Railway: $14,723,000 in loans; $11,743,000 collateral.

Call Collateral Adequate.

Miles C. Kennedy, chief of the railroad division of the reconstruction corporation, testified that in his opinion the collateral on the Central of Georgia loan was "adequate."

Couzens, pointing out the R. F. C. did not even estimate the value of the collateral on the loan to the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee, which he said was an "Insull road," added: "You can probably count that off as profit and loss."

Kennedy would not agree, saying the collateral had "some value."

Vortex Cup.

Please inform me as to the standing of Vortex Cup class A and common stock.—D. H. S.

Vortex Cup company, manufacturer of cone shaped paper drinking cups soda cups, and sundae dishes, was established in 1911. It operates in the United States and Canada.

Net income for the year ended Sept. 30, 1932, was $352,000, which was 1.92 times class A dividends and equal to $1.64 per common share. For the preceding year net income was $606,000, which was 3.23 times class A dividends and equal to $4.12 per common share. Net for the Sept. 30, 1930, year was $714,000, against $654,000 for the Sept. 30, 1929, year.

On Sept. 30, 1932, current assets were $924,000 and current liabilities were $138,000. Cash and United States government securities alone were $658,000. Working capital was $786,000 against $743,000 the year before.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 73,200 shares of no par class A and 101,458 shares of no par common. The class A has preferential rights to annual dividends of $2.50 per share. It is convertible into common stock, share for share, at any time.

The common pays 25 cents a quarter. The class A is medium grade. The common is speculative.

Participating Insurance.

Will you please explain for me the difference between participating insurance and nonparticipating insurance? —W. B. C.

That plan of insurance whereby policyholders participate in the profits of the company is termed participating insurance. It makes little difference whether rates charged for participating insurance are high, as what profit remains after payments towards expenses, reserves, etc., will be returned. The main factor is efficiency of management. The dividend, or more properly refund, is from savings, economies, and efficiency of management. Stock rates, those charged for non participating insurance, are usually lower for the initial premium.

Each method has its advantages. Which to select depends on the needs and desires of the policyholder.

Bankruptcy and Insolvency.

Will you please explain for me the difference between bankruptcy and insolvency?—C. D.

Bankruptcy is a court proceeding whereby a trustee, termed a receiver is appointed to handle a debtor's assets for the protection of creditors when the owner of the assets is unwilling or not able to pay his debts.

Insolvency is the condition of a debtor that results when his liabilities are greater than his assets.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders were all set for a sharply higher opening of the wheat and corn markets yesterday, expecting that hedges against the 661,000 bu cash wheat and 947,000 bu corn destroyed in the St. Paul elevator "A" and "B" fire Thursday night would be removed. There were no buying orders in evidence, however, and first sales were at practically the same prices as the previous close.

Between divergent fears that buying in of hedges might appear in case of a minor decline in either market or that there would be further selling by mills against Red Cross wheat in case of a bulge, speculative trading during the day was light until near the close.

Hedges against the corn destroyed in the elevator fire, however, were understood to have been entirely removed during the day, the price mentioned being 25⅞@26c for the May. A good part of the buying was done right at the close, which was 25¾c, the inside figure of the day and ⅛c lower than on Thursday.

More Pressure on Wheat.

Trade in wheat was largely of a local character until near the close, when pressure increased from houses that have recently been on the selling side, and the close was within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of ⅝@⅞c. May finished at 47⅛c; July, 48⅛c, and September, 49¼c. There was buying of May against sales of the distant futures, while a cash house sold September and bought May.

The steady reduction in the open interest in the May future is attracting attention from the trade, as it has decreased around 8,000,000 bu in the last two weeks.

While numerous unfavorable reports on the outlook for winter wheat were received during the day, they attracted little attention from the trade. One of the leading local experts expressed the belief that accurate estimates on the probable loss would be impossible until there is a period of growing weather.

Export demand was somewhat better than on Thursday. Winnipeg was ⅛@¼c lower in Canadian funds, while Buenos Aires was off ¼@½c, and Liverpool lost ½@⅞c for the day.

Corn Closes Easy.

Corn futures were slightly higher in the early trading, but the trade was not large and the close was easy in sympathy with wheat, with prices unchanged to ⅛c lower. May was 25⅞c, July 27½c and September 28¼c at the last. The country sold 75,000 bu cash corn to arrive during the day, the heaviest bookings made since the recent storm entered the main corn belt.

Northwestern cash interests were buyers of May and sellers of July oats to change over hedges into the distant future, while a local cash house did the reverse. The finish was unchanged, with May at 17⅛c and July 17⅛c. Rye followed wheat and closed ⅛@¾c lower, May and July being 34c. Barley was nominally ⅛c higher, with May at 27¾c.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 10.—[Special.]—Prices of domestic corporation bonds advanced mildly today against a recession of fractions to ¼ of a point in United States government issues.

The setback in treasury obligations was attributed in part to hardening of bankers' acceptance rates by one-eighth of 1 per cent. Tighter money found the market in a sensitive condition and prices gradually gave ground.

The force of the advance in other sections of the bond market was much abated today, though small price gains were the rule. Rail bonds were at the fore of the domestic bond advance.

A few industrial bonds moved ahead in brisk trading.

PROSPECT OF CONTINUED COLD SENDS HOGS UP

Better Buying Offsets a Larger Supply.

Hogs managed a good rally yesterday on the strength of reports that the cold wave is likely to continue for several days. Buying expanded in face of somewhat larger receipts and prices were forced up 5@10c on active closing rounds.

The trade paid little attention to the 1c setback in the wholesale price of fresh pork loins, since the meat trade still holds most of the recent sharp advances. Further gains were scored in pork prices at leading distributing centers in the east which warranted the broader buying by shippers. During the first five days of this week order buyers purchased 16 per cent of the total Chicago receipts, against 11 per cent a week ago.

After direct shipments had been deducted from yesterday's arrivals, only 10,000 "fresh" hogs were left to sell. Shippers bought 3,500 of these. Current quotations are 45@55c above the close of last week. Yesterday's top and average at $3.90 and $3.70 compared with $3.35 and $3.25, respectively, last Saturday.

Cattle Prices Weak.

Yesterday's small supply of 1,800 cattle was augmented by a fairly large number of medium and heavy steers carried over on lower bids from the preceding session. Demand, as usual on a Friday, was spotted and trading soon developed into a "catch as catch can" affair, which sellers found to be unevenly lower in most instances.

Extremely heavy long fed steers proved a drug on the market and some of these were "put away" for next week, because of the condition of the trade. The supply of weighty cattle had been light until prices reached a level 75c@$1.00 above the low time two weeks ago early this week. Since, offerings of 1,300@1,600 lb averages have been beyond requirements.

As a result, heavy steers are 50c under the high price of Wednesday and slightly lower than a week ago. Light steers are closing the week steady to 25c higher. Yearlings averaging 947 lbs topped yesterday's market at $6.25. Calves have advanced $1.50@2.00 since a week ago.

Lambs Bring $6.00.

A bulge of 15@25c in the lamb market late yesterday afternoon carried the top for fed westerns back up to the $6 line. Numerous loads reached this figure, which is 15c above the closing top of last week. Medium weight lambs cashed around $5.75@5.85. Yearling wethers brought $5.00, aged wethers $3.40, and old ewes $3.00. While the lamb market has been unusually restless in the last ten days the price fluctuations have not been wide. Daily tops this week held within a range of $5.95@6.15 on the smallest receipts of the year.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was a little easier although at declines of 2 points demand seemed to broaden and offerings became scarce. Local refiners showed no very keen interest, although they were believed willing to pay 2.68c for sugars in early positions, but these were generally held at slightly higher. The only business reported was to operators and outport refiners and this, including some late the previous day, totaled fully 180,000 bags of Philippines for February-March and March-April shipment at 2.68c to 2.69c. Houses with Cuban banking connections also bought on the quiet and aside from realizing or liquidation, offerings were comparatively light with final prices at the best of the session. The British Indian crop of 1932-33 was unofficially estimated at 4,651,000 tons against earlier estimates of around 4,000,000 tons, and last year's crop of 3,970,000 tons. FIND FARMERS BEING HELPED BY LOWER TAXES

Insurance Firms Report Wide Reductions.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

An encouraging situation is developing in agriculture as a result of the scaling down of taxes, according to George S. Beaumont, assistant treasurer of the Continental Casualty and Continental Assurance companies. Mr Beaumont, who is connected with the mortgage departments of these companies, has observed conditions in widely separated parts of the country.

"The agitation which was started five or six years ago for tax reductions is now bearing fruit in tax cuts made by officials in several states in which we have mortgages or real estate interests," Mr. Beaumont said yesterday. "We are reliably informed that real estate taxes in such widely separated states as Iowa, Kansas, Texas, and Georgia for 1932 are from 5 to 25 per cent less than they were in 1929 and 1930.

Offset to Foreclosures.

"This we regard as a most encouraging tendency and one that is apt to be lost sight of in publicity given talk of foreclosures and mortgages.

"Here are a few examples: On a 160 acre corn farm in Edgar county Ill., taxes were reduced from $260 in 1930 to $235 in 1931. An owner of a 320 acre wheat farm in Ford county, Kas., has had his taxes reduced from $129 in 1931 to $92 in 1932. A Dodge county, Ga., cotton farm of 303 acres had taxes on it reduced from $107 in 1930 to $88 in 1932. In Hunt county, Tex., an owner of an 85 acre cotton and corn farm had his taxes reduced from $52 in 1930 to $37 in 1932. In Muskokee county, Okla., the 1932-1933 tax levies are 27.6 per cent less than they were for 1930-1931.

"Taxes and interest on his mortgage are two things that a farmer must pay. When taxes go down, it leaves the farmer more to pay on his mortgage.

Sees Farm Produce at Bottom.

"Agricultural prices are now at rock bottom levels and eventually there is bound to be an upturn. When that arrives the farmer will have two forces moving in opposite directions working in his favor. One will be descending taxes. The other will be rising prices. He will be in a position to pay his taxes and his buying power will be restored, which will be reflected in the industrial districts.

"People in the city do not realize how much real help the farmer can get through a reduction in his taxes amounting to only comparatively few dollars. A cut in taxes on a farm of from $50 to $150 may mean the difference between a farmer going on with his enterprise or giving up.

"So these reductions in taxes and the hope for increasing farm prices lead to the expectation that the farmers' troubles will be gretly alleviated, if not eliminated."
